18 Seek Post As Assistant To Governor

The new position was created by the 1955 legislature with an appropriation of $18,000 for the current biennium. Gov. Patterson said he had not yet decided when the position would be filled.

The governor indicated that the additional administrative assistant would prepare newspaper and radio releases along with other functions. Edwin H. Armstrong, current administrative assistant, will be retained in his present position.

Forest Fire Control Unit Plans Drive

The board of directors of the Keep Oregon Green Association, at a meeting here Wednesday, decided to launch an educational campaign to reduce the number of forest fires caused by careless smokers and power saws.

Reports before the association indicated that power saws had caused an unusual number of fires on federal, state and private lands this year. Careless smokers were credited with starting more than 30 per cent of the fires.

The forest industries established an outstanding record in fire prevention, the association directors were told. These industries, operating on 1,600,000 acres of timberlands, were charged with only 42 fires in Oregon. The directors said they would work in close cooperation with Governor Paul L. Patterson's so-called "red hat" day program committee.

The public was praised for outstanding cooperation in keeping down fires. Special mention went to the Green Guards who have discovered numerous fires.

Pay scale adjustment was made by Civil Service after study, with a legislative appropriation of $2,000,000 to finance raises for many classifications.

So far the only state employees to receive raises are those whose regular merit review came in July or those who were being paid lower than the new minimums which took effect July 1.

McGranahan is slated to appear today for preliminary hearing before Marion County District Judge E. O. Stadter whose court issued the warrant.

Police said McGranahan, in Marion County jail under $1,500 bail, signed a statement admitting the theft and stating he used some of the money to pay his wife's hospital bill and to buy clothes for the baby just born there.

Police said he turned over to them $65 which he said was what he had left of the some $220 he admitted taking.

State Places Restriction on Products Use

The state Agricultural department announced Wednesday it has clamped down on the unregulated and indiscriminate use of seven biological products used to treat livestock diseases.

The department order prohibits the sale of these products. This means, officials said, that these seven products cannot be sold legally to farmers or ranchers by drug stores, feed stores or any other concern or individual.

It also means they cannot be used legally by anyone except veterinarians and even use by veterinarians holds some restrictions.

The products include: Anthrax spore vaccine, blue tongue vaccine, erysipelas rhusiopathiae (live culture); erysipelas rhusiopathiae vaccine (avirulent or attenuated); hog cholera vaccine, live virus; hog cholera vaccine, modified or attenuated live virus; and brucella abortus vaccine.

The order, signed by the state agricultural department director and effective as of Aug. 20, was issued after much study, Dr. K. E. Peterson, state veterinarian for the department, said Wednesday. He said the unrestricted use of these products is a potential hazard to the health of Oregon livestock.

'Self-Service' Shoe Store To Open Here

A new shoe store, described as the first self-service unit of its kind in Oregon, will open tomorrow at 339 Court St. Site of the former Paramount Shoe Store which was sold by Herman and Al Feitelson several weeks ago.

Purchasers and new proprietors are Morry Blum, Jerry Blum and Harry Merin, operators of the Shoe Box.

The store has been remodeled with new fixtures and display equipment.

The new owners explained that the self-service feature, whereby customers may choose the shoes they prefer but have them fitted by experienced salesmen, is designed to permit lower prices of quality merchandise because of decreased overhead.

A television set prize, roses for women customers and gifts for children will feature the formal opening, it was announced.

A hearing to determine whether Joan Barlow, operator of the Pacific Rendering Company, 1725 S. 25th St., should be allowed to continue operating the plant has been continued until next week.

The hearing started Tuesday before the State Agriculture Department which proposes to withhold her license because operation of the plant allegedly interferes with the "comfortable enjoyment of life and property of residents" in the adjacent area.

Review of State's Amended Dairy Legislation Issued

A review of amended dairy laws of the 1955 Legislature, dealing largely with grading of milk and cream, price differentials and grade records, was issued Wednesday by the State agricultural department.

All milk and cream from each individual producer must be graded before it is mixed with other milk or cream and grading records must be held for 30 days. These must be available for inspection by the producer and the state agricultural department.

Grading Record
The law requires this grading record to show the grade assigned to each lot of milk or cream received. A lower grade may be assigned to all or part of any producer's lot if the milk or cream fails to meet one or more of the grade factors. The grade factors include: Methylene blue reduction test, sediment content, acid content, flavor, odor, cleanliness and wholesomeness.

If the grading record shows a particular day's shipment to be No. 2 milk or first or second grade cream, and the record of subsequent shipments of that producer do not show a grade, the lower grade will apply for all daily shipments of that producer for the remainder of that pay or test period.

New Differential
The methylene blue reduction test of milk and sediment tests must be made every 30 days. A new price differential for milk and cream, enacted to stimulate quality production, requires all plants to pay five per cent more for first grade milk than second grade. For cream the price spread must be at least three cents between premium and first grades and five cents between first and second grade.

Each plant must post, in a conspicuous place where milk and cream are received, the current prices for the various grades of milk and cream.
