

Paris Undecided On Faure's Plans For Africa Peace

PARIS (AP) — The French Cabinet debated Premier Edgar Faure's peace formula for the Moroccan crisis for nine hours and broke up its session early Monday without reaching a conclusion.

But Faure said he still hoped to form a new Moroccan government based on all shades of political opinion there.

Another Cabinet meeting was scheduled Monday morning when it will renew its attempt to hammer out a decision between strong and varying views within the government.

Elsewhere, too, the Premier's plan for soothing the blood-bathed protectorate encountered hard going.

No Conclusion
At Aix Les Bains, French and Moroccan representatives ended their week-long consultations on the problem without coming to a final conclusion on when exiled Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef will be returned to France from his exile in Madagascar.

Both sides were agreed that the present aging Sultan, unpopular Mohammed Ben Moulay Arafat, must be replaced in the immediate future by a regency pending final action on Ben Youssef's status.

But the French wanted the Moroccan nationalists, led by the Istiglal (Independence) Party and the Democratic Independence Party (PDI) to agree to the return of Ben Youssef after other parts of the Faure plan have been put into effect. The nationalists wanted his immediate return.

Violence Flares
Bloodshed, too, again erupted in Tunisia, comparatively quiet protectorate of the North African sector, over the weekend.

French foreign Legion troops and rebels fought a running battle in the mountainous Kasserine Pass area which cost at least 23 dead.

Military authorities at Tunis said the troops encountered about 200 rebels near Bou Ramli, about 20 miles from the Algerian border.

They said 11 soldiers were killed and 11 wounded and at least a dozen rebels were killed.

However, the rebel losses may have been as high as 40, the authorities said. The rebels were believed to have escaped with some of their dead.

The fight, which started Saturday, was one of the worst in Tunisia since new agreements were reached months ago for internal self-government of the protectorate.

2,000 Welcome
Elsa, Luxury Ship
Guests to Greece

CORFU, Greece (AP) — A crowd of about 2,000 lined up on the quay to cheer international hostess Elsa Maxwell as her party went ashore from the liner Achilles Sunday.

Elsa did not land with them. The party went sightseeing in small groups. Autograph hunters besieged French ex-Premier Paul Reynaud and movie actress Olivia de Havilland, two of the guests aboard the luxury ship.

A gala dinner at Corfu Palace awaited the party Sunday night. The Achilles and the party of 113 of the international set sailed for the Gulf of Corinth Monday and arrives at Athens Wednesday.

Greek millionaire Stavros Niarchos chartered the ship for $100,000 but did not come himself. The cruise is regarded by some as Elsa's party of parties and as a part of the Greek government's drive for tourists.
