

The Tee Totaler Too Can Keep Cool With Frosty Beverages

By MAXINE BUREN
Statesman Woman's Editor

Warmish weather, and thoughts still turn to iced drinks, whether they're to be non-alcoholic, or spiked with something stronger. The teetotaler need not be at a loss for interest in cold drinks, for aside from popular lemonade, fruit juices and bottled soft drinks, there are many possibilities for mixed beverages.

Here's a variation of iced tea:

ORANGE PEKOE FROZEN PUNCH

Pour over one-half a cup of dry tea a quart of boiling water, and let the leaves infuse—stirring a little—until the desired strength is attained. From three to five minutes should be long enough. Add a cup of sugar, one-fourth a cup of lemon juice and the grated rind of half a lemon, with—if you wish—six drops of extract of cloves. Freeze in ice and salt or in refrigerator, stirring occasionally. This is good for a dinner punch, or novel and refreshing for afternoon tea in warm weather.

Orange and lemon appear with tea here:

HONG KONG KOOLER

Squeeze one lemon and one orange and strain the juice through a fine sieve. Put the rinds, with one-half cup of black tea, into teapot, and cover with two cups of water which has just come to a rolling boil; steep ten minutes, strain through a tea strainer, then through cloth; cool, add prepared juice, pour into small moulds or ice-cube pan, freeze.

Into chilled tumblers, place one-fourth cup of ice water, one frozen cube; finish filling with water or ginger ale. Each person may add sweetening as desired.

MOCHA-AND-LIME RICKEY

Beat two eggs, add a cup of strong black coffee made by percolating three tablepoons of ground coffee in one-half a pint of water for twenty minutes, add one-half a cup of sugar, and one-half a cup of the juice of fresh limes.

Dilute to taste with boiling water, cool, and serve in tall, narrow glasses filled one-fourth full with shaved ice.

Modern Etiquette

By ROBERTA LEE

Q. Does a woman who is marrying for the second time wear white?

A. She does not wear white, nor does she wear a veil. And the simpler the ceremony, the better taste it displays. The most sensible woman marries inconspicuously at home or in church with only intimate friends and relatives present to witness her second marriage ceremony.

Q. When a dinner guest has finished eating, should he or she help the hostess by stacking some of the empty dishes?

A. Helpful or not, this is considered bad form. The dishes should remain as they are until removed by the maid or hostess.

Q. Should a girl of eighteen rise when being introduced to a man of sixty?

A. Yes, always; and also to a woman of sixty.
