

Convoy Delayed by Ice

Battling 'Frozen Sea' SEATTLE — Fighting a sea of ice, which cared nothing for ship's hulls, gallant little survey vessel USS Requisite leads way through polar ice floe as flotilla of more than 50 ships carry supplies to U. S. Arctic radar warning outposts along northern rim of the continent. Ice rammed holes through several ships during summer-long mission and tossed others around like cars in an amusement park dodgem ride. This picture was made in July from deck of another ship. Requisite, scratched and bruised, returned to Seattle Monday. (AP Wirephoto from U. S. Navy).
