The decision, reached in a 3-2 vote of the committee, fanned to higher heat the arguments on where the center should be located.

Critics noted that the site is only a mile from Vancouver, Wash., and said Portland was building a fine sports center for Vancouver.

The majority side of the committee, however, defended the site as the one most economical, providing the greatest space for parking, and having room for the

Aims to Retire From National Political Life

By A. ROBERT SMITH

Statesman Correspondent WASHINGTON - It now appears virtually certain that Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay will re-tire from the cabinet and from active national political life after next fall's elections.

McKay says he is anxious to go nome to Salem, Ore., where he left the office of governor of Oregon at President Eisenhower's request almost three years ago to beome head of the government department that exerts the greatest nfluence over the West.

In an interview, the 62-year-old former auto dealer said he hopes to leave office when Eisenhower's term in office expires, January, 1957. He said that even in the event the president should run for reelection, he would want to submit his resignation. He said he thought the entire cabinet should do that, in order to give the president a fresh start in case he is re-elected. Slight Chances

In view of the recent heart attack of the president, most observers now regard the chances of his seeking a second term as extremely slight.

In McKay's case, it is Mrs. Mc-Kay who exerts the strongest pull away from Washington, D. C., toward home and her grandchildren in Oregon. The secretary said she travels 50,000 miles a year between Washington and Salem for frequent family visits.

Not that McKay personally has any desire to stay on in the na-tion's capital. He is not likely to be found among the sizeable group of ex-politicians who "never go back to Pocatello," as the old saying goes of has-beens who can't seem to overcome the lure of soc-ial-political life along the Potomac. ould Like to Quit Indeed, McKay would like to quit right now and go back to Oregon and take the stump to defend his administration and his policies against the attacks leveled at them Sens.
