

No Agreement Seen As Arms Talks End

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The big powers are expected to finish another round of disarmament talks Friday with no sensational new agreements but with a clear idea of the scope of the Eisenhower plan.

Man Saved From Death On Flag Pole

BALTIMORE (AP)—Vincent Avara, 26-year-old maintenance man at a public school, was rescued from a flag pole 80 feet above the ground Thursday after hanging on desperately for 15 minutes.

A passerby and firemen saved him. He was released after treatment for shock at Maryland General Hospital.

The flag pole sticks out from the side of the school building and Avara was trying to replace the rope used to run the flag up the pole.

He was wearing a safety line but apparently it broke and he almost fell before he could grab the pole.

A passerby, still unidentified, dashed into the principal's office to report the accident and then scurried on up to the roof of the building. He managed to swing the flag pole rope around Avara several times as Avara hung on desperately.

Avara apparently lost consciousness before firemen arrived, rigged ladders, and carried him down.

Attic 'Space Ship' Claims 2 Youngsters

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Police quoted a 10-year-old boy Thursday as saying he locked his younger brother and a playmate in a trunk in the attic while the three were playing "space ship."

The two were dead when the trunk was opened Thursday morning.

Assistant Police Chief Raymond J. Egan quoted James Primicerio, 10, as giving the following story:

While playing in the attic of the Primicerio's home here Wednesday, the two got in the trunk and closed it. James locked it about 4:30 p. m. and went out to play, leaving his brother Dominic, 9, and Daniel Bencivenga, 8, in the trunk.

Egan said the boy told police he came back in the house about 7 p. m., opened the trunk, felt the boys' faces, found them warm and closed the trunk without locking it.

Late Thursday morning, James told his mother the two missing boys might be in the attic.

Egan said the boy would be turned over to juvenile authorities pending a coroner's inquest into the deaths.

Huge Bird Crashes Through Windshield

PRINEVILLE (AP)—A huge bird crashed through the windshield of Bob Barney's car as he drove on a highway near here.

He managed to stay on the road despite the dying bird's clawing talons.

Hunters tentatively identified the bird, with a wing spread measuring 74 inches and a body length of 34 inches, as a bald eagle. Such birds have been unknown in this area.

Willamette to Host Parents This Weekend

Students and faculty of Willamette University today will greet several hundred parents who will be arriving for the opening of the school's annual Parents Weekend.

Primarily a "get-acquainted opportunity," the weekend will include several special entertainments and a business meeting of the WU Parents Association headed by William Walsh of Coos Bay.

Many of the parents will have their first look at three newly constructed Willamette buildings. President G. Herbert Smith will describe "Willamette's New Look" in a Saturday morning talk to the parents.

A roundtable discussion on the direction of Willamette's future will be presented for the parents by Parent Charles L. Kaufman, Forest Grove; student Dan Dearborn; Dr. A. Freeman Holmer, with Dr. Howard Runkel as moderator.

Other campus events of the weekend will include the Varsity Varieties talent show given by the students tonight, a meeting of Salem WU Mothers Club, campus tours, the Willamette-Whitman football game Saturday night, a Saturday afternoon one-act play by the drama department.

David Frost, student chairman for the weekend festivities, predicted attendance of parents would top last year's 800.

Star Reaches New York for Shower Bath

NEW YORK (AP)—Film actor Victor Mature flew in Thursday from England to get a shower bath.

Mature left London Wednesday night six hours after he arrived there from movie-making in Africa.

"They had everything ready, cocktail party and all, except a room with a shower," said Vic. "I was annoyed, so I came here to get a shower."

Clad in a trench coat, mussed sport jacket, soiled flannel slacks and sheepskin slippers, Mature said his only luggage was passport, toothbrush and a pack of cigarettes.

Non-Resident Hunters Fined

KLAMATH FALLS (AP)—Dist. Judge D. E. Van Vactor Wednesday fined three Southern California men $100 each for making false applications for Oregon hunting licenses.

Williams Melford Provanca, 27, Los Angeles, was released when he paid up. But his brother, Harry, 20, Anaheim, and Harry Edward Smith, 40, Whittier, remained in jail until their fines could be raised.

State police arrested the men after charging them with representing themselves as Oregon residents.

McKay, REA Chief Asked To Testify

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Interior McKay and the head of the Rural Electrification Administration have been asked to testify next week before a House committee on the administration's power policies.

Rep. Chudoff (D-Pa.) said Thursday that complaints received by the Government Operations subcommittee he heads "on their face" constitute "a serious indictment of administration power marketing practice."

Ancher Neilsen, REA head, and chief aides to Neilsen and McKay have been asked to appear at the hearings to be held before the subcommittee on public works and resources here Oct. 11-13.

Chudoff said the officials would be asked to explain the circumstances surrounding a number of federal power marketing situations.

Who drank it? The Americans in the party. Nine Russians drank tomato juice.

The tenth? He had a beer.

Tampico Flood Leveling Off Toll Now 326

TAMPICO, Mex. (AP)—The Panuco River leveled off overnight, bringing hope to this flooded devastated oil port and the surrounding area where, by unofficial count 326 persons have perished.

This was conditioned, however, by reports of heavy rains to the west, flooding the Zempoala River, a tributary of the Panuco, Red Cross officials said a new crest is expected within 24 hours.

This threat of another rise and lack of drinking water and food spurred efforts to evacuate persons still living in the small part of Tampico remaining above water. A Mexico City newsman reported two incidents of rioting Wednesday among refugees clamoring for drinking water.

At 5 a. m. a fleet of 14 helicopters from the U. S. aircraft carrier Saipan, anchored off Tampico, started airlifting flood victims over the high water in back of the city to the airport built on high ground. From there passenger planes flew them to refugee centers in Mexico's interior.

Tampico, a city with a normal population of 110,000 now swollen by 55,000 to 70,000 refugees from the surrounding coastal plain, is almost entirely inundated. All but three of the city's stores are under water.

Government officials said reports of the Zempoala River's overflow posed the danger that houses already flooded on the edge of Tampico's isolated center might be collapsed by the force of the current.

23 Trout Prove Costly for Angler

ROCKVILLE, Conn. (UP)—Richard M. MacPherson, 19, of Wethersfield landed in city court after he landed 23 trout from a private stream.

The judge ordered the youthful angler to pay: $50 for entering the land of another without permission, $50 for exceeding the daily limit of five trout, $25 for trespassing, $23 for the total catch.

The judge dismissed a $1 parking ticket MacPherson got while fishing.
