

French Fired on From Morocco's Spanish District

RABAT, French Morocco (AP)—Resident General Pierre Boyer de LaTour du Moulin charged Sunday French troops have been fired on from the Spanish Zone of Morocco.

The charge was contained in a formal statement issued through his press chief, Maj. Michel Frois. It said the firing took place Oct. 14, and added that the French troops did not reply.

The statement was a reply to

Spain's threat Saturday to accuse France before the United Nations of threatening peace if the French persisted in talking about alleged Spanish aid to Moroccan rebels.

The reply did not mention this possibility, but it sharply disagreed with the Spanish statement in several points.

"The Spanish high commissioner in Morocco has perhaps denied these facts," the statement said.

Spanish Aid

"In that case he is ill-informed." Since fighting began near the Spanish Zone Oct. 1, French officials have been saying the rebels had Spanish aid. They pointed out that the zone of heaviest fighting was a pocket surrounded on three sides by Spanish-occupied territory. The rebels, they said, could easily find refuge across the border.

The French—always before speaking unofficially, however—told of an alleged training camp for guerrillas at Nador, near Melilla, and of a hospital organized in the Spanish Zone to care for rebel wounded.

French authorities reported six rebels killed and 15 wounded in fighting in the Berkane Mountains of Northern Morocco Sunday as the country awaited the first meeting of its new Council of the Throne. No French losses were announced.

Hope for End

The Throne Council was established by Premier Edgar Faure's government Saturday in the hope it could lead the way to an end of two years of terrorism and the beginning of popular rule.

French officials predicted the council will hold its first meeting Monday despite a new row over the way it was set up. The Istiqlal (Independence) Party complained the body was not organized according to provisions of an agreement between the nationalists and the French.

The complaint may foreshadow a refusal by the Istiqlal—biggest of the nationalist parties—to take a seat in the new government, thus seriously endangering its chances of success.

State Hospital Official Quits In Washington

SPOKANE (AP)—The recently appointed head of the new maximum security facilities at Eastern State Hospital has resigned, saying he could see no prospect of "operating this unit as a therapy service."

Dr. M. M. Campbell, acting superintendent of the mental hospital at Medical Lake, announced the resignation of Dr. John Palmer, head of the security facilities, Sunday.

Dr. Campbell said in announcing Palmer's resignation:

"Dr. Palmer informed me he could see no prospect of operating this unit as a therapy service because of its innate construction. He said it could function only as a custody unit."

The maximum security building is now in the process of alteration to remedy security weaknesses. It has never been occupied. The building has been slated to receive riot leaders from the state penitentiary at Walla Walla who are scheduled for segregation and psychiatric treatment.

Dr. Campbell said he believes there is a good possibility the building can be utilized effectively for its original purpose—the care and treatment of the criminally insane and insane convicts.

But Dr. Campbell added that the modernistic geriatrics building for the aged, which went into service about eight years ago, is endangered by moisture conditions in the soil.

"In my opinion," Dr. Campbell said, "this building will have to be condemned within five years."

Dr. Campbell will give up his duties as active superintendent at the end of this month to Dr. G. Lee Sandritter of Hastings, Neb.
