

Farmers' Almanac Predicts Weather 2 Years in Advance

By EARL ARONSON
 LEWISTON, Maine (AP)—It was March when the editor of the Farmers' Almanac received a letter from a prospective bride in Cleveland, Ohio.

The young woman requested a forecast for the proposed honeymoon period in late May and June, and added: "You have no idea how grateful I will be for your help in making my plans."

In August, Editor Raymond A. Geiger received another letter, signed "Mrs."

"We shall never forget your kindness in giving us a magnificent day just three months ago and during our entire trip," the woman wrote. "We missed bad weather as you predicted, and had a perfectly wonderful honeymoon."

Geiger finds nothing unusual in these letters. He says similar letters are frequently received by his unique publication.

Founded in 1818, The Farmers' Almanac is rolling off the Geiger brothers press from a new home this year—the first one away from New Jersey since the almanac was founded by David Young, Pine Brook astronomer, teacher and author, in 1818.

Geiger has been editor since his firm took over the almanac in 1935 in Newark. The whole business, employing 140 persons, was moved here last spring.

The almanac is designed as a give-away item. Last year insurance companies, gasoline firms, seed outlets and other business houses bought a million copies for distribution to their various customers.

"Cultural Link"
 Geiger, a 1932 graduate of Notre Dame, describes the almanac as a "cultural link with the past" rather than an "agricultural guide."

He and his co-editor wife, Ann, a former Maplewood, N. J., school teacher, compile the publication, except for the astronomical information. That's the effort of Roland E. Hart of Penn Yan, N. Y.

Hart says he uses the cumulative date of weather cycles as they have occurred in the past century, considering, too, such factors as sun spots and the tidal action of the moon.

Even though the forecasts are made up almost two years in advance, Geiger says they are "75 to 80 per cent accurate."

Some farmers use the almanac planting chart as their time table. Geiger told of a letter from Charles J. Simpson which related how Simpson, as a boy in Eastern Tennessee, was sent to a neighbor's house four miles away to borrow a Farmers' Almanac so his father could tell when to plant Irish potatoes.

Borrowed Book Back
 "The farmer gave it to me," Simpson wrote, "telling me to keep it. Well, that year we had a fine crop. The farmer did not. The next year he borrowed the almanac back."

The magazine also gives the principal feast days and holidays of many religions, the time of sun rising and setting, moon phases, eclipse data, tide tables, fishing tables, anecdotes, recipes and poems.

Geiger tries his jokes on his family first. He held one back for a while, figuring it might offend some "drys." It was about a Kentuckian who always closed his eyes when drinking, explaining the sight of good liquor made his mouth water, diluting the drink.

One final word of wisdom: The almanac predicts there's a fairly rugged winter ahead.

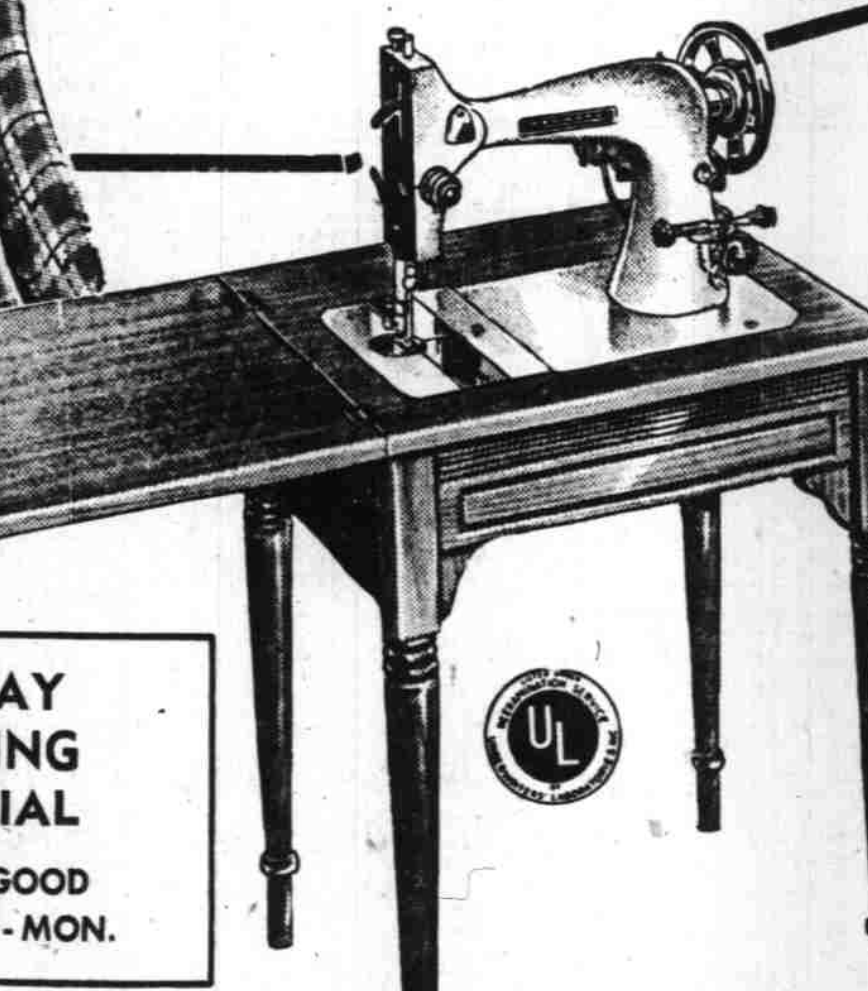

Dental Problem Worried Hitler

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany (AP)—Adolf Hitler worried about having his teeth fixed before he committed suicide in the Berlin chancellery bunker his last dentist says, Helmut Kunz says he discussed the fuhrer's dental treatment with Eva Braun at a tea party the day before the couple took their lives. Kunz has just been freed from a Soviet prison camp.
