Elk Season Exodus Grows At Mehama

MEHAMA — The elk season exodus which began over a week ago is at its peak, and promises to continue for some time yet. Pickups, cars and jeeps loaded to capacity with sleeping bags, tents, groceries, shells and rifles, having sawdust tires mounted are much in evidence in this area.

Ed and Elizabeth Castle have an established camp at Desolation, and will stay all season. Ivan Darby plans to set up camp near Whitney. Anyone who has a weekend to hunt can go over and find camp all ready made.

Several logging companies are taking a week's vacation at this time to enable workers to hunt. Gene Cole, Mehama butcher, and his wife have worked every night and all night some nights to get deer cut and wrapped so they can go elk hunting. Mrs. Wilson Stevens, Stayton school teacher, shortened her school day Friday to go elk hunting over the weekend.

Grant Smith and Gib Wagner, former Mehama residents, have come from California for elk hunting, as has Bud Johnson from Mapleton.

Leaving before daylight Friday morning were Wagners and Ivan Darby. Chuck Darou and Art Anderson plan to join the others at their camp near Whitney sometime later in the season.

Wrong Hunter Claims Birds

MEHAMA — "It only takes a duck hunting trip to determine a mans character," says Harold Wiltze, who just returned from Summer Lake where hunters and ducks were both thick.

An unsportsmanlike hunter kept claiming every goose that fell. After taking 6 geese that belonged to someone else another hunter told him, "next time you reach for my goose, you'll pull back a stump." That ended the thievery.

Amid a steady volley of shotgun blasts and despite aching arms, Austin, Harold and Bill Longfellow, Gerald Rockwell, Frank White and Harold Wiltze returned with limits of ducks and geese.

Ducks were flying low and Austin downed one by hitting it with his rifle butt. As it soared by him he didn't have time to shoot and used his rifle as a club.

More Power, New Styling In 1956 Line

LANSING, Mich.—More power, smart Starfire styling and new smoothness and efficiency in an automatic transmission are declared to give Oldsmobile for 1956 outstanding appearance and performance in its advance to a higher place in automobile popularity.

J. F. Wolfram, Oldsmobile general manager and vice president of General Motors, announced Monday the 1956 Oldsmobile would go on display Thursday, Nov. 3, in dealer showrooms throughout the country, including Leder Bros. at Salem, Ore.

Especially eye-catching is the new Oldsmobile front end, with an airfoil type grille patterned after the experimental Starfire and Delta and recessed in an oval between the massive upper and lower bumper bars, Wolfram said. Rectangular parking lights are incorporated in the outer extremities of the lower bumper bar and are protected by the overhang of the upper bar. Small chrome block letters which spell out the Oldsmobile name add to the distinctive front end.

The low silhouette and panoramic windshield are retained, being enhanced with new fender, hood and bumper designs, Wolfram said.

New flair-away fenders are an advanced version of the sweep-cut fenders introduced by Oldsmobile on earlier Holiday models. They are now standard throughout the 1956 Oldsmobile—on all series both front and rear. The restyled projectile type taillights and the upward sweep of the rear bumper contour above the recess for the license plate "lend a fresh and distinct note to Oldsmobile's rear end styling," he declared. Three series of cars in 13 body types are offered by Oldsmobile for 1956. There are four Fisher body types in the luxurious "98" series—four-door Holiday sedan, Holiday coupe, four-door sedan and Starfire convertible. The high performance Super "98" series presents the Holiday sedan, Holiday coupe, two-door sedan, convertible coupe and four-door sedan. In the budget-priced "88" series are the Holiday sedan, two-door sedan, four-door sedan and Holiday coupe.

New Oldsmobiles on Display Thursday

LANSING, Mich.—Accent is declared to be on grace and beauty in this 1956 Oldsmobile "98" Deluxe Holiday coupe with new Starfire styling and a completely new power train. The "98" Deluxe Holiday coupe is powered by the "Rocket" T-350 engine boosted to 240-h.p. and teamed with Jet-away Hydra-Matic transmission. The new Oldsmobiles will go on display Thursday.
