Wheat Future Prices Dip

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices dipped on the Board of Trade Tuesday, with the December contract down as much as 8 ¼ cents at the close.

Liquidation in the December contract was due to the fact that the last day for trading in December deliveries. Any contracts remaining open now must be settled by delivery of the cash article.

Wheat closed 1 to 8 ¼ cents lower corn ⅛ to 1 ⅝ lower, oats unchanged to 1 ⅝ higher, rye ⅝ higher to 1 ¾ lower, soybeans unchanged to ¾ down, and lard off 5 to 33 cents a hundred pounds.

Wheat was weak all day, however, due to the government's crop forecast which estimated wheat production at almost 23 million bushels more than the last government estimate. This was a larger expansion than traders had expected.
