Secretary Youth Admits Three Thefts At Silverton

A 12-year-old Silverton school boy who had been "spending money a little too freely" has admitted weekend burglaries of three Silverton firms, Sheriff Denver Young reported Wednesday.

The boy was questioned by Silverton Police Chief Rell Main and Deputy Sheriff Angus Shaw Wednesday and admitted he had entered the S & M Truck Lines office and taken money from a desk drawer. He said he returned for more money the same day after his 14-year-old brother had told him he needed $20. Total taken from the firm was about $40, Young said.

Sheriff Young said firm officials were apparently mistaken as to location of the money. They had reported that it had been kept in a safe which was locked at the time. The boy said he had entered the building through a trap door, and on the second entry had forced the desk drawer.

Burglary of the Scarth Feed and Seed Store Monday was also admitted by the boy who said he took $2 in nickels after entering through a side door. Monday night he entered the Turkey Growers plant in Silverton, taking a small amount of cash, he said.

The boy and his brother became suspects in the case when they reported spending an unusual amount of money for candy, hamburgers, etc. and one of the boys had bought a cigarette lighter. The youth is scheduled to appear in Marion County Juvenile Court, but is now in the custody of his parents.

Stewart said the 1955 Legislature had approved long-delayed plans to tax utility companies on the same basis as locally assessed property. The study also is in line, he added, with the current statewide tax reappraisal program.

In his new post Mason will study methods used by the utility section, with special emphasis on utility income capitalization and on stock and debt value.

Parker, 28, of Scio, was arrested by Linn County sheriff's deputies Tuesday and jailed here in lieu of $2,000 bail.

The housewife said the attack occurred after an Aumsville dance last Saturday night.

Salem, County Make Joint Study of Sewage Problem

City and county engineers are cooperating in an effort to determine the most feasible plan for providing sewage disposal in the prospective sanitary district south of Salem.

County Engineer John Anderson reported in Marion Court Wednesday that Salem City Engineer Harold Davis has agreed to investigate the possibility of using a main trunk sewer passing through the south end of Salem for anticipated sewage from the proposed new district.

Anderson said that if the city's main trunk does not have sufficient capacity to handle the extra load, residents of the area will probably have to resort to using a natural drainage ditch passing through the area.

Anderson pointed out that should residents of the area decide to form a drainage district they would also have to devise a plan to accommodate surface water drainage.

In another drainage area matter concerning a complaint from a resident along Market Road No. 1 about a flooded culvert, Assis'ant
