Movie Patrons Soon To Try for $1 Million

By EVE STARR

HOLLYWOOD — STARR REPORT: Well, start looking for "The $1,000,000 Question." Only don't look for it on your TV set. That cheap little gimmick can only pay off $64,000. For the really big money you're going to have to go to the movies.

Back in the days when radio started keeping people home nights, the movie people came up with things like free dishes and Bank Night — Anything to get the customers away from their radios and and back into the theaters. But those were peanut ideas. The bait now is going to be a neat $1,000,000 — which is quite a price to put on the head of the villain of the piece, television.

It's not going to happen tomorrow morning, but two of the major studios are reported to be looking for stories which not only make good pictures but also will provide them with some kind of quiz or contest gimmick which will enable some lucky moviegoer to win $1,000,000. An unconfirmed rumor has it that Hal March will star in the picture, supported by a Marine captain and two shoemakers. There will be a young boy in it, too, played by George Wright.

No kidding — they're serious about this. They want to give away $1,000,000 to lure the people back into the theaters. All they need is the gimmick. If you can come up with it, you can make money with it a lot faster and easier than competing with 160,000,000 other citizens for that lone $1,000,000 prize.

One other small point. Earning $1,000,000 in a single year puts you up in the 90 per cent tax bracket. All you get to keep is $100,000. A pittance. I'd rather stay home and watch "Kukla, Fran and Ollie."

LEAVE IT TO Liberace to do the unusual. Come August, he and brother George will invade Dallas for a two-week stand in "The Great Waltz" at the Dallas State Fair. Lee will play the role of Johann Strauss in his crack at the legitimate theater. He's also set for a pair of Las Vegas dates in April and November. And sometime during his concert tour, he'll head east to open the new Rochester (N.Y.) Memorial Auditorium.

JUNE HAVOC, whose first venture into a TV film series of her own wasn't overly successful, is about to try it again. Her first one, of course, was "Willy," in which she was miscast as a female New Hampshire lawyer—about as far removed from June Havoc as it's possible to get. The show lasted just one season on CBS before being yanked and put into syndication. This time around, June is going to do "Winnie Winkle," based on the comic strip that's been around more years than I care to remember. And I remember every one of them. June should be great in this one. She's a splendid talent, far better than she ever had a chance to prove in "Willy".

LAUGH OF THE WEEK: A film syndicate has acquired the old Joan Davis series, "I Married Joan," and is selling it to individual stations. The ads they're running in the trade papers first call her "the clown queen of TV" (they never heard of Lucille Ball or Imogene Coca?) and then go on to say, "We've just pried her off the network" to make her available to local advertisers. Pried? The show was so badly clobbered by the "Disneyland" competition that both the sponsor and the network dropped it like a hot potato.

STARDUST: A CBS executive, presumably speaking for the network, has come out publicly against pay-as-you-see TV. Says it would be like charging admission to public parks and libraries. He forgets that right alongside the free public parks and free libraries there stand private parks (Disneyland, for one) and bookstores where you can pay your money and take your choice. And to my certain knowledge, the existence of pay-as-you-read bookstores has never affected the good health of our public libraries, now has it? No, it hasn't . . . Now there's a new kind of series—commercials. Those John and Marsha cartoons, turned out by Storyboard, will be used in many different situations for the same product.

SHORT SHOTS: Watching Red Skelton eating a wholly imaginary box of candy the other night proved to me all over again that this is one of our great, great clowns. When Skelton is relaxed and enjoying himself, as he now is these days, there is just no one who can touch him . . .
