By MRS. GEORGE GREGOR
Chairman, YWCA Budget Shop

How many really nice clothes are hanging in your closet that you are tired of seeing there? Then look in Johnnie's and Susie's dresser drawers and closets — don't you see things there they have outgrown and you just can't think of anyone to whom to give them? And look at Dad's closet — hasn't he been gaining a little too much weight to wear that suit anymore? Those of you with teen-age daughters and sons know that they like to have nice things, but that they tire of them quickly.

Why not bring them to the YWCA Budget Shop at 141 S. Winter on Mondays or Fridays and let us sell them to someone who can really use them? The store hours are from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m., but merchandise is not accepted after 3 p. m.

All merchandise must be clean, in style, in season, and in good condition. The owner receives 75 per cent of the selling price agreed upon, and the YWCA receives the additional 25 per cent for handling. After we have kept merchandise for two months, it is automatically marked down 20 per cent. At the end of four months, if the merchandise still has not sold, and the owner does not care to reclaim it, it becomes the property of the YWCA, and is marked down to half price to clear.

Two Hundred Women Volunteer

It is interesting to know that there are nearly 200 women who work on this project in a volunteer capacity. Six work in the morning and the same number in the afternoon, either as regulars or whenever they are called on to help.

Many hours are spent by the women who work behind the scenes to make this project a success. There are two who telephone the workers; two more who spend one or two days the first part of the month to go through the merchandise and mark down the prices; two who do the bookkeeping — a mountainous task — which means paying all the current bills; figuring amounts owed to owners of merchandise and writing checks for same, which amount to three or four hundred checks a month — and then making the books balance.

Another necessary job is typing of all file cards, envelopes and master file and placing advertisements in the paper each week. These are all very responsible jobs without which the shop could not function.

The proceeds from the YWCA Budget shop have helped in a small measure to pay off the mortgage of the new YWCA building of which Salem is so proud and the volunteer workers get a great deal of satisfaction as a result of these many hours spent working here.

Miss Truman to Retire From Writing, to Continue Television

By JANE EADS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON (U)—Margaret Truman, on the eve of publication of her first literary effort, an autobiography, says she will permanently retire from the writing field.

"Never again!" said Miss Truman, firmly and with an expression akin to distaste.

This, apparently, is a month of decision for the daughter of the former president. At the end of the week, Miss Truman also will retire from network radio, after a 18 week stint. Since early November she has acted as mistress of ceremonies and majorette domo of a magazine-type program, "Week Day," on the air five and one-half hours a day.

"I'm going to do television," continued Miss Truman. "I like to do television and you can't do both. Besides, with television, you don't have to start work so early in the morning—and I'm not like my father that way. Not at all."

Writing a Difficult Task

Miss Truman, in Washington for a party in her honor, said that she found writing her memoirs one of the most difficult tasks she's ever encountered. A taste for privacy is strong in her, she explained, and sometimes she found it harrowing to relate even the most casual occurrences when she knew it would be read by strangers. What helped, she said, was her habit of keeping diaries.

In the first of a three-part series appearing in the current issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, Miss Truman touches wryly on the disadvantages and problems of being an "eligible" and spotlighted girl living in the White House. One definite discourager of romance was the constant presence of a secret service man.

Press Tried to Marry Her

"The press," she writes, "yearned to get me married or at least engaged. . . . There were times when I may have felt wistful to go along with this program, if only because it offered the chance of becoming a private citizen again, but actually I made up my mind early in the game that I would not marry when I lived in the White House."

Besides, she adds: "Consider the effect of saying good night to a boy at the door of the White House in a blaze of floodlights, with a secret service man in attendance. . . . There's not much you can do except shake hands, and that's no way to get engaged!"

Many Romance Rumors

"It has always amazed me when I think of how many people I've been rumored engaged to," Miss Truman told an interviewer. "One night recently I went to the theater with a young man and said hello to a columnist when I didn't even think my escort was around. The next day, of course, there was a romance item with his name right down to the middle initial."

"The strangest one of all, though, was a printed report of my engagement to an upstate New York editor whom I had never even met. He finally telephoned me long distance and told me a little nervously that he did have a fiancée named Margaret and that she wasn't taking the news any too well. But we couldn't figure out where the story started."

Any romance at the moment? Miss Truman smiled.

"I've been in politics long enough," she said, "to have learned how to chatter a lot and say nothing."

Modern Etiquette

By ROBERTA LEE

Q. How does a divorced woman, who has returned to live with her parents, notify her friends and acquaintances of her change in address?

A. She can have ordinary visiting cards printed with her name alone, and her parents' address, and mail these out.

Q. How can a couple who have just moved into a new home notify all their good friends of their new address?

A. Their double visiting card, with their new address engraved on it and a written message such as, "We hope you'll visit us soon," is a good way.
