Adult Program Adds Machine Shop Classes

Two new evening machine shop classes are being organized by the Vocational Adult Education section of Salem schools, Supervisor Paul F. Wilmeth announced Tuesday.

One of the classes in machine shop practice will serve as a refresher course for persons desiring additional practice, instruction and skill on such machines as radial drills, shapers, millers and lathes. The class will start at 7 p. m. Thursday under John Dickson.

Machine shop technology, a combination of related technical instruction and actual shop practice, is scheduled to get underway at 7 p.m. next Tuesday under the guidance of Artemy Cross who teaches the day classes.

Students will receive instruction in shop mathematics, print reading and interpretation and basic metals.

Three new Logan lathes have been added to facilities for classes which are held at the West Salem shop, Wilmeth announced. Additional information on classes is available through the Adult Education office.

Control Board Hears Plea for Food Rationing

The Oregon Board of Control received a recommendation Tuesday that it adopt a uniform rationing and accounting system for food service at the state institutions in the Salem area.

The report came from a committee which the board appointed last May. The committee said the system "would assure inmates and patients of institutions nutritionally adequate, attractive and wholesome diets on an economical basis."

Members of the committee are Leon D. Margosian, of the Management Research Division of the State Finance and Administration Department; Miss Elsie Maxwell, food consultant to the Board of Control; and A. M. Richardson, food manager of the Oregon State Penitentiary.

A similar system has been in effect at the penitentiary for the past two years. The system also is used by most of the larger states, the federal prisons and U.S. veterans hospitals.

Margosian told the board that the food is good at all institutions with the possible exception of the Oregon State Hospital.

The board indicated it would carry out the plan, although it will take several months to put it into effect. There are 9,000 institution inmates.

Under the system, all meals are planned in advance on the basis of daily caloric and vitamin requirements of each individual.

Dairy Board Headed by Lee Albright

Lee B. Albright, McMinnville, has been named chairman of the reorganized, seven-member Oregon Dairy Products Commission.

Governor Elmo Smith recently named the committee personnel under the provisions of the Commodity Commission act. Commission members include Fred C. Klaus, Salem; Frank Rood, North Bend; Lyle W. Hammack, Portland; George Hosteler, Redmond; John Giegener of Tillamook; Wilbur Reeling, Klamath Falls, and Albright.

Klaus and Hammack are industry representatives on the commission. All others are dairy producers.

J. H. Short, state agricultural department director, and F. E. Price, dean of agriculture, Oregon State College, are ex-official members, and Glen Lay, executive secretary for the dairy industry, has been retained as executive secretary for the commission.

Reeling has been named vice chairman with Hammack, secretary-treasurer.

Cascade Firm Buys Land Near Plant

New entrance to the Cascade Meat Co. plant near Kapphan Road will be made possible through an approximate $30,000 purchase Monday of 11 acres of land in two tracts bordering the road. G. F. (Ted) Chambers, president of Cascade Meats reported Tuesday.

The 11 acres are along the northern border of the original Cascade property and bring to about 195 acres the land owned by the firm. The original land touches on both the Southern Pacific and Oregon Electric trackage.

Chambers said the two tracts were purchased from Mr. and Mrs. John McGowan and Mr. and Mrs. Selmer C. Espeland.

Hieroglyphics Confusing

Deciphering efforts of many postal clerks finally delivered the above letter, held by Seward P. Reese, dean of Willamette University College of Law, to the law school Monday. The hieroglyphic-like scribbling on the envelope, mailed by a Durham, N. C., lawyer, indicated it is to be delivered to Dean Reese and to the law school librarian. "I knew most attorneys were poor writers," said Dean Reese, "but not this bad." (Statesman photo)

School Board Will Consider Physical Education Change

Changes in state laws governing health and physical education programs in the public schools will be considered Thursday night by the Salem School Board at its regular session.

Prior to the action of the 1955 legislature, physical education was mandatory in the schools from grades 1 through 12. The new law left the policy up to the State Board of Education which has provided that PE become an elective for high school juniors and seniors.

Parking problems, aggravated by increased evening activities at North Salem High School, will also be up for consideration. Chief problem is one of control, says Dr. Walter Snyder, Salem school superintendent.

Also on the agenda will be consideration of a request by the Salem Heights Water District to dig a well on Jones Road property south of Salem where one of the new junior high schools will be constructed.

Board Clerk C. Connell Ward will give a report on complication of school voting by the new law which requires signing of the poll book by all voters.

School addition plans are going ahead rapidly, Dr. Snyder reports, and at least three projects will be ready for bids in a few weeks. Final plans for the two - room Middle Grove addition should be ready for board approval at the first March meeting, Snyder said. Four Corners and Morningside additions should be ready about the same time, he added.

All three projects, with an addition at Washington School, are scheduled for completion in time for use when school reopens this fall.

A complaint was received in Marion County Court Tuesday from a Brooks resident who asserted that improvements of a county road had impaired natural drainage resulting in the flooding of his property.

Richard Harrison requested the county to relieve the situation as soon as possible. The county engineer's office reported it would take corrective steps when conditions permit.

Tax Committee Slates Meeting

The legislature's interim tax committee will meet Friday and Saturday at the Capitol to continue its study of Oregon's tax structure and the effect of taxes on industrial development.

It also will hear reports from subcommittees on taxation of timber and utilities.

Healy Files; Reese Seeks Convention Bid

William E. Healy, assistant secretary of state for the past eight years, Tuesday officially filed for the Republican nomination to Congress from the 1st District.

Healy, who announced his intentions to shift from the secretary of state race last week, is the second Republican to file for the post which will be vacated by Rep. Walter Norblad.

Filing earlier was R. F. Cook, Silverton turkey grower. Salem Attorney Jason Lee has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination; several other Republicans are reportedly considering entering the race.

Also filing Tuesday was Seward Reese, dean of the Willamette University law school, who is seeking one of the two Republican positions from the 1st Congressional District to the Republican National Convention.

Republicans authorize two delegates from each of the four congressional districts and ten from the state at large. Pat Roden, Salem, has also filed for delegate to the convention which is scheduled for San Francisco beginning August 29.

Reese attended the 1952 convention in Chicago as an alternate delegate to the late Carl Hogz of Salem. He has been law school dean since 1946.

Other filings Tuesday were District Attorney Sidney B. Lewis, Republican of Benton County for reelection; Charles K. Hines, Mapleton Republican, for state representative from Lane County.

Diphtheria Victim's Last Rites Planned

Private graveside services for four-year-old Daniel Lomax, who died of diphtheria Sunday in Junction City, will be 1:30 p.m. Thursday at Belcrest Memorial Park, the Rev. Gerald Linanen officiating.

The boy was born in Salem Jan. 9, 1952, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lomax of Toledo.

Besides his parents, he leaves two sisters, Marie and Diane Lomax, and brother, Douglas Lomax, all of Toledo; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Myers, Junction City, and Mrs. Opal Lomax, Salem; and great-grandmothers, Mrs. Nora Kufner and Mrs. Ed O'Conner, both of Salem.

Murphy Funeral Home of Junction City is in charge of arrangements.

Groups Ask County Help

Petitions from three residential groups asking for county aid were received at Marion County Court Tuesday.

The need for additional stop signs on the county roads in the Marion area was explained in one of the petitions, while another was concerned with the condition of a county road extending south from the Willamette River in the Butteville area.

The third petition came from 71 residents interested in the improvement and extension of McCain Avenue and Satter Drive northeast of Salem.

All petitions were referred to the county engineer's office for further study.

Salem Firemen Make Three Runs

Salem firemen made three runs Tuesday, all for smoking heaters or furnaces which did no damage.

Calls were to Al Laue, 2350 State St., 11 a.m.; R. L. Eltheridge, 485 Lorida Ave., about 11:20 a.m.; and Willamette Grocery Co., 305 S. Cottage St., 5 p.m.
