Liquor Tax Refund Would Enrich State

Oregon would be nearly a million dollars richer if tax refund claims prepared by the Oregon Liquor Control Commission against the United States Treasury are granted, Gov. Elmo Smith said Tuesday. W. H. Baillie, liquor commission administrator, reported to Gov. Smith that the claims for refunds from the Treasury Department total $929,746. In addition, the commission has a claim against National Distillers, Inc., amounting to $31,940 for a refund of taxes paid by the commission through the distillers.

The claims for refunds are based on taxes paid by the commission in 1952. The claims contend that the increased rate of tax on all distilled spirits in bond from $9 to $10.50 on each proof gallon, effective Nov. 1, 1951, imposed on floor stocks was "illegally and assessed, collected and paid." Because the $1.50 additional tax constitutes a direct tax on property, it is contended that the tax as assessed is "illegal under the U. S. Constitution because it was not apportioned nor laid in proportion to the census as therein provided."

The largest of the claims, Baillie said, involves $926,499 for spirits and the other claim is on wines for $3,251. The claim against National Distillers, Inc., is contingent on that company winning its suit involving a claim already made by that company.

County to List Recreational Areas in Study

A list of the county's recreational facilities is being prepared by Marion County Court members in response to a request Tuesday from the state highway department which is assisting in a study being undertaken of the Northwest's growing recreational needs. County Commissioner Edward L. Rogers who is compiling the list said it would include seven areas totaling 220 acres that have been set aside by Marion County as public recreation land. The seven locations range in size from five to 61 acres, and include the 58-acre plot adjacent to and extending about two miles downstream from the Champoug Historic Park on the Willamette River north of Salem. The list does not include any municipally-owned parks, Rogers said.

They drove from New York and are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Pepper. Pepper will be employed with the Forestry Department at Astoria.

Elections Unit Eyes Use of Register List

Restricting the use of registration lists to political organizations played an important part in discussions by the 1955 legislative interim committee on election procedure at a meeting Tuesday in the Capitol. State Rep. E. H. Mann, Medford, insisted that use of the lists be restricted to political purposes only, while State Sen. Mark Hatfield, Salem, and Vernon Burda, a lay member of the committee, said civic groups, the grange and labor organizations should have permission to use such lists if county courts or county committees approved. All members of the committee agreed that the lists should not be used for commercial purposes and voted for legislation authorizing the counties to make the lists available to both political and civic groups.

There also was some discussion involving the purging of deadwood in the registration lists. Mrs. Frederick W. Young, also a lay member of the committee, said she had knowledge of one county in the state where the registration lists had not been purged for at least six years. "There are names of persons on these lists who have been dead for several years," Mrs. Young averred.

The committee then voted to recommend legislation authorizing the secretary of state to go into any county where the registration lists have not been purged and eliminate ineligible names with the cost of such operation chargeable to the counties.

Housing Real Problem for Hoop Tourney

The state A-2 basketball tournament next week is posing quite a problem for the housing committee of the Salem Exchange Club, sponsors. Sid Boise, committee chairman, said overnight accommodations for at least 500 boys and girls students are needed for Monday, Tuesday and, in many cases, Wednesday nights. Some will come from 300 miles. Teams, parents and coaches apparently can be accommodated at hotels and motels, but it's the "rooters" who worry the committee. They'll need places to sleep. Boise said anyone willing to have students stay overnight, at a nominal charge, may phone 4-9501 during business hours, "and we'd surely appreciate any facilities that could be made available."
