Cambridge is favorite to win the four mile, 400-yard race from Putney to Mortlake on the famed river Thames course and chalk up its 56th victory in the annual race. Oxford has won 45 and the race was tied once—in 1877.

A half-million race fans usually line the river banks.

There are no Americans in the race this year. Last year Phil Dubois of New York and Bob Monks of Boston helped Cambridge to a 16-length victory.

This year, for the first time, the race will be seen by Continental television viewers.
