Hero Dies Who Ended Killer's Reign of Terror 54 Years Ago

TACOMA (UP) — Death has claimed the hero of a legendary western saga.

Maurice Smith, who 54 years ago blocked killer Harry Tracy's reign of terror in the Northwest, died at Brinnon, Wash., on Hood Canal. He was 81.

In later years Smith served as a member of the State Legislature, on the Spokane City Council and as a State Liquor Control Board examiner.

But he is best remembered for his part in a gun fight on a sultry afternoon in an Eastern Washington barley field.

Met and Fought

There Smith succeeded where scores of law officers and countless soldiers failed. This is the story of how Maurice Smith and Harry Tracy met—and fought.

The date is June 9, 1902. Two convicts had scaled a wall of the Oregon State Penitentiary and vanished in the warm spring rain.

Behind, two prison guards lay dead. A third is dying after being shot off the wall.

In the thick woods, Harry Tracy and Dave Merill, the escapees, ran frantically, cradling smuggled rifles. Both had been serving time for armed robbery.

Miles Away

Miles away from the scene, a young lawyer, Maurice Smith, went about his business—unaware of his approach with fame and destiny.

The escape touched off one of the most intensive manhunts in the Northwest. Merill and Tracy, meanwhile, were working their way towards the Columbia River. They walked boldly into farm houses, announced who they were, and forced farmers to feed them.

The desperate killers commandeered horses, clothing and more guns while calmly eluding four companies of Oregon militia and numberless posses.

After the pair forced a farmer to row them across the Columbia, the bond between the convicts was abruptly parted. Tracy shot his partner for having informed upon him several years before.

Tracy Now Alone

Alone, Tracy made his way to Olympia, stole a tug boat and cruised to Seattle, where he openly taunted the law and killed several more men in escaping from two bitter gun battles.

Tracy roamed south of Seattle briefly, stole more horses, then headed over the Cascade Mountains to Wenatchee, where he again began his farmhouse terrorizing.

Tracy pressed on across the Eastern Washington prairies. His destination was "hole-in-the-wall," a Wyoming wilderness and haven for badmen.

The posses pursued him.

Near the little town of Creston, 50 miles west of Spokane, Tracy made a mistake. It was to cost him his life.

Stops Young Boy

Tracy stopped a young boy and forced him to an isolated ranch owned by two brothers. Tracy held the men captives, but allowed the boy to go back to town with the promise he wouldn't talk.

But the frightened boy did talk. And soon a five-man posse set out to bring down Tracy.

The heat clung to the farm as the men closed in. Tracy, with a full stomach and a bed, lost his sharp edge of awareness.

Maurice Smith, a veteran of the recent Spanish - American War, called upon Tracy to surrender when the killer walked out of a barn.

Tracy ducked back into the building, grabbed a gun and ran for a dry, shallow gully that sliced through a creekbed.

Guns blazed. Then Tracy made his last desperate bid for freedom down the gully.

Slowly, Calmly . . .

The lawyer fired slowly and calmly. He saw little puffs of dust kick up around the fleeing killer. Then there was no puff of dust.

The posse closed in—hearing a final muffled shot.

They found Tracy—and clutched to his breast was the rifle with which he had killed nine men—the last one was Harry Tracy.

Smith's last shot shattered the killer's leg. The manhunt was over and Tracy's body was taken to be buried in the grounds of the Oregon prison.

On the way to Salem, souvenir hunters literally hacked his coffin to pieces.

Maurice Smith's death, more than half a century after the gun fight, was attributed to a heart attack.

Funeral services are pending.

McNary Field Air Traffic Shows Gain

The current traffic count at McNary Field in three days exceeded the entire week's total of the count taken last September, John Evans of Portland said Tuesday night.

With 107 takeoffs and landings counted Tuesday, the three-day count was 832, substantially higher than the 762 seven-day total last fall, the Civil Aeronautics Administration representative said.

Pilots itching all winter for a slice of that wild blue yonder made 533 takeoffs and landings Sunday. The count was 192 Monday.

Tuesday's operation was more like last fall, when the average daily count was 109 and the highest for the week was 209.

Flyers are hoping the count this spring will be high enough to rate a CAA control tower for McNary Field. Ceiling and visibility requirements for flying are lowered for fields with control towers.

Fire Destroys Warehouse At Pendleton

PENDLETON, Ore. (UP) — A fire destroyed the Morrison-Knudsen Co. warehouse and shop at Barnhart, eight miles west of here, early Tuesday, and a few hours later another blaze destroyed the Pendleton city maintenance shop.

Both fires were of undetermined origin. No one was injured in either blaze.

The loss at the city building tentatively was estimated at $30,000 by City Manager Walter Crook. He said the building was insured.

Merlin Young, Morrison-Knudsen division office manager, said loss at the Barnhart building could not be determined for several days. He said the building held machine parts and tools.

One government expert estimates that although U. S. farm income has dropped 25 per cent in the last few years, the reduction in the number of farmers in the same period has been such that the reduction of average individual income has been only 9 per cent.

When an ad is ordered three or six times and a Sunday issue is included (for example Friday, Saturday, Sunday) the lower Sunday rates apply because only The Statesman publishes Sundays.

Classified ads will start in the morning Oregon Statesman, conclude in the evening Capital Journal — but ads will be accepted for Sunday Satesman only.

The deadline for classified ads is 1:00 p.m. the day before publication. Emergency ads and small line ads received after 1:00 p.m. may be placed in the "Too Late to Classify" column for the following morning.

Ads for Monday papers must be in by 5 p.m. Saturday.

The Statesman-Journal Newspapers reserve the right to reject questionable advertising; it further reserves the right to place all advertising under the proper classification.

The Statesman-Journal Newspapers assume no financial responsibility for errors which may appear in advertisements published in its columns and in cases where this paper is at fault will reprint that part of an advertisement in which the typographical mistake occurs.

A "Blind" Ad—an ad containing a Statesman-Journal Newspapers box number for an address — is for the protection of the advertisers and must therefore be answered by letter. The Statesman - Journal Newspapers are not at liberty to divulge information as to the identity of an advertiser using a "Blind" ad.

THIS NEWSPAPER STRIVES to protect its readers against fraud, deception, or injuries. Readers are cautioned to make NO PAYMENTS to get a position advertised in the help wanted columns. All help wanted ads MUST SPECIFY THE NATURE OF THE WORK. Sales help wanted ads must state if the pay is in the form of salary, commissions, guarantee, or include firm name. Bona fide offers of employment with pay belong to the "Help Wanted" columns.

Ads in other columns which require investment in stocks, samples, equipment or cash bond should be thoroughly investigaed before paying out any money. Advertisers requiring a cash investment for samples or merchandise, sales aids, etc., must so specify in their ads.

Kindly report any exception to this rule to the classified advertising manager.
