Russians' Velvet Gloves Policy Causing West to-Lower Guard

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON — Russia's new velvet glove foreign policy seems to be paying off on an ever widening scale.

This is happening despite frequent American warnings that the iron hand of Soviet power still threatens the free world.

The trend of events is creating a new challenge to United States leadership. This country is faced with the task of keeping alive the same spirit of unity and cooperation within the Western alliance which led to its creation eight years ago and to the development of a Western European-North Atlantic defense system which is credited here with forcing the changes in Soviet behavior.

The impact of the more friendly Soviet demeanor on the Atlantic defense system was sharply dramatized this week. The Parliament of Iceland called for removal of American troops from that strategic island or the northeastern flank of the North Atlantic Treaty area.

Icelandic Foreign Minister Kristinn Gudmundsson said he wanted American forces pulled out because of the easing of international tensions following the Geneva Summit Conference last July.

American officials are described as reasonably certain that the probability of maintaining Iceland as a secure base in the Western alliance can be worked out satisfactorily.

But the underlying forces which prompted the Icelandic action may be expected to create problems for the alliance in other areas.

In fact, it is doubtful whether the problems which have already arisen would have presented quite as many difficulties if Soviet policies had not shifted from hostility and threats against the free world to professions of peace and a desire for friendship.

Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party leader Nikita Khrushchev, who brought about the shift, are expected to emphasize it even more when they visit Britain in mid-April. They achieved considerable success last week with a free-wheeling speech tour of India. So far they are expected to follow the same pattern on their visit to England. American officials believe they will do so.

What the Bulganin-Khrushchev government has succeeded in doing insofar as the 15-nation Atlantic Alliance is concerned is to remove the fear of Soviet aggression which dominated the policies in Western nations when the alliance was organized. As the fear has decreased, nations have become preoccupied with other and more immediate issues. Some of these have created divisions within the alliance itself.

NATO Members

This is the cause of the British-Greek-Turkish dispute over the island of Cyprus. All three of these countries are members of NATO. Their cooperation is essential to the long range security of the Eastern Mediterranean area.

Even in the Palestine dispute, where the Atlantic Alliance is not involved, it is believed the hostile countries would be more restrained in their actions if they

Boys Given Tour of Russ U.S. Embassy

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Two Kalamazoo school boys home from a trip to Washington, D. C., told Saturday of a personally guided tour through the Russian Embassy.

Admitting their experience started out to be more of a prank, David Cook and Robert Awgatis, both 15, gave this account:

While in Washington with their classmates on an annual spring tour they sneaked away and presented themselves at the Russian Embassy.

When their knock was answered they thrust a sheet of paper at an attendant and asked him to sign it in Russian saying they had been there.

Instead, boys were invited in and given a guided tour. When it was over they were invited to come back the next day with their classmates.

The boys dutifully reported their experience to their congressman, Rep. August E. Johansen of Michigan's Third District. He checked with the FBI and advised the boys not to go back.

"He said the FBI told him hardly anyone got inside the embassy just to visit," Robert reported.

"But we sure did," he added proudly.

Boy Attacked By Giant Bird

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. — A bird with a 45-inch wing spread and a sharp beak attacked a 6-year-old boy, a woman and a state trooper near here Friday.

Trooper John Waters shot the bird with his .45 revolver as it swooped down on him. The bird, identified by a local resident as a bittern or stake driver, had a 4-inch beak.

Police said the bittern attacked Donald Van Voorhees as he played in his yard at nearby Rock City, Dutchess County. The bird backed at the boy with his beak.

Mrs. John Osterhoud, armed with a broom, ran to the boy's rescue. The bird turned on her but she managed to drive it into a barn.

When Trooper Waters arrived, he, too, was attacked before he killed the bittern.

None of the three was injured seriously. It was not known why the bird attacked them.

Teacher in Britain Now 'Different Sex'

HAYDON BRIDGE, England — When classes broke up for the Easter holiday at Shafte Trust School, students waved goodbye to their science teacher, Olive Bury.

When they return, they'll greet their science teacher, Donald Oliver Bury.

Same person.

Bury, 39 and a teacher at the school for 17 years, utilized the vacation to change her sex officially. The local registrar has altered Bury's birth certificate to read "Donald" instead of "Olive."

Headmaster Edward Waite termed the change "simply a legal correction" and would not affect Bury's place in the school.

"I intend to stand firmly by a teacher who has always given me most loyal service," Waite said.

"I don't know what all the fuss is about," said Bury. "I have simply made it clear that I'm a man and not a woman."

"I've been advised to leave Haydon Bridge to avoid embarrassment but I have not made up my mind yet."

When Bury first joined the school staff, she dressed occasionally in women's clothes. But for many years she science teacher has worn riding breeches and jacket as regular dress.

Palace Guards Watch for Crows

TOKYO — Crow watching was added Saturday to the duties of Imperial Palace guards.

Swans from the Palace moat laid four eggs Friday night. The guards were assigned to keep crows from breaking and eating the eggs.

'Mutilated' Lad Sundae Smeared

YAKIMA — An ambulance screamed to the scene of an automobile accident this week to take a "horribly mutilated" victim to the hospital.

The victim, 16-year-old Bill Murphy, stepped from the wreckage and declined help. The "mutilation," he explained was merely a raspberry sundae he was holding when the accident occurred.

The impact drove the car against his face and you can imagine the rest.
