IT SEEMS TO ME

By Charles A. Smyke

One doesn't have to be highbrow to enjoy the exhibition of paintings and sculptures from the collection of Walter P. Chrysler, Jr., now being shown at the Portland Art Museum. Most every one has an appreciation of color and form, and most of these paintings are exceedingly rich in color. Most of the canvases are from the art classics but there are a few in the modern or contemporary style to show products of that school. There is a range too among the national groups: Italian, French, Flemish, Spanish, English, Dutch. To help the uninitiated an illustrated catalog is available, and there are guided tours each afternoon in which the leader points out the significant features of the several works.

Perhaps the abiding impression carries away after viewing the exhibit is the perfection of the art—the skill in drawing, the attention to detail, the play of light and shadow, and the splendid use of color. The Italian paintings in particular were velvet smooth. It is the moderns who paint with palette knife or fingers. Another impression that lingers is the size of the canvases. Here we are accustomed to small or moderate sized paintings as for homes. The Europeans painted for churches and palaces and spacious halls; and apparently "time" was no object with them.

Most of the subjects are of groups, though there are a few pieces of portraiture. Many of the themes are religious, some from mythology. The collection does not include many landscapes, nor are there very many of the French impressionist school.

The display will continue on exhibition through Sunday, and all who can and have any interest in art at all should try to attend. It is a great achievement to bring this rare collection to Portland, and the people of this area should be very grateful to Mr. Chrysler for his loan, and to Thomas C. Colt, Jr., director of the Portland Art Museum for his part in obtaining the collection for local viewing.

The parade will start at 1 p.m. at the north end of the Capitol Mall and will travel through the business district. An informal reception, open to the public, is slated from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the Legion Club on S. Commercial Street.

Sponsors are 12 Salem organizations with which McKay has been associated during his residency here. William Hammond is the other co-chairman.

Mechanized Science Show Still Relies on Muscle

Norblad Says Filing Fee Not Transferred

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Norblad (R-Ore) said Tuesday he believed the legality of his filing for re-election had been challenged only because others did not know exactly what had happened the day he filed.

Norblad said in a letter to Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton of Oregon that he went to the filing office March 6 to withdraw from the gubernatorial race and transfer to the congressional race.

He said others were in the room when he talked with Dave O'Hara, state elections chief, about transferring the filing fee.

"A few minutes later I decided in my own mind to be absolutely certain regarding the matter and wrote out a check on my personal account at the United States National Bank at Astoria for the $100 filing fee for the congressional race."

"The persons who had been in the office and heard Mr. O'Hara and myself discuss the original intended transfer of funds were not present at the time I wrote out my $100 check and I accordingly believe the information which was transmitted to you was based upon the original conversation," Norblad wrote.

State Rep. Richard Groener, Milwaukie, had asked Thornton for an opinion on whether Norblad had filed legally. Thornton then invited Norblad to submit legal authority on the matter.

Norblad said there was no question in his mind that the $100 check made his filing legal.

At Salem, O'Hara agreed that Norblad had paid the $100 fee.

County Engineers Forming South Salem Sewage Plan

By CALVIN JOHNSON
Staff Writer, The Statesman

A preliminary engineering study to determine an effective sewage disposal system for the South Salem suburb has been started by Marion County.

The study, already begun, is expected to be completed within two or three months, County Engineer John Anderson said Tuesday night. It would include tentative boundaries for the potential sanitary district, main and lateral sewer lines, alternate methods of serving the district, and a preliminary cost estimate for the project.

Decision to authorize the preliminary study grew out of continuing reports of dangerous sanitary conditions from septic tank overflow into surface drainage ditches, water meter boxes and around water pipes in the area.

The most recent sanitary report was by Harold W. Merryman of Eugene, state board of health district engineer, who asserted that the only solution would be formation of a sanitary district initiated by the residents themselves, by a county court order, or through annexation to Salem.

If the engineering report on the district indicates that the project is economically feasible a public hearing to explain the findings and gather opinions of residents of the area will probably be called. County Judge Rex Hartley said Tuesday. A date to vote on the measure would then be set, Hartley said.

Should residents then decide to form the district, the county would be reimbursed for its engineering survey, Hartley said.

BERRY DAMAGE HIGH
GRESHAM (AP)—Berry fields in Eastern Multnomah County suffered greater damage than earlier believed, the county agricultural agent, William C. Averill, said Tuesday.

Parade of Progress to Open Tonight

General Motors' Parade of Progress, 30 vehicles long and almost exactly on its detailed timetable, rolled into Salem Tuesday for its five-day free show which opens at 7 p. m. tonight.

Crewmen, working with assembly line precision, were busy during the afternoon erecting the "big top" and getting displays in order for the show which after tonight will be open from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. daily.

They turned a portion of Bush's Pasture into a bright red and futuristic semblance of circus days, replacing the elephants with motor power in raising the metal framework for the show tent.

The convey of vans, trucks and brand new GM autos hit the parade assembly point for Salem after an hour trip from Corvallis within a matter of seconds of their scheduled arrival. It paused at edge of the city to take on city dignitaries including Mayor Robert F. White before continuing its parade through downtown and back to the show site.

An advance convoy went directly to the park earlier to lay out the aluminum alloy framework and decide on location of various exhibits.

A 40-minute scientific show inside the 1,250-capacity Aerodrome tent will be the major feature of Parade of Progress and is scheduled for six performances each on Thursday and Friday, and eight each on Saturday and Sunday. Midway shows will be continuous for the hours of the show.

Show site is on the softball area of the park.

Boards Chide PGE

PORTLAND (AP)—The Oregon Game Commission and Oregon Fish Commission said Tuesday that Portland General Electric Co. has started construction of Pelton Dam, but has not yet complied with certain requirements provided in the license granted by the Federal Power Commission.

Auto Found In Big Cliff Reservoir

DETROIT, Ore.—An old auto was found in Big Cliff Reservoir Tuesday.

State Police believe somebody shoved the jalopy into the little reservoir below Detroit Dam to get rid of it.

Police said the auto had been stripped of accessories and the steering wheel had been tied—apparently to make sure the car plunged into the drink.

License plates were missing and the motor number did not check with stolen cars on the list of the National Auto Theft Bureau, state police reported.

The car—a 1941 Chevrolet two-door—was exposed when the water level in the reservoir dropped to its lowest level of the winter season. Dam officials said rust on the car indicated it had been in the water for six months or longer.

Last June, Navy divers failed in a two-day effort to retrieve a car that went into Detroit Reservoir and carried four persons to death. That auto is still in the big reservoir.

School Board Group Asks For Sales Tax

A state sales tax to provide additional Basic School Fund contributions and to offset increases that would normally come from property taxes was unanimously recommended by members of the Marion County School Boards Association Tuesday night.

More than 50 per cent of the county's school boards were represented at the group's second convention in South Salem High school to hear reports on state and county school finance problems, teacher supply and comments on a sales tax by association committees.

Recommendations adopted at the meeting will be submitted to the next state legislature.

Request to Use GIs Hinted

Dulles Reviews Mid-East Crisis With Top Solons

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles paved the way Tuesday for a possible request that Congress give President Eisenhower blank check authority to use American troops in the Middle East if war dangers become acute there.

The secretary, keeping in close touch with Eisenhower, met for 1 1/2 hours with 14 key members of Congress at the State Department. Eight were Republicans and six were Democrats.

He reviewed with them the tense Middle East situation made even more serious by new Arab-Israeli bloodshed. It was reported that he skirted—but did not directly raise—the question of asking Congress for a Formosa-type resolution.

Focal point of Dulles' consultation with the congressional leaders was Monday's White House statement that any aggressor in the Middle East will have to reckon with U.S. opposition.

Plea Made for More Aides at Boys School

A sharp increase in juvenile delinquency has created an emergency so that the Boys Training School at Woodburn must hire five more employees immediately, James Lamb, superintendent of the school, told the Board of Control Tuesday.

Lamb was instructed to ask the State Emergency Board, which meets here May 6, for the funds to hire the additional employees. They would be a parole officer, counselor, teacher and two house parents.

Lamb said that 300 boys were committed to the school last year, but that the total this year would be around 400.

"If we don't get the additional employees," Lamb said, "we'll have to reduce the school population by paroling 125 boys who are not ready for parole."

The population of the school now is 300, or 50 more than a year ago.

At the same time, the Board of Control rejected preliminary plans for a building to house 90 boys at the school.

The architects, Jacobberger and Stanton of Portland, estimated the cost at $460,000, but the legislature appropriated only $380,000.

Advising the architects to draw new plans that would provide a building for the appropriated amount, Gov. Elmo Smith said "there wouldn't be a chance that we could get the extra $100,000 from the Emergency Board. We'd be wasting our time even looking at these plans."

Dorman Gets BPA Position

PORTLAND (AP)—Harry S. Dorman, Salem, Tuesday was named assistant to Administrator William A. Pearl of the Bonneville Administration.

Dorman, former state director of finance and administration, is to work chiefly on procurement, contract and management programs, Pearl said.

Dorman, former president of the Knight Packing Co. at Portland, became state budget director in 1949 and then director of the department of finance and administration upon its creation in 1951.

Nat (King) Cole Attacked by Whites on Alabama Stage

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—A group of white men attacked Negro singer and pianist Nat King Cole as he sang from the stage of Birmingham's Municipal Auditorium Tuesday night. Cole was not injured.

Six men were taken into custody after the attack. Four were charged with inciting a riot. The other two were found in a car which contained two .22 rifles, a blackjack and a pair of brass knuckles. They were questioned at length.

Cole was attacked in the first of two performances, which was for white patrons. Birmingham requires segregated audiences for such shows.

Cole gave a second performance for Negro patrons shortly after the attack.

Charged with inciting a riot are Willie Richard Vinson, 23; E. L. Vinson, 25; and Kenneth Adams, 35, all of Anniston, Ala.; and Jess W. Mabry, 43, Birmingham.

Questioned were Orilus Clevenger, 18 and Mike Fox, 37, both of Anniston.

Cole's manager Bob Schwartz, said Cole was not hurt.

"A physician already has examined Cole and he is not injured. Thank God for that," said Schwartz.

Cole was singing the second of two numbers in a concert billed for white customers only. Near the end of the number, four white men rushed him, three of them mounting the high stage and plunging over the footlights, knocking Cole and the microphone to the floor.

Shortly after the attack, Cole returned to the stage amidst the cheering of a crowd estimated at more than 3,000 persons. Some estimated the episode lasted more than five minutes.

"I just came here to entertain you," he said. "That was what I thought you wanted. I was born here. Those folks hurt my back. I cannot continue, because I have to go to a doctor."

Forecast for Oregon beaches is cloudiness this morning with light drizzles and partial clearing this afternoon. The temperature range will be about 55-57.

Republican Gov. William G. Stratton moved far out ahead of four challengers in his bid for re-nomination. His competitors are State Treasurer Warren Wright, Lar Daly, Anthony Polley and Sidney Ward.

Voters Ignore Estes

President Gets 268,373 Votes, Adlai 412,912

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, making his strongest showing of the 1956 political season, piled up a larger vote than President Eisenhower Tuesday night in mounting returns from the Illinois presidential preference primary.

Stevenson had a big advantage in Cook County (Chicago), the citadel of his Democratic party. Eisenhower was ahead in normally Republican downstate.

Eisenhower carried Illinois with almost 35 per cent of the vote when he overwhelmed Stevenson in the 1952 race for the presidency.

Write-in Support
Only the name of Stevenson was printed on the Democratic ballot in his home state. But Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who defeated Stevenson decisively in the New Hampshire and Minnesota primaries, received write-in support in Illinois.

Returns from 4,640 of the state's 9,511 precincts gave Stevenson 412,912. Sen. Kefauver received 4,794 write-ins in 2,871 precincts.

Apparently write-in votes were being passed over in many of the precincts to await a later count. They will be added up in the official canvass.

Eisenhower had two opponents on the Republican preference ballot—Sen. William F. Knowland of California, whose name was filed by voters although he is backing the President, and Lar Daly, a Chicago chair dealer.

Returns from 4,702 precincts gave Eisenhower 268,373. Knowland 13,594 and Daly 5432.

Stevenson former governor of Illinois who was supported by his home state's party organization, gathered 186,728 votes in Minnesota—his best previous showing—to 245,895 for Kefauver.

Stevenson's Illinois total also surpassed Kefauver's 223,261 Wisconsin vote.

One early basis for comparison of their Illinois vote was the count in 413 Chicago precincts. It was 72,999 for Stevenson and 518 write-ins for Kefauver, who did not campaign in Illinois.

Sen. Knowland, supported by an Illinois group which advocated a tax cut and opposed "the 10-year foreign aid plan," far surpassed his 3,200 Minnesota total.

Republican Gov. William G. Stratton moved far out ahead of four challengers in his bid for re-nomination. His competitors are State Treasurer Warren Wright, Lar Daly, Anthony Polley and Sidney Ward.

Short Summer Preview Ends

The Salem area's short preview of summer ended Tuesday as south winds blew up clouds and some afternoon rain.

Forecasters said idyllic weather which blessed the sector Sunday and Monday won't return for at least a couple days. Outlook for today is mostly cloudy with showers this morning, and some decrease in inclement conditions this afternoon. Tuesday's rainfall measured .20 of an inch and temperatures fell off some.

Forecast for Oregon beaches is cloudiness this morning with light drizzles and partial clearing this afternoon. The temperature range will be about 55-57.

South River Road Farm Section Sold

Sale of the west section of Rhoten-Speerstra farm, located on South River Road, was announced Tuesday by Stevens Realtors. The consideration was reported at "over $45,000."

Buyers were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Love and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Forrey from Everett, Wash. In making the purchase they said they planned to reactivate the 105 acre tract into a Grade A dairy.

George Rhoten and Sam F. Speerstra, sellers of the property, retained the turkey brooder area and remaining west acreage.

The purchasers, a family group, report they plan intensive improvements on the large dairy farm. Tentative plans are for a dairy herd of approximately 80 head.
