PORTLAND &-The Multnomah County grand jury Tuesday indicted James B. Elkins, 55, and Raymond F. Clark, 33, both of Portland, on charges of illegal wire tapping.

The indictment accused Elkins and Clark of "willfully and unlawfully" obtaining "all or part of a private telecommunication beween William M. Langley and Dorothea B. Anderson." Langley is the county district attorney and Dorothea Anderson is his private Newest boat on the Salem waterfront isn't a pleasure craft. It's a cue boat to be used for river emergencies. The 20-foot cabin craft, brainchild and property of the Willamette Search and Rescue Unit, had its maiden launching on Monday.

Some 20 members of the unit, most of them volunteers from the city police force, built the craft with an eye on the sharp increase in poating and the greater possibilities of river mishaps.

The trim boat, carrying grappling irons, first aid kit and other emergency equipment, will be on call 24 hours a day. Off-duty officers will largely man it but at times when seconds count on-duty Plan Blocked members will rush into action. Standby Duty

Action by House Due Soon

Soil Bank Plan Included, Price Supports Sliced

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate accepted a compromise version of the "second round" farm bill Tuesday, passing it on a voice vote and sending it to the House, where legislative action may be completed

The bill is tailored closely to President Eisenhower's pattern. Its big feature is a $1,200,000,000 soil bank system for paying farmers to cut down their production.

The bill was agreed upon by a Senate-House Conference Committee earlier in the day. Prospects appeared bright for a favorable House vote and for Eisenhower's acceptance of the measure as a substitute for the bill he vetoed April 16.

'broomstick balancing" system will be built into the rocket that launches the first babymoon satellite into outer space. it was disclosed Tuesday night.

Engineer Peter Freeman of the Glenn L. Martin Co. of Baltimore, Navy-appointed prime contractor for the satellite launching vehicle, disclosed the plans in a talk prepared for the Washington section of the Institute of Radio Engineers

Freeman described in some detail the prospective control mechanism for the unusual finless rocket that will jitney the satellite into a globe-encircling path. The satellite's orbit will carry it in an elliptical course haps 1,500 miles above the earth's surface. The huge, 72-foot three-stage rocket will be controlled in its upward flight, he said, by an electronic and mechanical system based on the same principle used by a small boy "to bal-ance a broomstick on his hand." He explained that the rocket bearing the satellite in its nose - will be kept from wobbling, swerving or rolling endover-end in much the same way a voungster keeps a broomstick in his hand by moving his hand from side to side or forward and back. In the case of the rocket vehicle. Freeman said, the trick will be accomplished in this Gyroscopes will be used within the rocket as "reference" guides to an accurate path. But, if the rocket shows a tendency to get off the beam, various control gadgets will take over.

These gadgets will be tied in with the rocket's propelling motors which will be arranged on semi-pivots. The pivots will allow the motors to automatically tilt and proved directional changes in the stream of exhaust gases surging from the vehicle's stern.

It will be these changes in the direction of thrust that will keep the vehicle from pitching like a boat, "yawing" from side to side, or rolling end-over-end.
