Mrs. William Leeper is heading

Our spirits lifted as we watched two teenage girls in their billowing skirts and flat shoes wander from one department to another yesterday. Their faces were sweetly intense as they considered different arrangements and color schemes and several times we overheard the expression "our dream house." Standing against the background of the unusually beautiful maple pieces we so proudly display in our show rooms, their dream house seemed to come to reality before our eyes. Maple so easily lends itself to a feeling of beauty and hominess especially when the out of the ordinary and quaint pieces which were copies of the cherished furniture of our grandmothers are used. The small overstuffed settees in provincial print or the benches with plaid seats would be perfect in a hall with small scaled brass lamps... a black stenciled Hitchcock chair brought in for interest. The gossip chairs with the little drawer under one arm would be fun to use for the telephone. In a family room the round coffee table with four milking stools placed about it would be especially enjoyed by the children. Use a small oval dining table with captain's chairs in the family room with a matching china cabinet or hutch to display cherished old glass. Little louvre front cabinets would serve beautifully instead of end tables especially when topped with the brass and ruby font lamps we show. For a real conversation grouping use a small lady's desk or larger secretary with accompanying lamp and chair with provincial print seat. For room accessories we show scores of carefully selected items such as wall shelves, condiment chests, clocks, pictures, lavabos, oil lamp brackets, sconces and of course, lamps from the coach type pin-ups in black with brass trim to the maple and brass floor lamps with their pretty plaid tufted shades. Just to walk through the maple display makes one feel young in heart.
