Rodeo Prize Fund for 1956 Totals $9,400

Statesman News Service

ST. PAUL—Prize money totaling $9,400, plus entry fees, will be offered to cowboys competing in the 21st annual St. Paul rodeo July 1 to 4. John McKillip, president of the St. Paul Rodeo association, announced this week.

The calf-roping division will attract top money of $1,400, while $1,200 will be awarded in each of five other divisions—bronco riding, bull dogging, bareback riding, Brahma bull riding and the wild horse race. The wild cow milking division will offer $1,000.

A total of $750 in prize money will be awarded in the race events as follows: Pony express, $300; St. Paul derby, $200; cowgirls' race, $150, and boys' pony race, $100.

In addition there will be $250 cash for the all-around cowboy champion, who will also have his name engraved on the President's trophy, which was presented to the rodeo association by Jackson Jewelers of Salem.

There will be four performances of the rodeo, opening with an afternoon show on July 1 and following with night shows on July 2 and 3 and a final afternoon show on July 4. The Independence Day performance will be preceded by a western parade, starting at 10 a. m. McKillip reported there will be free fireworks displays at the rodeo grounds following each of the night performances.
