

Four Named to New Lieutenant Rank on Salem Police Force

Salem City Council Monday night promoted four police sergeants to the new grade of lieutenant, took initial steps on Front Street and Market Street improvements and granted a West Salem Bus Co. request for service and fare changes.

Promoted to police lieutenant were Don Nicholson, Walter Esplin, Robert Mason and David Bain.

When the City Budget Committee recently increased police salaries, the new grade was established as a method of pay increase for present sergeants. Under civil service, only the four existing sergeants would have been eligible to take examinations for lieutenant grade anyway.

Now, the sergeants get their promotion by Council action, leaving three new sergeant openings to be filled from civil service promotion lists. At present patrolmen are assigned to desk sergeant shifts during the regular sergeants' days off.

Projects on Agenda
The Market Street action was a Council declaration of intention to charge property owners for part of the surfacing of Market Street east of 21st Street.

Officials found that the three-block section east of 21st near had been paved at property owners' expense, as had been the rest of Market Street. Following the general city policy, it was decided to have these owners pay for that part of the paving equivalent to cost of a 30-foot-wide improvement.

Improvements Helped
Aldermen received a petition from several Front Street business requesting improvement of the surface of that street from Trade to Marion. The Council was told by City Engineer J. H. Davis that extensive patching already is underway and that a "semi-permanent" improvement is justified provided the two railroads will cooperate by improving the track areas. Negotiations with the railroads was authorized.

The West Salem bus changes will include elimination of night service Monday and Friday nights when higher fares will be charged. The routine will be reversed but cover about the same area as now.

At Alderman David O'Hara's suggestion, the franchise term was limited to five years instead of the balance of the former West Salem 20-year franchise which has another 10 years to run.

Annexation Started
"With all the difficulties of public transportation systems today," said O'Hara, "conditions may develop here to make it undesirable to have that long a franchise."

The Council initiated annexation proceedings for a 3.43-acre area abutting east city limits at East Park Avenue, and referred to the Planning Commission another requested annexation from an area west of Washington School and south of Hill Street.

Fairbanks Morse was authorized a contract for three pumps to be used in new Salem sewage pumping stations, at low bid price of $2,944. Also authorized was $1,311 expenditure, to be matched by the state, for new traffic signal controller equipment serving nine intersections. City Manager Franzen said the synchronizing equipment was wearing out from heavy traffic.

Monroe Check was re-elected to a six-year term on Salem Civil Service Commission.

Final legislation was passed for an Oregon Electric spur track serving American Can Co. and for a setback line waiver for a new service station project at southwest corner of Mission and South Commercial.

Pumps Pour Floodwater Into Columbia

PORTLAND (AP)—An emergency pumping system was rigged Monday to relieve a threatened dike near the old East Vanport lowlands in North Portland. Pumps Monday night were pouring more than 14,000 gallons of water a minute back over the dike and into Columbia Slough.

Army Engineers, diking district workers and county crews worked around the clock Sunday night and Monday to install the pumping system, after a sand "boil" had enlarged and threatened to weaken the levee.

A turret of sandbags was built around the surging "boil" and engineers allowed water to rise over to create added weight and slow the underground leak. The dike protects hundreds of acres containing the Portland Meadows race track and truck gardens in the Vanport area, scene of the 1948 flood disaster that cost a dozen lives.

This area was causing the most concern along the lower Columbia River, as the stream continued a gradual fall from a peak of nearly 27 feet reached last week. That was almost 12 feet above flood level at Vancouver.

The Monday level was 25.6 feet, a drop of 3-10ths of a foot from Sunday. Forecasts said it would remain at 25.6 until Thursday when another 2-10ths drop was expected.

Valley Youth Chosen Boys State Officers

CORVALLIS (AP)—Several Marion and Polk County boys were elected to official posts Monday at the annual Beaver Boys State, six-day training period on citizenship sponsored by the American Legion.

The delegates were divided into five counties and 10 cities. Jim Travis, Independence, was elected mayor of Helena. Mont. Dick Buchanan, Salem, was named to the city council of Salt Lake City and George Gerspacher, Sublimity, was elected to the Seattle city council.

Lawrence Wolf, Sublimity, was named Seattle city recorder. Terry Frost, Stayton, was named to the Phoenix, Arizona council, and Robert Kouf, Silverton, is Phoenix town marshal.

Dr. Harold M. Erickson, state health officer, addressed the section Monday afternoon. He said health is the greatest resource of the nation and that this country has less illness than other parts of the world because of better sanitation and medical facilities.

Auto Crushes Gresham Girl

GRESHAM (AP)—Helen Fay Charlton, 3, stepped on the running board of her father's car as he backed it out of the garage Monday. Unnoticed, the child grabbed the door handle. The door opened and threw the girl under a front wheel, killing her outright.

The father, Richard D. Charlton, told sheriff's deputies he was not aware the girl was in the garage until he heard her cries.

Hundreds Launch Summer Recreation Slate in Salem

Hundreds of Salem children turned out Monday for the opening of the summer recreation program at school playgrounds and swimming pools.

Many waited impatiently for hours for the pools at Olinger and Leslie to open at 1 p.m. Several were waiting outside the gate at 6:30 a.m. when he came to turn off the water after letting Leslie Pool fill overnight. David L. Putnam, Leslie area director, said, "Hank L. Juran, Olinger area director, said one boy was on deck at 7:30 a.m. and 'there must have been 50' by 11 a.m. Both pools will open at 10 a.m. starting today, except for 1 p.m. openings Sundays. Closing will be 9 a.m. daily."

Miami Test On Bus Ruling Seen in Arrest

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Negro was arrested Monday night after he refused to move to the rear of a Miami Transit Co. bus in what many develop into a bus boycott. Rudolph Reid, 18, was charged with tending to create a breach of the peace and released on $500 bond.

Reid, an organizer of a local youth council in the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, denied he wanted to be arrested to create a test case but Neal Adams, 30, member of the NAACP, said the bus company "will be sued" and that "it could mean a bus boycott."

This was not planned as a test case, but there will probably be repercussions and a test case had to come sooner or later," Adams said.

Reid said "I was sitting across from the door. A white lady sitting behind me moved up front." "The bus driver asked me to move to the rear of the bus and I refused. He asked me if I could see and I said 'yes' but that I was happy where I was sitting. A policeman got on the bus. I told him I didn't want to move back because it was too hot back there. He told me I was under arrest."

Told to Obey Laws
The city's segregation ordinance are patterned after state laws which provide for segregation in public conveyances. Octavio Cuevas, executive vice president of the bus company, said: "We have told all of our employees that they are to obey all the laws of the state and the city. Evidently the driver, Henry Albrandt, was acting under these general instructions."

Local NAACP leaders voted Friday to begin a program to end segregation by "lawful and reasonable" means and to use boycotts only as a last resort. Adams said the idea of a boycott "will be given a great deal of study."

Bus boycotts previously have been put into effect in Montgomery, Ala., and Tallahassee, Fla., in protest to segregated seating on buses.

Missing Pickers Far From Patch

State police and Marion County sheriff's deputies conducted a five-hour search for two boys who disappeared from a strawberry patch in Mission Bottom before they were found by city police about 9:20 p.m. walking west on Dallas Highway.

The boys, Charles Lipton Swagerty, 9, and Jerry Edwin Swagerty, 8, were returned to their father, Tom Swagerty, 3305 Williams Ave., without giving an explanation of their action, police said.

High Winds Abate

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Strong winds which pounded the southern and eastern coasts of Australia with heavy seas the past two days began abating early Tuesday. One death was reported.

Water Cool at Pools

The water was cold. It entered the pools at 56 degrees, W. Vernon Gilmore, city playground director, said. "Nobody stayed in very long." Put in a.m. observed. "They just jumped in and climbed right out again."

Attendance was Heavy at Both Pools

Attendance was heavy at both pools, though, until the chill of early evening set in. Juran estimated as many as 150 in Olinger pool at one time. Total attendance was not noted at either pool. About 60 registered for the summer music program Monday morning at North Salem High School and a like number at Leslie Junior High School in the afternoon. Roy L. Shelton, music director, estimated. A third group will register 1 to 3 p.m. today at West Salem School.

Three Oregon State College forestry students will get scholarships totaling $1,500. They are Wallace N. Cory, Eugene; Harry M. Demaray, Dayton, and John S. Mothershead, Portland.

Scholarships of $500 each will go to Sandra Mae Lien, Brownsville, University of Oregon student; and Mary James Thoms, Sweet Home, Southern Oregon College of Education student.

Unwelcome Visitors

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—The safari (hunting) lodge in Murchison National Park has the craziest uninvited guests sometimes. One was an elephant. It ate up a grass sunshade over a window. Another was a rhinoceros. It called at the front door, kept the manager penned up inside for three hours.

Broader Business Zone Plan Expected for Pine, Broadway

Several of the property owners who oppose a single-property business zone creation at Pine and Broadway Streets will proceed now to petition the area in hopes of broadening the new business zone. That was the intention expressed by some of the citizens appearing Monday night before Salem City Council. The zone change for the property at the northwest corner, requested by Alfred W. Loucks, was granted by the Council.

Attorney Kenneth Sherman, representing Loucks, assured the neighboring property owners that they would receive Loucks' assistance in circulating the new zone change petitions.

"He isn't seeking the only service station at that intersection," said Sherman.

The attorney told the Council, however, that since matters of franchise contract and other business were already underway, any further delay in the zone change "would seriously hinder these business arrangements." Loucks had told city officials at two previous public hearings that he was planning for an Associated service station at the corner.

Attorney Steve Anderson, representing two of the objectors, argued that the change might be found an illegal "spot zoning" because of the surrounding area entirely in residences, because the neighborhood strongly opposed the change and because the Council three years ago revised the entire zoning of the city without putting any business zone in that area.

Cattlemen Vote For Supports

PRINEVILLE (AP)—The Oregon Cattlemen's Assn. members are voting in favor of a government support program, Ed Coles, secretary, said Monday. The result may not be final, however. Votes received to date show 307 in favor and 249 opposed to a federal program. The balloting period ended Saturday but the count will be continued until Tuesday to allow for late-arriving ballots.

The mail vote was called for when there was a 42-42 vote on federal price supports for the beef industry at the state convention. In the past the association has opposed price supports.

LeMay Seeks $3.8 Billion More Yearly

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Curtis LeMay asked Monday for an extra $3,800,000,000 each year for several years for his Strategic Air Command, Sen. Chavez (D-NM) reported.

Chavez heads a Senate appropriations subcommittee on defense spending. LeMay appeared before the subcommittee Monday in closed session.

The Senator said the strategic command is listed for about five billion dollars in the budget under consideration for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Chavez said LeMay proposed an extra $3,800,000,000 a year for the next four or five years and the Senator added he would be willing to "give it all to them." Much of the extra money would go to build more BSAs, the heavy eight-engine all-jet bomber designed for retaliation against nuclear attack.

Remonstrating neighbors, some of whom had first signed the Loucks petition, maintained that less than 50 per cent was signed up at the time the Planning Commission voted to recommend the change. Attorney Anderson declared that as of last night only 14 of 48 property owners involved were signed in favor of the zone change, including four with financial interests at stake.

Speaking in opposition to changing just the one property to a limited business (C-1) zone were Mr. and Mrs. Huey Frederick, Andrew Johnson, James Sanford and Joe Fields.
