Deep Down Old-Fashioned Type Pie Has Fruit, Meat

By MAXINE BUREN, Statesman Woman's Editor

The very thought of a deep dish apple pie somehow reminds one of old fashioned cooking, with lots of richness and flavor. Deep dish apple pies aren't the only kind possible to whip up and we found as we ran across several good sounding recipes recently and have collected them here.

Deep Dish Chicken Pie

You can have a deep dish chicken pie too, an excellent Sunday dish reminiscent of by-gone days when stewed chicken and dumplings or it's variations were standard fare for after church.

Ingredients:
4 cups cooked chicken meat
Salt, pepper, nutmeg
3 eggs, raw
4 hard cooked eggs

Line a deep dish with flaky pastry, brush with melted butter, in a mixing bowl put chicken meat, flavored to taste with salt paper and nutmeg. Add eggs, lightly beaten, chicken bouillon or stock and mix well. Add artichokes, canned or freshly cooked, and coarsely chopped hard cooked eggs. Season, turn into pastry lined dish.

Cover with top crust, cut slashes in the top, bake for 8 to 10 minutes in a 425 degree oven, brush lightly with cream and bake again for 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Shake dish gently and serve very hot. If necessary, add more liquid through slits in crust along toward last of cooking.

Veal Pot Pie

1 cup diced cooked potatoes
2 cups diced cooked veal
2 tablespoons shortening
1/2 teaspoon minced garlic
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon paprika
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
2 cups meat stock or water
1 cup diced cooked carrots

Brown veal in heated shortening; stir in garlic, salt, pepper, paprika and flour. Add meat stock gradually, stirring constantly. Simmer about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add vegetables; mix carefully. Pour into greased 1 1/2 quart casserole or baking pan. Combine bran and milk; let stand until most of moisture is taken up. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Add bran mixture, stirring only until combined.

Deep Dish Fruit Pie

2 to 3 cups fruit
1/2 to 1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon spices
4 tablespoons butter
Rich biscuit dough

Butter baking dish. Prepare fruit (peaches, apples, cherries, etc.). Arrange in bottom of dish and add sugar and spices. Dot with butter. Spread over this a rich biscuit dough. If baking with oven meal, cover and bake 350 degrees, 1 1/2 to 2 hours. If baking alone, bake uncovered at 375 degrees for 1 hour.
