

Eisenhower Still Mum on Political Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's press secretary said Wednesday the chief executive, in talks with key White House aides, still is keeping absolutely mum about whether he still intends to seek a second term.

James C. Hagerly told newsmen "nobody has talked politics with the President," since he underwent major abdominal surgery at Walter Reed Hospital June 9.

Medical bulletins meanwhile continued to report that Eisenhower is making "very satisfactory" progress.

During the day, the President:

1. Conferred for 10 minutes in a hospital room with French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau.

2. Put in another 45 minute work session at the hospital.

As for the political situation, there has been some speculation that Eisenhower might disclose his second term plans when a Republican National Committee group meets here Friday to arrange for the party's presidential nominating convention opening in San Francisco Aug. 29.

The idea was that with the convention only two months off the President might tell the arrangement's subcommittee whether he intends to stay in the race.

But Hagerly cut the odds on any such disclosure by saying in reply to an inquiry that Eisenhower has no plans to send the group a message which would answer the big question.
