Salem Woman Flies to Join Injured Family

Mrs. Clarence Hileman of Salem, whose young daughter was killed and husband and son critically injured in an auto smash-up Monday near Albuquerque, N. M., flew to the hospital bedside of her family Wednesday.

Before leaving Mrs. Hileman told friends her husband, Clarence, 24, had not regained consciousness since the head-on collision. He incurred severe head injuries.

The Hileman's young son, Gregory, 4, also was reported to have severe internal injuries.

The two-car accident which took the life of the Hileman's daughter, Deanna, 5, also proved fatal to Hileman's father, Ernest J. Hileman, 48, Brunswick, Ga., and the driver of the other vehicle, Howard W. Hutchins, 48, Snyder, Tex.

Clarence Hileman, who had lived in Salem for several years, was formerly employed as a truck driver by John Fowler.

He left Salem last Friday night with his two children for his former home in Georgia. His parents also were making the trip. His wife filed a suit for divorce in Marion County Circuit Court Monday seeking custody of the children.

Visitors Here From Work In Venezuela
A. G. Matherly, former Salem resident who is now a mine superintendent for a U. S. Steel subsidiary in Venezuela, has arrived in Salem for a month's visit.

He and Mrs. Matherly are at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Theodore Flook, 1860 S. Capitol St.

Matherly was specially interested Wednesday in the Associated Press list of the dead in a Venezuela plane crash off New York City. He didn't find the names of any associates or acquaintances, however, despite that many use that air service for travel between Venezuela and this country.

Matherly is one of 1,000 employees of Orinoco Mining Co. in Venezuela. The iron ore mining operation is up the Caroni River in the interior of the country.

New Zealand Twins Tour Police Station
Twin boys from Masterton, New Zealand, received a guided tour of the Salem police station Wednesday.

The boys, Tony and Barry Buick, nine years old, and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Buick, are visiting Mrs. Buick's mother, Mrs. Gilbert White, 1740 Ferry St., and her sister, Mary White, a member of the Statesman-Journal advertising department.

Wednesday morning the boys spotted a Salem officer and asked him why he carried a revolver while New Zealand patrolmen pack only a "baton" or nightstick. The boys were invited to visit the Salem station.

Police Capt. Glenn Bowman conducted the tour. Mrs. Buick said the boys appeared most interested in the tear gas bombs, weapons and "black light" identification process. The boys had never visited a police station before, she said.

The Buicks, who live on the south portion of North Island in New Zealand, plan to spend about six weeks here.

FALL INJURES WORKER
Harold Boatwright, 4395 Hager St., was taken to Salem General Hospital about 8:10 p.m. Wednesday for treatment of a possible ankle fracture after he fell from a platform while working at the Oregon Paper Mill, city first aidmen reported.

Farewell Said to Greek Students

Goodbyes and final honors from Salem and Oregon are order of the day for Alex Agathos, 17-year-old student from Athens, Greece, who has spent the past school year in Salem. He will leave Friday for New York and a week later for his homeland. Here Alex is greeted in Salem by Mrs. America—Mrs. Chris Mellis of Portland who shows him Greek Orthodox Church medal designating her as Woman of the Year. The young Greek student received a farewell gift, a leather suitcase, Wednesday from Salem Rotary Club which sponsored him as a foreign exchange student.

Fronk Named To Exchange Club Office

Edwin A. Fronk, Salem merchant, was elected president of Salem Exchange Club Wednesday, succeeding John Lewis.

Lewis becomes treasurer, Dan Willes vice president and Stuart McElhinny secretary by vote of the club at its luncheon meeting yesterday in the Marion Hotel.

They will be installed at next Wednesday's meeting, along with Cyril O'Brien, Loren Hicks and Blaine Cline who were elected to the club's board of control.

One of the club's principal social activities is scheduled for this Friday when members will stage a golf tournament, followed by dinner and dance at Salem Golf Club.

N. R. Alber, 69, Succumbs At His Desk

N. Ray Alber, 69, an employee of the Salem Credit Bureau, was found dead at his desk about 10:15 a.m. Wednesday, city police reported.

Alber, a Portland attorney for many years, had been with the Credit Bureau for about three weeks. His body was discovered by Stanley Allen, chief legal clerk for the bureau. Alber was still seated in his chair, Allen told police.

The Marion County coroner's office said Alber apparently had a medical history of heart trouble.

Alber had retired from his law practice and was living at Seaside prior to accepting a position here. He also maintained a home at Oswego.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Rosemary Gun, Portland, Mrs. Nancy Windolph, Beaverton, and Mrs. Alice Clow, Bellingham, Wash.

Funeral arrangements are in care of the Howell-Edwards Funeral Home.

Polk County DA Action Opposes Cahill Release

Polk County District Attorney Walter Foster Wednesday filed a statement in opposition to Otto Cahill's motion for a stay of proceedings with the State Supreme Court.

Cahill, convicted of theft of $750 from a Lincoln County water district, is in the State Penitentiary serving a one-year sentence for the crime.

The former Lincoln County justice of peace had asked the court for the staying action while his attorneys filed an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court contending he was deprived of rights guaranteed by the 14th amendment.

In opposing Cahill's motion, Foster gave a statement of facts leading up to the dramatic transfer of Cahill from a Portland hospital to the prison by ambulance last Saturday.

Foster said when Polk County called at the Cahill home last Friday to take him to the prison he was told by Cahill that an appeal had been filed with the U. S. Supreme Court.

Foster said later Cahill's attorneys said they had not filed the appeal because of the press of other cases and because they thought they still had 20 days in which to do so. At the time the attorneys said Cahill could not be moved because of a heart condition and that to do so might kill him.

The attorneys assailed the prison administration here Tuesday for not permitting Cahill's wife to visit him in the prison hospital where he is under observation.

Col. William Ryan, secretary of the board of control which governs state institutions, said it was a standard policy to deny visitors to inmates for the first 30 days.

Paper Company Official Attends Regional Meeting
Nelson M. Hickok, traffic manager of Western Paper Converting Company in Salem, will be in Longview today and Friday to participate in a meeting of the Pacific Northwest Advisory Board of which he is president.

Approximately 350 board members and guests and representatives of the railroad industry are expected to attend the meeting, which will deal with problems of rail transportation.

Opening of New Store Delayed
Opening of the new Cornet variety store in the Candalarin shopping district has been postponed until June 28, officials announced Wednesday. The store originally was scheduled to open today.

Delays in delivery of merchandise caused the change in the opening date, it was reported. The Cornet chain also plans to open another new store in West Salem in about two weeks.

Court Reveals Reasoning in Lane Decision

The state supreme court Wednesday released its written opinions for supporting Circuit Judge Frank E. Reid of Eugene against a writ of mandamus directed to him by Lane County District Attorney Eugene C. Venn.

By the mandamus proceeding Venn had sought to compel Judge Reid personally to discharge the April grand jury for Lane County which Venn alleged had been improperly drawn.

The court majority concluded that the allegations of the writ failed to show a clear and positive duty on the part of Judge Reid to act as required by the writ. Circuit Judge Dal M. King, also serving in the second judicial district which includes Lane County, on May 9 overruled the district attorney's motion to discharge the grand jury.

The court said the proceeding instituted by Venn is unique and without parallel in the annals of jurisprudence in Oregon and pointed out that no legal duty rested with Judge Reid to perform the act. It said he was prevented by law from acting in the matter which had been previously passed upon by Judge King.

Junior C of C Unit to Attend National Meet
Six members of the Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce will leave Thursday for Kansas City and the national convention of the organization.

Delegates from here are Stanley Schofield, Lake Westphal, Russell Conrad, Victor Fryer and James Loder. Lloyd Hammel, president of the Salem chapter, will join the others at Kansas City after attending a weekend meeting at Spokane.

The Salem group will join the auto caravan on Ontario, Ore., for the trip east.

Jaycees from here are taking along samples of Salem area products for display in an Oregon booth at the convention as a means of promoting Salem industry and luring tourists.

Educational Unit Names Delegates To Portland Meet
The Salem Classroom Teachers Association has named five persons as delegates to the 94th annual convention of the National Education Association at Portland from July 1 to 6.

Picked to represent the Salem group were Joseph D. Formick, Richard Hodges, Eleanor Roberts, James Watson and George Forgard.

Eric Johnston, special U. S. roving ambassador in the Middle East, and Dr. Lee DuBridge, president of the California Institute of Technology, will be featured speakers at the convention. NEA is a teachers' professional organization with a nationwide membership of over 650,000.

Explorer Scouts to Gather Here for Regional Confab

Approximately 175 Explorer Boy Scouts and their leaders from four northwest states and Alaska will open a three-day "Citizens Now" conference today in Salem.

Registration for the second annual conference, purpose of which is to give Scouts a better understanding of their responsibilities and privileges in their communities, will start today at 2 p.m. on the Willamette Campus.

A program of talks, discussion groups and other activities, all on the theme of a Scout's active participation in citizenship, will be featured.

Boy Leaders
Although the conference is conducted by boy leaders, the mechanics of operation are being directed by the Gordon Gilmore, host Cascade Area Council executive, and his Salem headquarters staff.

Following registration this afternoon, planning committee meetings will be held at Waller Hall. At a 6 o'clock dinner meeting Dr. G. Herbert Smith, president of Willamette, will welcome the scouts.

Keynote speaker at tonight's conference will be State Sen. Mark Hatfield. Also speaking will be W. W. McKinney, Salem attorney and last year's Cascade Council president. Roger Bales of Portland, deputy regional executive, will discuss the Explorer Scout program in this area.

Eugene Leader
Presiding at all meetings will be Kent Yockey, 18, Eugene Explorer, who is conference chairman. Adult advisor to the conference is Robert Blensley of Salem Post 2.

Cascade Council's scout delegation includes Gerald Selke of Salem Explorer Post 3, who is also arrangements chairman; Bill Reor, Post 15; Tom Hiron and Dick Davis, both Post 16; John Rhodes, Sea Scout Ship 12, all Salem, and Wade Benton, Silverton Post 113, and James Theda, Monmouth Post 38.

First delegate assembly will open Friday at 9 a.m. at Waller Hall, with Dr. Paul Poling, pastor of Salem First Presbyterian Church, as main speaker. Theme of the discussion will be how an Explorer may fit into his community and give service.

Duty Discussion
Afternoon discussion Friday will center around the scout's duty to his home. Kenneth Wells, director
