

Winnie, Harry Hold Bigger Boost For AF Seen in Reunion in England Wilson Action

Westerham, England (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill and his wife, Mrs. Churchill, are to be seen in a reunion Sunday in the peaceful quiet of the English countryside.

The scene of their meeting—the first since Truman left the White House—was at Chartwell, the spacious country home of Britain's wartime leader.

Churchill, who had invited Truman and his wife to lunch, met the former American President at the wide Tudor door of his home located about 40 miles from London.

How are you?" asked Truman as he grasped Sir Winston's hand. "Well, I'm getting on," said Churchill, who will be 82 in November.

"You don't look a day older than Potsdam," said Truman. "Oh, yes," replied Churchill, "I'm getting on."

Churchill then told Truman how well he looked. Truman is 72. A photographer asked them to stand together. They beamed at one another and Truman said:

"This is just like old times." There was a far-away look in Churchill's eyes, and a member of his family said there were tears there too.

Churchill invited Truman into his home, which is decorated with many pictures which the former prime minister had painted. A butler brought up a tray of drinks. Standing before a bronze bust of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, they both drank what appeared to be a solemn toast to the man whose death sent Truman to the White House in 1945.

Swim Star Planning Tour With Plastic, Portable Pool

By EVE STARR

HOLLYWOOD — STARR REPORT. Esther Williams is in something of a controlled frenzy these days getting ready for the opening of her Aqua Spectacle in London late next month, which in turn gets the Aqua Spectacle ready for its TV debut Sept. 29 on NBC.

Esther, husband Gage and choreographer Jonathan Lucas have been working for weeks getting the act together and putting the finishing touches on the model of the huge swimming tank they will take with them. The tank is circular in form measuring 50 feet in diameter, with a small island in the middle. It's plastic and portable. It has to be portable for it's going to do a lot of traveling. As soon as the NBC show is over they hit the road again for Montreal and the start of a 25-city tour.

Actually, Esther explains, there will be two identical tanks, one of which will be set up while the first one is being used. Filled with water, it's so heavy that it can only be installed in arenas at ground level. "Nothing else would hold it," says Esther. "If we tried to put it into Madison Square Garden in New York, the darned thing would crash right through the floor to the basement."

Recently looking for ideas for the show, Esther screened all 22 of the pictures she made during her 14 years at MGM. "All I can say," she remarked candidly, "is that the critics were very kind. We apparently used the same script in every picture. The only way I could tell one from another was by looking at the costumes on the dancing girls.

"If they're any criterion of the rest of MGM's old films, they'd better sell them quick to TV for the first price they can get and run like a thief. It's amazing how times and tastes have changed over so few years. Pictures we once thought were great are now just slow and draggy and downright dull."

I think Esther has something there. Seeing an old movie is too often like going back to the old hometown. Everything looks smaller and dingier. There is, in truth, no going back.

SPEAKING OF OLD MOVIES—CBS has been waving its ample checkbook under MGM's nose with a specific offer for one picture, "The Wizard of Oz." First released in 1939, it stars Judy Garland, Bert Lahr, Ray Bolger and the late Frank Morgan as the Wizard. The network is offering the studio $200,000 for it and wants to showcase it as a special Christmas show, possibly as a "Ford Star Jubilee" entry. Well, I saw "The Wizard of Oz" back in 1939. That was 17 years ago. I have some very wonderful memories of it—and I'm not at all sure I want them disturbed by seeing it again.

SCREEN GEMS, most prolific of the TV film production companies, is now casting still another film series. This one to be called "Captain Charlie's Showboat." Well now, there goes another flock of memories, mostly tied up with Mark Twain and that great Broadway musical "Showboat." Screen Gems is treading on dangerous ground here. Best they be careful.

IF ANYONE EVER needed a vacation, it's Dinah Shore. Those two
