Sportswear Firm In Portland Plans Stock Merger

PORTLAND (AP) —The White Stag Manufacturing Co. of Portland Monday announced a merger with Marcus Breier Sons, Inc., of Amsterdam, N.Y. Both are sportswear firms.

Harold Hirsch, White Stag president, said there was an exchange of stock, but did not disclose details. He said White Stag employs about 2,300 persons and the New York firm, which markets under the Bantamac label, about 300.

He said Marcus Breier, Bantamac presient, will move to White Stag as vice president in charge of men's and boys' wear division.

Expert Studies Portland's Air Pollution Issue

PORTLAND (AP) — Portland's air pollution situation had the attention Monday of a federal expert invited by the city health department. He is Jean Schueneman, of the Robert A. Taft Institute, Cincinnati, and he said he expects to determine whether an extensive pollution survey should be conducted.

Air pollution studies here have been undertaken by the Health Bureau, state Air Pollution Authority, and Columbia Empire Industries, Inc.

Pair Denies Operation of Death Vehicle

KLAMATH FALLS (AP) — Two brothers clung steadfast Monday to denials that either was driving a car that struck and killed a 9-year-old Merrill girl Sunday while she and a companion were pushing a bicycle on the highway 30 miles east of here.

Police Sgt. Earle Tichenor said hours of questioning have failed to reveal who was driving the car. Held in the county jail are Freeman Lee Graham, 52, and his brother, Earl, 34, along with Claud Woods, 34, a passenger in the car. Tichenor said the only answer either Graham would give when questioned was, "My brother was driving." Woods said he couldn't remember who was at the wheel. No charge has been filed.

Dead is Sherilan Kay Smith, of Merrill. In serious condition at a Klamath Falls hospital is Shanna Hinz, 11, of Malin.

'High Finance' Quiz Show Makes Debut

By EVE STARR

HOLLYWOOD — STARR REPORT: New York — Still another quiz show, "High Finance," has taken to the air waves, this one on Saturday nights for CBS. It is a rather complicated affair, and, to explain it in advance, the show's sponsors previewed it for the press at the Sherry Netherland Hotel here in New York. Having seen the preview, I am now more confused than ever.

"High Finance" follows close on the heels of last year's successful new quizzers, such as "The $64,000 Question," "The Big Surprise," "The $64,000 Challenge" and "Do You Trust Your Wife?" Like the others, it feeds questions to the contestant and lets him climb up through various levels, the top prize on "High Finance" being a respectable $75,000. A gimmick is the only thing that differentiates these shows, and the "High Finance" gimmick is to offer the contestant a chance to gain his life's ambition by a process of "investing" his winnings in higher-paying questions. As "typical" life's ambitions, the show has suggested such items as a fleet of taxicabs, a ski lodge, an education fund for a child or the money with which to produce a new play. My own personal little life's ambition is to own the Queen Elizabeth and spend the rest of my life cruising on it with my friends, but rather dought that "High Finance" wants any of its contestants to get quite that ambitious.

Emcee of the new show is Dennis James, a veteran of 18 years in TV and still only 38 years old. He got a job back in 1938 with Dumont's experimental station W2XWV and did two weekly shows, "TV Roof" and "Dennis James Sports Parade." The latter was a snap, Dennis having been a middleweight fighter, semi-pro football and baseball star and a champion swimmer and lifeguard in his salad days, but just how all this leads up to being a quizmaster you'll have to figure out for yourself.

What's going to happen to "High Finance" is quite unpredicatable. It may catch on, as did "The $64,000 Question" and get to be a national craze. It may run down the middle, as has "Do You Trust Your Wife?", winding up just another quiz show. Or it may fall flat on its complicated face. But brace yourself. Two more quizzers are on the way, Jan Murray's "Treasure Chest" and "Twenty One," with a possibility that a third, "The Most Beautiful Girl in the World," may very well come in as NBC's Monday night answer to "I Love Lucy."

If a quiz show beats "Lucy," I think I'll turn in my typewriter and retire from the scene — even if I have to go without the Queen Elizabeth.

Sandy Beavers—she "travels" coast to coast every day. Exciting job? Sandy Beavers will certainly tell you it is. You see, she's a Long Distance operator. Dozens of times a day she talks to people all over the country as she puts friends and relatives in touch with each other. Exciting, yes. But Sandy likes her job for another reason, too. She knows it has a future. As she gains skill and experience, she'll have chances to move ahead to jobs with more responsibility. This is the way things are done in the telephone business. For we know that advancing people in line with their ability does a lot to make jobs good. And it takes good jobs to attract the kind of people who'll go all out to do a good job for you . . . to keep your calls going through fast and dependably. Pacific Telephone.

Have you ever noticed how a Long Distance operator will make an extra effort to locate the person you're calling when that person is "out"?

Next time an installer visits your home, notice how fast and neatly he works. This results partly from training, partly from attracting people who take pride in making every job better than good.

You can count on good service from your telephone because it's backed by capable, well-trained people who have a special interest in their work.

The telephone men and women of Salem work to make your telephone more useful every day
