Feminine Look

A Variety of Silhouettes For Fall

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (U.P.)—You can wear a suit and still look as feminine as Marilyn Monroe, says Master Tailor Anthony Blotta, previewing his fall collection for the visiting fashion press.

He adds a perky tailored bow back and center on a blouse-back jacket, matches it with a twin at the neckline, presents the whole in a chiffonweight tweed with the slimmest of skirts and there you have it—the new ladylike look of 1956-57.

Blotta, who is of the generation of Italian tailors who learned to cut and sew before they were old enough to toss a discus, presents a great variety of fall costumes, suits and coats, ranging from the capelet topper outfit to the "gentry jacket" worn loosely over a slim dress. He likes the blouse-backed line in suits, and add chiffon blouses to keep things properly feminine.

For late-day and evening dresses, he likes satiny black broadcloth combined with draped chiffon, or jet-embroidered lace for a bodice. He accents the empire line with bust-length necklaces of jewels or gold chains and high-placed bows.

Suits with Full Skirts
Ben Reig departs from the norm this season, to present suits with full skirts and normal waistlines, for customers who do not hanker for the 1912 look. There are a lot of die-hards, apparently thinks this designer, and they have to have something to wear. So he uses his usual lush fabrics and fine detailing in a collection designed for women who don't want to be rushed into a too-dramatic change.

Maurice Rentner says all women should look like queens—or at the very least princesses—this fall, and so presents the "imperial silhouette." He places a belt above a well-defined natural waistline in his group of "imperial suits," shows "regal jackets" with luxurious fur collars and cuffs in city costumes, initiates the diamond decollete in high necked daytime dresses and dramatizes the "royal flare" in cocktail and evening gowns with skirts that flow frantically from the new high waistline.

MIXED DRINKS
SANTA FE, N. M. (U.P.)—Burglars who broke into the Pink Garter Saloon made off with one bottle each of 22 different domestic and foreign brands of liquor, plus $50 cash.

TIES WANTED
DAMASCUS, Syria (U.P.)—Burma has told Arab nations it wants to strengthen political, economic and commercial relations with them. Syrian Foreign Ministry sources said the offer was made in a note to the Arab League. Each government is considering the matter individually.

Mix and Mingle Tweed

NEW YORK—This slightly bloused jacket for a suit of imported brown, yellow and white "mix and mingle" tweed is from the fall 1956 collection of Anthony Blotta. The jacket is pleated into a narrow, shaped waistband and a small bow in the back matches the one at the neckline in front. The fashion press is being shown the fall collection in New York this week. DOGS TRAINED
SINGAPORE (U.P.)—Customs authorities are training Alsatian dogs to sniff out smuggled opium on ships docking here. The dogs are being trained in Britain. Authorities won't say how the dogs are being trained. They're afraid smugglers might find ways to throw the dogs off the scent.

Former Salem Teacher Dies

Death of Elizabeth Jane Rodgers, longtime school teacher and a former resident of Salem, in Seattle has been reported here by relatives.

Miss Rodgers, 87, spent her active years as a teacher in public schools of Oregon and Washington. Since her retirement she made her home in Bandon and Salem until 1951 when she moved to Seattle.

Among surviving brothers and sisters is Roy Rodgers of Salem.

Solon Requests Decorations for Helicopter Crews

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—A request has been made by Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore.) to the Pentagon to award medals or some other decorations to Army helicopter crews who flew into the Grand Canyon to recover the bodies of the victims in the crash of two airliners.

Neuberger said the crewmen risked their lives and praised their heroism in a letter written to Secretary of the Army Brucker.

Youth Jailed After Chase

ASHLAND (U.P.)—A Medford youth was held in the Yreka, Calif., jail Thursday. He was caught near a road block after leading police on a 110-mile-an-hour chase from Ashland Wednesday night.

Robert S. Baise, 20, formerly of Ashland, was held on a charge of possessing a loaded automatic pistol and switchblade knives which were found in his car.

Police Chief Herb Hays said Baise was wanted on a warrant later by pursuing police.
