Death Claims Former City Councilman

Funeral services for Edward W. Acklin, owner and operator of Acklin's Bootery for many years, will be held at 3:30 p. m. Monday in the chapel of the Virgil T. Golden funeral home, the Rev. John Cauble officiating.

Acklin, 70, died Saturday at a Salem hospital. He had been ill for the last four or five years. He had been hospitalized for about a week.

A former member of the Salem City Council, Acklin was a resident of 1000 N. Capitol St. Born in Syria May 15, 1886, Acklin came to the United States as a boy. He moved to Salem in 1929 from Spokane, Wash., and opened Acklin's Bootery, which he operated until four years ago when ill health forced his retirement.

He was a member of the Salem Lions Club and the Eagles lodge. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Emma E. Acklin, Salem, and a daughter, Mrs. Josephine Pence, Gervais.

2 Directors Necessary for Big Englewood Playground

By BARBARA BONIFACE
Statesman Playground Reporter

Two playground directors are required to supervise the busy Englewood play area, which surrounds Englewood elementary school.

The supervisor is Mrs. Lucille Kieft, physical education instructor at North Salem High, and assistant, Diane Clough, an elementary education major at Oregon State.

This recreation area handles an average of 50 youngsters a day. As few as 25 and as many as 100 have visited during some days.

The playground which covers approximately three square blocks is equipped with a new circular wading pool, badminton and tennis courts and a complete set of play equipment. It is one of 11 school-city playgrounds with a supervised play program this year.

Drawing Card
The primary drawing card at Englewood is the wading pool, filled every afternoon for the children of the area. Among the many water enthusiasts who enjoy a daily splash are Christy and Jeanie McElhinny, Kathy Fisher and Johnny and Cathy Snider.

The basement area of the school is open for use of indoor recreation. Some who are trying their hand at crafts are Jean Vanderboof, Sheila Lanktree, Barbara Ross, Richard Ballanger, Michael Yeager, Roddy Rawlins. These youngsters are designing nameplates for their homes.

Aside from construction in crafts, indoor recreation includes story time and competition games.

Tennis, Softball
Tennis and softball are played when enough older children are available for the recreation.

In frequent play is a Texas handball tournament, which is played by a process of elimination. Those participating in these games are placed in one of four squares and must serve the vol-

Wreck Hurts Mrs. Hardisty

Mrs. Gertrude Hardisty, 3205 Abrams Ave., was taken to Salem General Hospital Saturday morning for treatment for a forehead laceration received in a car accident at Capitol and D Streets, city first aidmen reported.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Hardisty was in good condition.

Salem police said the car struck a traffic signal pole on the corner of the intersection.

WU's Summer Session Picnic Planned Tuesday

Each family will provide its supper, refreshments and dessert being furnished by the University.

Park Concert Attendance Termed Good

Salem's series of summer band concerts will reach the halfway mark when the fifth of 10 public musical programs is presented at 7:30 p. m. Monday from the west steps of the Capitol building.

"Turnouts have been very good, very gratifying," Maurice Brennan, director of the 25-piece band, said Saturday. The director estimated that audiences have averaged "about 750 persons."

Band members are all local professional musicians, and the series, which is sponsored by Salem Chamber of Commerce, is paid for through the Musicians Performance Trust Fund.

"Concert selections are varied to please the largest number of listeners," Brennan said. The one-hour programs have consisted chiefly of marches, semi-popular selections from musical shows, some novelty numbers and a few serious band works. Monday's program will include a trumpet trio called Bugler's Holiday, featuring Salem trumpeters Charles Yuki, David Doerksen and James Fiske.

The five remaining Monday and Thursday night concerts are slated for July 19, 23, 26 and 30, and Aug. 2.
