Ike Carries Heaviest Load Since Operation

By WILMOT HERCHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower spent 3 hours and 25 minutes in his White House office Monday, the longest sustained working period he is known to have put in since he became ill June 8.

It was his first work day back at the executive mansion after recuperating on his Gettysburg, Pa., farm from his emergency abdominal operation.

Eisenhower met with staff members, conferred with Secretary of State Dulles and received the credentials of Don Teodoro Alvarado Garaicoa, the new ambassador from Ecuador, who reported afterwards:

"He looks very, very, very well."

Light Afternoon

The President entered his office at 8:20 a.m. and did not return to the White House living quarters until 11:45. James C. Hagerty, his press secretary, said Eisenhower will tackle a fairly normal schedule during the mornings this week but his afternoon chores will be "not as heavy" as usual.

The President's doctors reported Saturday he was well on the road back to physical fitness but they cautioned that his return to the capital should not be taken as a sign that his convalescence was complete. Eisenhower underwent surgery June 9 to relieve an intestinal blockage. He is no longer wearing bandages.

Among the President's business callers Monday was Lewis W. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. The late: meeting with Dulles included a discussion of the impending conference of American Presidents in Panama, which Eisenhower and Dulles will attend.

Political Session

Hagerty said the President will hold his regular weekly meeting with GOP congressional leaders Tuesday but will not have any news conference this week.

On Thursday, Hagerty said, Eisenhower will preside for the first time in five weeks at a meeting of the National Security Council.

The President will also be on hand Friday for an expanded meeting of the council.

Eisenhower's doctors want him to do more walking. Consequently, Hagerty said, the President will walk "quite a lot" on the enclosed grounds to the south of the White House this week.

Myrtlewood in Big Demand By Churches

By GEORGE L. SCOTT

PORTLAND (INS) — Myrtlewood, a rare wood which grows only in the Holy Land and southwestern Oregon is coming into increasing use for church furnishings and fittings.

Edwin A. Loft and Perry W. Jones, of Grants Pass, Ore., report a heavy backlog of orders from churches in the U.S., Canada, Mexico and Hawaii for communion trays, offering plates, candle sticks, crosses, altar lamps and baptismal fonts.

"Due to Association"

Loft and Jones, who operate a myrtlewood carving and cabinet "studio" believe the increased popularity of the wood is due to it association with Holy Land.

Loft said it is difficult to keep up with the demand because of the length of time it takes to dry the heavy tight-grained myrtlewood. It has taken as long as five years to cure some of the larger pieces.

There is no way to hurry the curing process. If too much heat is applied the wood will check or split, destroying its usefulness. The heavy wood, which weighs almost 100 pounds to the cubic foot, must be free of moisture before it can be worked.

Found In Small Groves

Loft and his partner have a wind tunnel in which they rack their wood, rough cut to size for various pieces which will eventually be taken to turning lathes and carving benches. Air of mild and constant temperature is blown over the stacked wood.

Nearly all the remaining myrtlewood in Oregon is found in small groves. It grows largely in the Chetco river area where it is frequently pushed aside as waste in large Douglas fir operations. The only usable part of the myrtlewood tree is between the roots and the first branches.

Smaller timber operators take time to salvage the myrtlewood and sell it to cabinet shops.

Trees Centuries Old

Myrtlewood often attains a height of 60 to 80 feet and a diameter of six feet is not uncommon but it takes centuries to grow such a tree.

Timbermen estimate some of the larger myrtlewoods have stood throughout American history, having started even before the discovery of this continent. Oregon has preserved some of the groves in state parks.

Prison Probe Due July 28

OLYMPIA (AP) — State Sen. Neil J. Hoff, chairman of the legislative council's subcommittee on institutions, Monday announced a hearing at Walla Walla July 28 to look into problems at the Washington State Penitentiary.

Hoff said his committee will check into the need for a maximum security building at the penitentiary. They also will consider the feasibility of sending the more rebellious inmates to the federal government's Alcatraz prison under a state-federal contractural arrangement.

Jet Accident Hurts Airmen

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — An F89D Scorpion crashed and burned on takeoff here Monday afternoon, seriously injuring the pilot and radar observer.

The plane crashed approximately one mile off the north-south runway within the boundaries of the Elmendorf Air Force Base.

The aircraft was from the 449th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Ladd Air Force Base. It was returning to Ladd after participating in the Alaskan Air Command rocketry meet.

The pilot and observer were removed to the 5005th Air Force Hospital where they are suffering from burns and shock. Military officials described their condition as fair. The aircraft was almost completely destroyed.

The cause of the crash was unknown. A board of officers was appointed to investigate.

Names of the two fliers were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Friends Elect State Pastors

DENVER (AP) — Two Oregon men, Dr. Arthur O. Roberts, Newberg, and the Rev. Gerald W. Dillon, Portland, were elected to the administrative board of the newly organized International Assn. of Evangelical Friends here Sunday.

Purpose of the organization, Dillon said, is to "revive Quaker areas with a new breath of spiritual life."

NATIONS AGREE

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavia and the Indochina state of Cambodia have decided to establish diplomatic relations, it was announced here.
