

Conelrad's Effort to Confuse Enemy Successful; Friends Added to Confusion Comedy

By WARREN ROGERS JR.
EMERGENCY PRESS HEADQUARTERS, Operation Alert (A)—The nation's first full-blown "Conelrad" test—designed to confuse any enemy bombers—went off precisely on schedule Friday 4:10 p.m. (EDT) to 4:25 p.m.

$400 Million Added to AEC Fund in House

By GARDNER L. BRIDGE
WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee voted an extra $400 million for a speedup in construction of government atomic power plants. It said the time is not yet ripe and the risks are too great for private development.

Assessing the United States is lagging behind Russia and Great Britain, the committee said: "The issue now confronting this country is not the issue of private power versus public power. The issue rather is American versus Russian power."

The Democratic-controlled committee's action in adding $400 million dollars to President Eisenhower's budget request, to finance a power reactor program opposed by the Atomic Energy Commission was taken by a 28-11 vote. Republicans voted solidly against the move.

4 Missing After Nevada Flash Flood

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Four persons were missing here Friday night and six were hospitalized after flash flooding water struck their cars on U. S. Highway 205, 20 miles south of Reno.

The four missing were said to be one man, a woman and two children. Searchers were unable to give any names, however.

64-22 Senate Vote Approves Paul Hoffman

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's nomination of Paul G. Hoffman to be a United Nations delegate was confirmed by a 64-22 Senate vote Friday.

The opposition to Hoffman came chiefly from Republicans, some of whom pictured Eisenhower's longtime friend and supporter as soft on Communism.

On the showdown, 37 Democrats and 27 Republicans voted for Hoffman; 16 Republicans and six Democrats against.

Democrats took the opposing Republicans to task for "trying to destroy the man" often credited with having the most influence in Eisenhower's decision to seek the Presidency.

confuse this emergency press headquarters, which found it had no radio. There were two television sets in the crowded emergency pressroom. But since all TV and FM broadcasting went out completely this did no good.

It had to be an AM radio or nothing. A total of 1,250 AM radio stations throughout the country make up the Conelrad network—the word, incidentally, is short for "control of electromagnetic radiation."

Finally, down in the basement, next to a memo-printing machine and near the paper clips, a radio was found. It was a leather-enclosed battery-operated job.

Government press attaches, with Conelrad already upon them, searched frantically for other radios for their own use. They turned up a powerful short wave radio, which refused to work.

The lone working radio, Conelrad and all, was disconnected from the basement and rushed upstairs to the office of Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary, who is heading up this emergency press operation.

Before Snyder got the machine, however, reporters had a chance to hear Conelrad in operation. At this headquarters it consisted of the standard going-off-the-air announcement and then a disk jockey playing records.

The first selection was "The Very Thought of You." Next came "Body and Soul." Finally it was "You're Driving Me Crazy." At that point the radio was snatched away and taken to Snyder's office.

Val Peterson, head of the Civil Defense Administration, took the air shortly after. Conelrad went into operation to say to the American people:

"If your radio suddenly announced that enemy planes were headed for your city, has your community a sound civil defense organization? ... You will find it common sense in any kind of emergency."

"If this were an actual attack on our country, the President of the United States would be speaking to you from where I am standing this morning."

Peterson, speaking from a secret location, described the simulated attack and reported that immediate steps the government was taking to keep the country going.

At the appointed time, all TV and AM and FM radio broadcasting halted. Thus, if any enemy bombers had tuned their direction finders on American broadcast stations they would have been without any "homing" beam.

As soon as the mechanical switch could be made, the 1,250 AM stations shifted to the 640 and 1240 kilocycle frequency. They broadcast from those instead of their normal frequencies, and they did it in "clusters" of three or four to a city for short periods.

The broadcasting quality was poor. The sound of music, for instance, came over the air in a kind of gurgling way, as if strained through a pipeful of water. This was because the equipment was virtually makeshift, again to confuse the enemy.

The finding of the body started an intense police and FBI check-up to determine whether it was that of Peter Weinberger, kidnaped from his home July 4. The Weinberger boy would be six weeks old now if he still is alive.

Get 30,000th Telephone

When Pacific Telephone & Telegraph put its 30,000th telephone into operation in Salem Friday, company officials and photographers marked the event, which took place at the home of the Floyd Tuttle family, recently moved from Tillamook to 4665 McCala Ave., off Silverton Road east of Salem. Here Salem District Telephone Manager Harry Holloway holds the phone for three of the four Tuttle children—Gail, 6, Floyd, 8, and Rita, 7. Installation was made by LeRoy Montgomery. Number of telephones in Salem has jumped from 25,000 to 30,000 in two years.

9 in Race for Governor of Washington

OLYMPIA (AP)—The gubernatorial derby emerged Friday as the hottest race in the Sept. 11 Washington primary election. Nine candidates entered the contest before the 5 p.m. Friday deadline for filing declarations of candidacy for public office.

Five are seeking the Republican nomination; four the Democratic.

They are: Republicans: Atty. Gen. Don Eastwood and Lt. Gov. Emmett T. Anderson, both Tacoma. John E. Lydon and Roy De Grief, both Seattle, and Ralph E. Bohnke, Clinton (Island County).

Democrats: Secretary of State Earl Coe of Bingen and Olympia; Albert D. Rossellini of Seattle; Rockerick A. Lindsey of Spokane and John C. Edwards of East Renton.

Gloves Fail To Help Boy In Theft Try

ALBANY, Ore.—A glove-wearing, 8-year-old boy broke into Kamper's Supermarket at 1:15 a.m. Friday.

Two policemen came by just as the lad broke a section of glass in the market's front door. They chased him into a parking lot and caught him.

The patrolmen returned the boy to his home where his parents reported he had "gone up to bed" at 9 p.m.

The boy admitted he crawled out an upstairs window, then stole a bicycle and rode it to the market.

Police said the case will be turned over to juvenile authorities.

And those gloves? "I didn't want to leave any fingerprints," the boy told police.

Harvey Firm Denies Reports of Mergers

NEW YORK (AP)—The Wall Street Journal Friday quoted L. A. Harvey, executive vice president of Harvey Machine Co., as saying his company has no agreement to merge with Cerro De Pasco Corp. or any other company.

The Journal in the same issue reported the corporation was seeking the recovery of 15 hubcaps apparently taken from the Hollywood Bowl during the past month.

Two 16-year-old boys were arrested in connection with the thefts, detectives said.

Officers reported that the two Salem youths admitted taking about 23 hubcaps from the Hollywood Bowl while auto racing fans attended the Saturday night programs.

The boys also said they took three hubcaps from a car in the Dallas area early Friday morning, police said.

Both youths are scheduled to appear in Marion County juvenile court Monday morning at 9 a.m. They were released to the custody of their parents Friday night.

Eleven of the recovered hubcaps belonged to Oldsmobiles and four were "moon" hubcaps. One chrome oil filler cap was also found, police reported.

One set of four hubcaps was sold for $8 by the two boys, officers said.

Hubcap thefts have been regularly reported to city and state police as well as the Marion County sheriff's office during the past several months. Most of the hubcaps were taken from late model Oldsmobiles.

Mercury Dips Slightly in Valley Areas

Temperatures were slightly lower throughout the Marion and Polk County area Friday, and fire danger is expected to decrease today.

A high of 83 degrees was recorded at the Dallas headquarters of the Oregon State Board of Forestry. Detroit Ranger Station reported a maximum of 85.

Humidity at Dallas at 4:30 p.m. Friday was 40 per cent. Grand Ronde recorded a 63 per cent at the same time. Friday's low humidity at Detroit Ranger station was 32 per cent.

Fire danger is expected to be moderately high in inland areas and moderate in coastal regions today and Sunday. Low humidities will probably be 30 to 40 per cent west of the Cascades today.

Ten fires—all caused by lightning—were reported by the Detroit Ranger Station Friday. Nine of the blazes were under control Friday evening, but the other smoke had not been reached by fire fighters.

The station said the smoke was reported to be in the Lucky Butte country up Blowout Creek. Four smoke jumpers from Cave Junction, Ore., were scheduled to drop into the area Friday night or early this morning and a ground party is moving into the area.

Dispatcher at the State Forestry department in Salem said eight fires, all in northeast Oregon, were reported Friday. All the fires were controlled or out Friday evening. Largest of the blazes was 1.75 acres. Seven of the fires were caused by lightning and one was a debris fire, the dispatcher said.

Contract for Clear Lake School Let

Statesman News Service
CLEAR LAKE — Construction will get underway Wednesday on a two-room addition to the Clear Lake Grade School by the Mills Construction Company of Salem whose low bid of $23,844 for the contract was accepted at Friday night's school board meeting.

The school addition will be a separate unit with its own restrooms and heating plant, and situated just a few feet north of the existing school. It is to be completed within 100 days, according to the contract.

Three other bids opened Friday night also were from Salem contractors. They were: William A. Hill, $23,906; Wayne Barham, $24,230; and Hampton C. Platt, $24,500.

GRAND RONDE — A transformer blew out here Friday night when a car struck a guy wire while being pulled from the ditch.

State police said the car, operated by Andrew Walter Carlson, Portland, slid into the ditch about 9:45 p.m. As the car was being pulled up by another vehicle, it brushed a support wire on a power pole and the transformer shorted out, officers reported.
