

Ice Cream Social on Church Lawn

The grounds of St. Paul's Episcopal Church will be decorated with lanterns for the ice cream social to be sponsored by the Junior Guild Wednesday night. On the directorate, left to right, are Mrs. Louise Muller, Mrs. Otis Berry and Mrs. August A. Manke, general chairman. The public is invited and hours are from 6 to 9:30 o'clock. (McEwan Studio.)

but... Heaven help the poor food editor when men executives take their cooking prowess seriously enough to take over the testing kitchens of their firms. We were absolutely frightened this week when we received a story from a large food manufacturer which at first looked like the hundred or more we receive weekly. But upon reading it there was a smacking of something superior in the wording. Then we noted that we could get further details by contacting Mr. So-and-so. Is this a trend? This could be worse than flying saucers.

Speaking of men... (who are all right in their place). Why is it that you so often see signs, "Men at Work" but never a bit of publicity when the women are working? Is it that the fellows have better press agents than the women?

Take note... The other day, en route back from lunch at home, we noted the sign that had been placed in the road "Men at Work" but what would we come upon two very very small men of pre-school age, sitting smack dab in the middle of the road, blandly eating their lunch. There was a shady spot, the day was hot and they were hungry, so why not eat? Well, why not?

Poor rich girls... All that ripples is evidently not gold, if you'll pardon our scrambled metaphor. It seems that the lucky owners of swimming pools this month, have found that there's no room for the family. Friends, near friends and mere speaking acquaintances sometimes come early and stay late, forgetting that a swimming pool is no more public than the bathtub. So unless you can swear you were invited, better go to Leslie or Olinger, and let the swimming pool-owning family at least have time for dinner in private.

Too good? Looking down from the bridge one hot day, at six gravel trucks and a big digger, we wondered if the outfit that is so thoughtfully making little swimming holes for the townspeople down there may not be doing so to the detriment of peace and quiet on the riverfront. Too many trucks might just be a hazard to little tots wishing to enjoy the cool pools and warm sand.

At last... We thought we'd lost that glamour so characteristic of us middle-class spinsters. But no, driving in our convertible after only two or three months of uncovered freedom, we got our first whistle. Of course the whistlers were only about eight years old, but anyway, they could whistle.

Just sitting... Farewell, kind readers, for a long two weeks, when we plan to just sit, watch the birds, read and only occasionally lift a languid finger. ... Maxine Buren
