

Coffee Parties, Luncheons and Dinners on Social Calendar

Varied social events are calendared for the coming week, with coffee parties, luncheons and dinner parties headlining the news. Invitations are in the mail this weekend to a coffee for which Mrs. Robert Y. Thornton will be hostess on Thursday at her Candalaria Heights home for the pleasure of her cousin, Mrs. Ervin L. Peterson of Washington, D. C., a former Salem resident, who is spending the summer in Oregon. Mrs. Peterson is dividing her time between Salem and at Clackamas with her mother. A group of Mrs. Peterson's friends have been invited to call between 1:30 and 1 o'clock.

Presiding at the coffee urns will be Mrs. John Kettering of Vancouver, Wash., sister of Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Chester Knowlton of Portland, sister of Mrs. Thornton, Mrs. William C. Perry and Mrs. Elton H. Thompson.

Assisting about the rooms will be Mrs. Chester Lee, Mrs. James B. Haworth, Mrs. Bruce F. Pickett, Mrs. Francis W. Smith, Mrs. Samuel W. Robb, Mrs. Stanley Baker and Mrs. Roscoe Wilson.

An Au Revoir Coffee
Mrs. Owen C. Miller is arranging a coffee party for Tuesday morning at her Fairmount Hill home in au revoir to Mrs. M. E. Christensen, who with Dr. Christensen and their children will be leaving later in the month for Minneapolis to make their home. A group of Mrs. Christensen's friends have been invited to call during the morning to say farewell.

To Welcome a New Neighbor
Mrs. Ejarne Erickson will be a coffee hostess on Friday morning at her Candalaria Heights home to welcome her new neighbor, Mrs. Paul W. Morse. A group of immediate neighbors have been invited to call between 10 and 12 o'clock to greet Mrs. Morse. Assisting the hostess will be her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Erickson, Mrs. Robert W. Stevens, Mrs. Thad Moreland, Mrs. Bertram L. Treilstad.

To Entertain at Luncheons
Mrs. Elmer J. Scellars will preside at luncheon Monday at Meier and Frank's Oregon Room for a group of friends. Covers will be placed for twelve and bridge will be in play following at the Scellars home.

A luncheon hostess Tuesday afternoon will be Mrs. Russel E. Pratt, who has invited a few friends to her North 24th Street home. Bridge will be in play following the luncheon.

Rehearsal Dinner at Toozes
Justice and Mrs. Walter L. Tooze will be hosts for a dinner party Thursday night at their Fairmount Hill residence in compliment to their son, James B. Tooze, and his fiancée, Miss Carolyn Green, who will be married on Friday night at the First Presbyterian Church. The dinner will precede the wedding rehearsal and dinner are members of the bridal party.

Out-of-town guests coming for the nuptials will be Mrs. Tooze's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Fuller of Seattle, and her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Dodd of McMinnville.

Miss Joan Collett, who is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Collett. She recently returned to Salem after her first turn of missionary service under the Unevangelized Field Mission. She is on the staff of the Bible Institute of Maranhao in northern Brazil. She will take advanced work at the Bible College of Los Angeles this fall before returning to Brazil.

Rooftop Show For College Contingent

For the college contingent is the Rooftop Stardust college show and dance to be given by Meier and Frank's, Salem, on Saturday, August 11 at 8 o'clock. The affair will be staged on the rooftop of the Salem store and all interested persons are invited to attend. Tickets are available at the information desk at the store or from any Meier and Frank college board member.

Fashions for the Smart Girl In and Out of College will be the theme of the show. Fashions for college men will also be shown. Following the show there will be dancing to the music of Bill DeSouza's orchestra, who will also play background music during the show. There will be refreshments and entertainments.

Shirley Werner Is Married to Mr. Stevenson

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Werner was the setting for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Shirley Werner, and Charles N. Stevenson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Stevenson, on Saturday, July 28. The Rev. Lowell W. Holte performed the 8 o'clock rite before an improvised altar of pink gladioluses and pink candles. For her wedding the bride chose an afternoon gown of white lace with full skirt and off-shoulder neckline. A bandeau held in place her fingertip veil and she carried a white Bible marked with white carnations.

Miss Shirley Myron was the bride's only attendant and she wore a pink and white-lace full skirted dress and carried pink carnations. Richard Rice served as best man for Mr. Stevenson. Mrs. Werner wore a floral print dress with white carnation corsage for her daughter's wedding and Mrs. Stevenson wore navy and white silk gown with corsage of white carnations.

A reception followed the nuptials. Assisting were Deloris Scharff, Gladys Mathis, sisters of the bride, Clarice Shrewsbury and Helen Young.

The couple will make their home in Salem.

By CARL HALL

Bouyant on its base of molten rock, anchored in its roots of dust, bound to sky by rain and sun, the earth floats easy in its revolving sphere suspended in star dust. Spinning in its unspilling orbit it carries man like specks of clinging granulation on its variegated carpet. But unlike all other forms of life man marks his passage, knows the historical webbing of his birth and end, the most momentous knowledge ever given a living creature, knows that he must and will finally die.

From this knowledge of death life achieves its profundity, pathos and finds its resurrection in the earth born moment. The earth has become the home and the tomb and the point of embarkation for paradise. Holding the shattering yet humbling knowledge of his "timed" dream, man has reinvested in "nature" the complexities of his discovery as well as his awe. He has given voice to the land, he has given it direction and purpose between the shattering facts of life and death, whether by religion, art or science. It has taken on the attributes of a re-embodied soul whose substance strides the surface of the earth, touchable, visible and edible.

Man has made nature the receptacle for his written history and the sum of his undiscovered features where legend, myth, dream and fact are irrevocably bound to and evoked from divine conception. Nature, as seen and "worn" by man has passed through many transformations and, in a special sense, modern man through his new discoveries, new knowledge, once again faces nature as early man, with awe, respect and no little degree of fear.

Man is more aware now of his link in the chain of nature, for his link has become the weak one, the apocalypse triggered to the most precarious as well as the most glorious of fuses, human nature. It is this precarious weakness that hovers over the world like a cloud, more fearsome and destructive than the cloud science has been puffing in its stupidity.

In our atomic age this nature whose face we now surround with science as never before, with mathematical precision, is an eternal, endless order that grows more remote with each new scientific revelation and confronts us as a power more powerful and mysterious than we have imagined. Modern man has found a knife capable of penetrating the filament, but unlike God, his discovery and creation is not more light but deeper darkness, not because of the discovery but because of the use made of it.

In modern man's rediscovery of nature he has discovered his nakedness and his frailty. For the first time in humankind man can undo the story of the creation, the most frightening knowledge given to a civilization in the whole history of human life.

It is not chance nor necessarily choice that this re-discovery of nature has tended to turn man more into himself. In slowly opening the elemental doors of nature he has opened as well the doors of the human soul and its psychological triggers.

He is now in that realm of the concrete invisible in which the human soul finds itself beating itself against nature while peering with persevering curiosity over its rim and under its hem. What man sees will be but a reflection of himself, what he does with that reflection is perhaps the most important decision that he will have to make this side of heaven.
