

Sullivan Says Crash Narrow Squeak for All

(Picture on Wirephoto page)
SEYMOUR, Conn. (AP) — A two-car crash a dozen miles from his Southbury home put Ed Sullivan, the TV personality, his son-in-law and two other persons in a hospital Monday.
Sullivan, who suffered a broken rib, told a reporter that "it's a miracle that we weren't hurt worse."
When Sullivan made the statement, he didn't know that the name of one of the occupants of his car, Ralph Cacace, 34, of New Haven, had been placed on the danger list, and that Sullivan's son-in-law, Robert H. Frecht Jr., 26, of Scarsdale, N.Y., would be hospitalized for two or three weeks.
Sullivan, himself, will leave the hospital Tuesday, and according to the CBS network, will appear on his regular air show next Sunday.

En Route Home
The smashup occurred as Sullivan was en route home after having presented his regular Sunday night television program, The Ed Sullivan Show, at the McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey.
He was driving a new car of the make he advertises on the air (1955 Lincoln) when an oncoming car slid to the left-hand side of the road on a curve on a two-lane section of Route No. 2.
The left-hand headlight of the oncoming car scored a bulls-eye squarely between the two headlights of Sullivan's car. The crash wrecked both cars.
Broken Right Rib
Sullivan, 40, suffered a broken right rib and abrasions of the nose, back and legs. He also is suffering from a heavy chest cold.
Sullivan's son-in-law, Frecht, broke his left ankle and has cuts and bruises on his head, right arm and body.
Cacace, a private detective hired by Sullivan, is on the danger list with severe contusions of the brain (possible skull fracture). He also received cuts and bruises on his face, chest and legs.
Joseph Palmucci, 23-year-old Navy veteran from Ansonia, suffered a broken hip, broken jaw and other facial injuries. Alone in the other car, he was en route home from St. Mary's Hospital in Waterbury where he is an X-ray technician.

Hanna Strike Continues at Riddle Plant

ROSEBURG (AP) — The stalemate over a new contract between the Hanna Nickel Smelting Co., at Riddle and Local 5074, United Steelworkers of America, continued Thursday—sixth day of a strike that has idled some 475 workers.
There was no move by the union or management to start new negotiations for a contract. Earl S. Mollard, general manager of the Hanna works, where about 425 men have been off work, said the company had no plans to submit contract differences to mediation.
The union had submitted a counter-proposal to a company offer a week ago, but the company refused to consider it. The union is seeking a two-year contract calling for a 7 per cent across-the-board wage increase with other benefits and programs. The company has offered a three-year pact with a 15 cents-an-hour pay increase over the full three years.
Also idled are about 30 men at the Hanna Coal & Iron Corp. They are under separate contract, but are observing a picket line at the smelter.

Invitations also have been sent to the governors of Washington, Oregon and California, and to mayors and civil defense leaders in all West Coast target areas.
