

Salem Girl Wins Fair Dress Prize

Versatile Sara Mayers, 17, Salem, came out on top Tuesday after judges inspected seams, zippers and hems in 67 outfits in best dress divisions of the 4-H show at the Oregon State Fair.

Her entry, a turquoise sheath print dress and jacket, received the purple ribbon. Sara earned championship 4-H outdoor cooking earlier in the week.

Best dress project gives young seamstress chances to fashion different fabrics — wool, wool blends, silk and linens — into attractive outfits for church and concert wear, leaders explained during the judging.

Largest in History
The 4-H cake baking contest went down Tuesday as the largest in state fair history. Four-H members from 37 counties, Salem and Portland city 4-H clubs, stirred together cakes in a five-oven kitchen under critical eyes of judges.

Vera Sattler, 14, Oregon City, came in the winner of a $100 college scholarship, with Linda Lou Carlton, Portland, in second place. Last year Vera's sister, Henrietta, won the cake-baking prize.

Portland girls were taking top prizes in 4-H clothing Tuesday as judging went on toward Friday's climax, the dress parade. Portland's Lorelei Perry breezed through the Tuesday clothing contest to add another purple championship ribbon to her state fair collection. A blue tweed jacket and matching skirt, were the Tuesday entries.

Child Care, Cookery
Earlier she had won on child care and cookery. Janis Cesanni, 16-year-old Portlander, deftly sewed together coral lace and taffeta to champion 45 other entries in formal dress. Nancy Ewing, also Portland, stitched her way to championship honors in one of the largest 4-H clothing exhibits.

An apple print cotton apron, dirndl skirt and matching garment cover was her entry in Charmingly Yours, in which there were 135 entries.

A black wool dress flecked with soft blue brought an Oregon City girl, Marianna Koch, into the picture, as winner of Winter Dress clothing.

Elliot Prairie Man Burned
Statesman News Service
MONITOR, Sept. 4.—A. E. Loe, Elliot Prairie, was admitted to Silverton Hospital Monday evening for treatment of second degree burns on hands and arms. A hospital nurse described his condition today as being fairly good.

Loe was burned when an electric light he was holding fell and exploded, igniting his clothes which were soaked with gasoline. Loe was working on the underside of his truck at the time of the accident.

Death Claims August Zettl
Statesman News Service
MT. ANGEL, Sept. 4.—August Zettl, 76, of Salem, died Monday morning in a Salem hospital. He was a former resident of Mt. Angel, having lived here about 20 years ago.

Born in Germany, he has no known relatives.

Services will be in St. Mary's Catholic church, burial Calvary cemetery, Mt. Angel. Time of services will be announced by Unger funeral home.

Odds, Ends at Oregon Fair

Frank A. Riches, former Silverton youth, now a Yakima County, Wash., cattleman, was judging cattle at the Oregon State Fair this week when he learned that he had been selected as Yakima's Cattleman of the Year and is now up as candidate for the state honor.

Frank left for home Tuesday afternoon—said he had at least six weeks' work on his ranch in the Buena, Wash., community prior to the final judging.

"Dear John," the beautifully trained horse of Slim Pickins, appearing nightly at the State Fair rodeo, should represent a familiar breed to many Oregonians. He (the horse, that is) is one of the famous Apalosa breed, the horse of the Nez Perce Indians of Eastern Oregon and Idaho.

"John" was trained by the same ranch which turned out Roy Rogers' "Trigger". Not only that but Slim's young daughter often enters "John" in regular, fancy horse show competition in Northridge, Calif., where Slim resides with his wife and three daughters.

Anyone like hot apple fritter like Grandmother used to make? They got them at the fair. Bob Dreager with Kay Wollen Mills is chaffing his wife, Peg, and Alma Schroeder in a booth on the midway — near the grandstand.

Both Peg and Alma are better known behind the curtains in the legislature: Peg as Journal clerk and Alma as calendar clerk in the House of Representatives. The apples which the women are using for the fritters are furnished by Hood River apple growers, with Oregon white soft flour and Oregon's own White Satin sugar go into the "mix."

Alma claims she was reared on hot apple fritters, and the recipe the women are whipping up was that of her grandmother.

Goat Totals at Fair Recall 'Goat Annie'

Goats are more numerous at Oregon State Fair this year than they have been since the days of "Goat Annie," the famous late Mrs. Annie Sandman of Portland, who amused fairgoers by her parade around the Fairgrounds just at dusk, with her herd of 73 goats trailing her.

Goat kids are numerous, too, this year, and are drawing a constant ringside in their pens.

D. J. Breeden, Eugene took all championships in Saanens, other than Junior Champion doe, shown by Newcomb Ranch of Concord, Calif.

Newcombs also showed the junior and grand champion Toggenberg doe, while Robert Casebeer, Portland, showed the champion doe.

Senior and grand champion doe was shown by Casebeer, also in Nubians and French Alpines.

Tigard Girl's Guernsey Best Again

For the second year in a row, a six-year-old cow walked off with the champion Guernsey female award in the 4-H dairy competition Tuesday.

The cow, owned and exhibited by Jean Penrose, Tigard, also was named champion Guernsey female at the Washington County Fair held earlier this year.

Reserve champion Ayrshire went to junior helper, exhibited by Charles VanDyke, Forest Grove.

Salem Man's Wheat Display Takes First Place in Show

John C. Roth, Salem, placed first in Western Oregon, Hard Red Spring Wheat in a large class of grains entered in the 1956 Oregon State Fair.

Less than a dozen years ago, Oregon grains formed a very minor division at the state fair with only a handful of grain and less than half a dozen folk exhibiting. This year grain forms a large section of its own.

Attention will be focused Thursday on the annual Malted Barley trophy which will be presented during the afternoon. The Great Western Malt Company of Vancouver, Wash., and the California Malt Company of Los Angeles, are presenting a silver punch bowl, valued at $350, for the best exhibit of malted barley at the fair.

As the grain has to be tested, in addition to the visual judging, the winner had not yet been announced Tuesday.

Other grain firsts include: Commercial grain, Eastern Oregon White Club wheat, Bryan Benedict, Dufur; Western Oregon—

Hard Red Spring Wheat, John C. Roth, Salem; Soft white wheat, Myron Duyck, Banks; white oats, Earl J. Irel, Sherwood; grey oats, Frank Kosmalki, Hillsboro.

Grain in bundles — Red wheat, Earl Brunk, Salem; white wheat, Lloyd Roe, Salem; club wheat, Frank Wall, Dallas; white oats, James McCrae, Monmouth; oats, any other variety, Mrs. Niels Pederson, Rickreall; two-row barley, Mrs. A. Burnett, Monmouth; clovers, Duane Row, Tillamook; grasses, Joan Schroeder, Tillamook; any other grain, Ernest Solie, Salem.

Seed grains — Elmer wheat, Bryan Benedict, Dufur; white winter wheat, Lloyd Roe, Salem; White Holland wheat, Ralph Duyck, Banks; Hanchen barley, Henry N. Nordruff, Beaverton; White Winter barley, Bryan Benedict, Dufur.

Forage and grass seeds — Certified ladino clover, Ralph Duyck; alsike clover, Johnny Weisz, Gervais; white clover, James McCrae, Monmouth; Red, Clover, Earl J.

Irel, Sherwood; Hungarian vetch, F. Jenks, Tangent; hairy vetch, Lloyd Roe, Salem; English Ryegrass, Johnny Weisz; Crimson clover, Leonard A. Hays, Aumsville; Lotus Corniculatus, Lotu Major, Chewing Fescue, Italian rye grass, Alta Fescue, Johnny Weisz; Red creeping fescue, James McCrae, Monmouth; Merion Blue grass, Josephine Grower's Coop, Grants Pass; Austrian Winter field peas, Frank Wall, Dallas; Navy white beans, Mrs. R.
