

British Hint Suez Wrangle May Be Taken Before U.N.

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP)—British officials tonight signaled a major switch in Suez policy with strong hints that Britain will take the dispute to the United Nations. They emphasized the move, now under top-level study, will be made only if the Menzies mission to Cairo fails. Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia heads a five-nation committee which has been seeking vainly to persuade President Gamal Abdel Nasser to negotiate a new system of international control for the canal on the basis of an 18-nation plan drafted here.
