Wider Midway, Better Lighting System Asked For State Fairgrounds

A wider midway, improved lighting system, an additional 1,200 folding chairs, more toilet facilities and more benches for the Oregon State Fairgrounds were among the improvemnts listed in the request for a larger budget for the 1957-59 biennial at the official meting of the fair board Friday morning.

Total requested in the new budget is $963,532 compared to the previous budget of $856,047.

The board has been holding meeting each morning of the State Fair to discuss various programs and hear various complaints and suggestions of those connected with staging the State Fair. At Friday's meting the first action of the week was taken.

Dr. Earl B. Stewart, chairman of the commission said that more premium money for the constantly growing fair exhibits was also added to the list of budget rquests.

Enough Money

The additional funds are to come from moneys that the State Fair management has accumulated from fair operations. There are sufficient funds, Dr. Stewart explained, for necssary improvements without touching the $150,000 which has been set aside as a cushion for the rainy day which the management "hoped would never come."

The fair commission also agreed to meet the city's request for opening 16th street through the fairgrounds, provided necessary provisions could be agreed upon. The exchange would acquire for the fair commission a four-acre tract of land near the machinery building to the Southwest of the present grounds, in exchange for two pieces of land now owned by the fair commission and needed for the city street improvemnt. Also the fair commission would ask to retain jurisdiction over the portion of 16th street (which has its entrance to the fairgrounds on 17th street) running through the fairgrounds for the period of the state fair. Plans of the commission would be to close this portion during the State Fair.

Two Tracts

One of the two pieces which the city would acquire, lies directly east of the grounds and adjoining Willamette Cherry Growers, and the other piece is in the extreme southwest corner of the grounds.

The fairboard could not sell this to the city, but could give the city a continuing lease, Dr. Stewart said.

The exchange in property will probably take a legislative act, members of the commission stated.

Youth Takes Double Win in FFA Division

Irwin Riddell, Central FFA chapter, Independence, took a double win in the Future Farmer Sheep show Friday when he was named grand champion sheep showman, and his Southdown lamb was grand champion in the market lamb class.

Future Farmers took the spotlight in judging Friday, with the 4-H livestock projects already moved from the fairgrounds, and the open class livestock judging all completed.

Riddell took the showmanship title in the finals, winning over Gary Wolgemuth, Newberg, and Gene Bernards, McMinnville, both division champions.

Grand champion pen of three fat lambs, also Southdowns, are owned by Dick Latham, McMinnville.

Dairy showmanship purple was taken by Norman Finnicum, Dayton, the Jersey champion. Winners in the breeds were Aden Hester, Canby, Guernseys; Wayne Smith, Amity, Holsteins, and Allen Bauer, Forest Grove, "other breeds".

FFA officials reported that Safeway Stores were buying all fat lambs and hogs in the show of which owners wished to dispose. Portland market prices will be the go. Considering transportation and other costs, this will give the Future Farmers one cent premium above market.

Future Farmer livestock and dairy judging teams from 75 Oregon high schools will compete in Judging contests Saturday for trips to national contests as well as for state championships. The Saturday contests start at 9 a.m.

Decorations with a religious feeling, dubbed "The Circuit Riders and Catholic Fathers" was won by Menlo Park Garden Club of Portland. Here second place winner was Keizer Garden Club with Salem Camelia and Rhododendron Club winning third.
