Mussolini's Widow Asking To Rebury Husband's Body

By DOMENIC GIORDANO
ROME, Sept. 22 (AP)—Forgotten by the world, the widow of Benito Mussolini lives here in modest circumstances, caring for a crippled daughter and praying that before she dies she can rebury the former dictator in a family plot.

"I was left penniless but that does not matter," Donna Rachele Mussolini said in an interview. "The only thing I want back is my husband's body. I will never stop asking that they return it to the family."

The Fascist dictator was executed by partisans in 1945. The government has kept his burial place secret to prevent it from becoming a shrine for die-hard Fascists.

If the body is returned, Donna Rachele says she will bury it in the sun-burned Romagna area of his birth, at the foot of the little mountain-top republic of San Marino.

About 70
The woman, who once ranked only behind former Queen Elena in Italy, today is indistinguishable from thousands of other Italian matrons of her age—which she keeps secret but is about 70. She lives on a noisy, littered street in a new Roman quarter, a small, white-haired woman who carries her own shopping bag and bargains with shopkeepers over the price of food.

Home is a modest apartment which she shares with her youngest daughter Anna Maria, now 25 and crippled since childhood by polio. Also with her is her son Romano, 24, a professional jazz musician.

Another son, Vittorio, is a Buenos Aires businessman. A daughter, Edda Ciato, widow of the former Italian foreign minister, also lives in Italy but mixes with an international set strange to her mother. A fifth child, Bruno was killed in a plane crash at the start of World War II.

Fortune Lost
Mussolini's personal fortune was confiscated by the Italian government when he died. Until re-

Last July, a Roman court ordered the government to pay $192 monthly to Anna Maria and $112 monthly to Romano from their father's confiscated fortune. Now times are a little easier.

One topic is never mentioned—the fact that Mussolini had a long succession of mistresses and died beside one of them, Claretta Petacci.

Donna Rachele continues to work untiringly through friends to persuade the government to return the body of her husband so she can be buried beside him when the time comes.

LONG-RANGE TV EYED
LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Corp. is putting in special receiving equipment to catch American TV casts this autumn and winter. A BBC spokesman said suspense activity will improve chances of picking up an American picture in England up to Christmas time, and getting it on BBC general programs. In the United States, NBC failed on its first attempt to pick up BBC last Sunday.
