

AF Holds Off Buying Woodburn Air Base Site

Postponement of Air Base Alters Farmers' Plans

By CHARLES IRELAND
Valley Editor, The Statesman
FAIRFIELD, Oct. 4 — News that the Air Force has temporarily grounded plans for a big air base here left Fairfield residents up in the air today.

Some were jubilant over prospects of a reprieve from having to move, but overall sentiment was tempered with gloom.

Officials See At Least One Year's Delay

Purchase of land for the Air Force's projected $45,000,000 base west of Woodburn will be delayed at least one year. But whether there will be much delay in actual construction, tentatively scheduled to begin next fall, remains in doubt.

Every political campaign becomes one of a kind, and the one now being waged seems to be a little more "one of a kind" than usual.

2 United Fund Chapters Top 100 Per Cent

Two United Fund chapters have turned in over 100 per cent of their pledge quotas. UF President Herbert E. Barker said Thursday at a noon luncheon in the Hotel Marion.

I draw my conclusion, however, from observing the scene, particularly in Philadelphia and Washington. There were very few signs or banners or bumper strips — not nearly as many of the latter as in Oregon. Most noticeable of all was the lack of lapel buttons.
