Sgt. McKeon Spotlight Long Gone From Trudi Ederle, Sees Lighter First Woman to Swim English Channel Term as 'Fair'

toast of the nation, Trudi Ederic -first woman to swim the English channel - still likes to take a nostalgic look back at the glittering 20's.

By BOB SONDERSKOV SEABRIGHT, N.J., Oct. 6 (#) 'I was at the shore," the husky, middle-aged woman said. "I decided to swim down to a point of land. I made the four miles in one hour and 19 minutes ... not had. I'll tell you something, I won 5 on that race.

Five dollars isn't much compared with the $900,000 she earned in the two years after becoming the first woman to swim the English Channel. For this was Gertrude (Trudi) Ederle speaking of a swim she made at this resort where she summers, and that long ago splash to fame and fortune. Once the toast of the nation, Trudi hasn't seen much of the limelight since 1928. Through the years she has appeared in a few commercial ventures. A Connecticut resort invited some Olympic opefuls for a match last summer. Trudi presented the awards.

Decades of wars and troubles have piled on the glittering 20's that saw Trudi accomplish her feat Many men and women have swum the Channel since. In 1950 Florence Chadwic' broke Trudi's record of 14 hours and 31 minutes with a phrnomenal 13 hour, 20 minute crossing.

Blazed Trail

But Trudi's performance,

Aug. 6, 1926 blazed the trail. She enjoys recalling those days when honor - "Trudi" - when there were licker tape showers and she made nearly a million dollars in two years of vaudeville and sports
