

Here's what Salem's two new $1,000,000 junior high school buildings will look like. Bids will be opened on the nearly identical structures Nov. 19 at a special meeting of the Salem School Board and construction is expected to get underway immediately, according to Supt. Charles D. Schmidt. Perspective above is actually of Waldo Junior High which will be located on Lansing Avenue near Washington Grade School in northeast Salem. Judson Junior High, which will differ only in color of the brick exterior trim and exterior paint from Waldo, will be located on a Jones Road site in the Salem Heights-Liberty area. Schools, designed by Salem Architect William L. Williams, are intended to handle 1,000 pupils when completed. Cost may keep the school district from awarding contracts to include all classrooms in the connecting center wing of the building. Finished building will have 22 modular classrooms along with special education, industrial arts, science, homemaking, art, music and physical education facilities. Gymnasium-auditorium is at right rear corner; shop wing is at left. Offices and library facilities will be included in front wing.

Rescue Aid Sent To Area

Position Fixed Near Azores; 59 Aboard Craft

NEW YORK, Friday, Oct. 12 (AP)—Pan American World Airways reported early today three of its planes crossing the Atlantic heard distress signals from the missing U. S. Air Force plane with 59 Americans aboard. The Air Force rushed rescue planes off from the Azores to search for the source of SOS messages. The four-engine military transport was reported lost early Thursday morning on a flight from Britain to the Azores. Pan American dispatchers at Idlewild Airport, working on a chart, fixed the position of the downed aircraft as about 150 miles north of the Azores. Near Azores. The airline said its first message arrived at 10:15 p.m. last night from Pan American Flight 71. The plane was then about 300 miles north of the Azores, the airline said. The second message, at 12:15 a.m. today, came from Pan American Flight 65, also bound for New York. The plane reported a "very strong SOS received." The plane was then about 500 miles north of the Azores. The third message was received at 12:23 a.m. from Flight 115. It also picked up another SOS message. Its position was reported as about 300 miles west of the Azores. The airline said its dispatchers computed the approximate position of the downed transport from the three SOS reports. Search Azores. An armada of aircraft had crisscrossed the Atlantic all day yesterday in hopes of locating the huge C-119 Liftmaster. They failed to locate any signs of the aircraft. One false bit of hope yesterday turned out to be nothing more than a garbled version of a message between ocean freighters discussing the search operation. The homeward bound plane, loaded with military personnel, vanished somewhere between England and the Azores. Its last message came from a point about 100 miles southwest of the westernmost tip of England. The plane had fuel to last only until early yesterday when it was due to land at Lajes in the Azores. Aboard were two Air Force officers and 48 enlisted men returning to Lincoln, Neb., Air Force Base after a tour of duty in Britain. The crew consisted of three officers and six enlisted Navy men.

IT SEEMS TO ME

By Charles F. Sprague

The UN Security Council is wrestling with the controversy over who is to control the Suez Canal, without much sign of success thus far, but with the pressure which offers hope of settlement through negotiation. After the U. S. election on the eve of the 11th session of United Nations General Assembly it is safe to say that the old issue of admitting China to the United Nations will bob up. The platforms of both parties in the United States oppose any such action. Red China's failure to carry out its agreement to release Americans detained in that country and its callous attitude over shooting down a U. S. patrol plane serve to harden American opposition. The real question, though, is whether the United States can "hold the line" with other UN members to deny Red China a majority vote. If that can be done, another year of "grace" will be obtained.

In this connection, the London Economist offers the suggestion that the problem be solved by admitting to membership both Red China and Taiwan, as independent sovereignties (though it doesn't say which would be tagged as the permanent member with veto power). The idea is not new, but has had little consideration of late. Presumably the United States still would protest Red China's admission because of its demonstrated indifference to amicable relations with other nations. Given some indication by Red China of respect for rules of international (Continued on editorial page 4.)

Negro Solon Swings to Ike

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Rep. Adam Powell Jr., Harlem's Democratic congressman, announced today he will support President Eisenhower for re-election because he is pleased with Eisenhower's attitude on civil rights.

The Negro House member, who is also pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist church in New York, told reporters at the White House he feels that Adlai Stevenson "snubbed the whole liberal group—Republicans and Democrats" on the civil rights issue this year. Powell supported Stevenson in 1952. But now, he said, he intends to form a national organization to work for a second term for Eisenhower. It won't be a Negro movement, he added, but "an organization of independent Democrats for Eisenhower."

Salem Woman Critical After Clothes Burn

A Salem woman was critically burned Wednesday when her clothing caught fire from a heating stove. Mrs. Jean Miller, 695 S. 19th St., ran a half block down the street with her clothing ablaze before neighbors and an unidentified passerby stopped her and smothered the flames.

Salem General hospital attendants said her condition was "poor." She had second degree burns over most of her body, face and head, they said. Mrs. Miller told firemen she was standing by the stove when it backfired, but firemen said they could find no evidence of a backfire.

The house was not damaged, but firemen found fire in bedding where they said Mrs. Miller apparently had tried to smother the flames.

A divorcee, Mrs. Miller was home with her two younger children at the time of the accident, about 11:15 a.m. The children, Darrell, 4, and Peggy, 1, were being cared for by a neighbor, Mrs. Fred Lannigan, 774 S. 18th St. An older child, Richard, 7, was in school.

Princess Sees Two Witch Doctors 'Drive Out Devils'

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika, Oct. 11 (AP)—Britain's Princess Margaret today saw two witch doctors "drive out devils" from Africans in a frenzied "healing" dance never before performed in front of a white audience. While spectators watched in rapt silence, the two witch doctors hypnotized their two patients, Africans who believed they were under a spell. Then the doctors began a jerking, twitching dance to the throbbing of drums which the patients took up, movement by movement. As the eerie dance of witch doctors and patients reached its pulsating climax, Margaret's lips parted in wonder and an occasional visible shudder passed through the 26-year-old visitor from Buckingham Palace. The dance ended when the patients collapsed in exhaustion. The spectacle was the high spot of a program of entertainments

Taxmen Accuse Ex-Operators of Timberline Lodge

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Charles W. and Elizabeth Slaney of Portland, Ore., former operators of Timberline Lodge and several theaters in northern Oregon, are accused by the government of concealing thousands of dollars of income in the last decade. The government has sued in the federal tax court here for $319,776 in taxes and penalties. The Slaneys deny they owe the money. All residents were ordered to remain indoors from 7:30 last night to 10 o'clock this morning. Cruising patrols encountered only small knots of stragglers and dispersed them without gunfire. The riots sent about 145 persons to hospitals and countless hundreds were treated for minor wounds. The spark that set off the rioting—a dispute over pasting red and blue Nationalist Chinese flags on walls of a government resettlement housing project—has been all but forgotten since the fighting began Wednesday. Subsequent battling went far afield from this simple incident. Damage was counted in the millions.

Travel Gets New Meaning For Teachers

By THOMAS G. WRIGHT JR., Staff Writer, The Statesman A trip to Bermuda or Acapulco took on new meaning Thursday night for Salem's public school teachers after the Salem School Board decided they could travel part of the way toward meeting education requirements by traveling.

The board voted to recognize the broadening value of travel for classroom teachers, amending in-service regulations to give teachers up to six term hours of study credit for approved travel in the U.S. and foreign countries. Detailed Route. The credit, however, won't be simply a bonus for teacher vacations in far away places with strange sounding names. They'll have to submit a detailed itinerary indicating the educational value, and complete a report or project within three months after return in order to qualify.

Under the plan, recommended by Supt. Charles D. Schmidt and the economic welfare committee of Salem Classroom Teachers Association, teachers could earn 45 points for a week of approved foreign travel or two weeks of approved U.S. travel. They could accumulate 300 points, or credit for six term hours during a ten-year period providing no more than 150 points were for travel inside the 48 states.

Salem school regulations now require teachers to complete nine term hours of study in each five-year period and must at least have nine hours of on-campus credit for every ten years. With the amendment teachers could take nine credit hours of summer school work, pick up three more hours through extension work and complete the 10-year study requirements through travel.
