Fire Fells Steeple

Church Destroyed CALLENDER, Iowa, Oct. 20—Flames began eating away at the supporting base of the steeple of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church in Callender Friday, apparently from faulty electric wiring. Less than an hour later the steeple began toppling. It landed on its top as it struck the ground. The church was leveled by the flames. The structure was built in 1890, but the congregation had planned to rebuild it. (AP Wirephoto.)

It's a Boooy LONG BEACH, Cal., Oct. 20—Proud father, Mahlon Faust, lease manager for an outdoor advertising firm, displays his 10-day-old son Timothy. Timothy was announced to passersby by a 24 sheet billboard near the company's plant. (AP Wirephoto.)

More Rain Scattered showers are expected Sunday in most of area from the Appalachians eastward to the coast; in the Gulf coast area, and the northern Rockies. Some light rain is expected in eastern portions of middle Atlantic states. It will be generally fair elsewhere. It will be cooler from the Dakotas westward to the Pacific coast and warmer in central Plains. (AP Wirephoto Map.)

Gets Paint Job CASPER, Wyo., Oct. 20—Red paint is splashed on the antlers of Bimbo, a pet deer by Jack Cummings as his grandson, David Street, 3, holds the paint can. Cummings, owner of a lodge on Casper Mountain, gives Bimbo a paint job every year to protect him from big game hunters. (AP Wirephoto.)

Science May End Drudgery Of Ironing

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 20 (AP)—The chore of ironing clothes eventually may be just a bad memory for the housewife.

Within 10 years she will have 50 per cent less ironing to do, according to a forecast made by scientists of the Midwest Research Institute here.

New kinds of fabrics, washing machines and detergents will team up to keep wrinkling at a minimum for most clothes. The next 10 years will see an acceleration of the recent trend toward wash 'n' wear shirts, dresses and suits.

This look ahead also foresees homes easier to clean, or homes which just don't get so dirty, and new ways of preparing and storing foods to ease the task of cooking meals. But no automatic way of bundling the youngsters into bulky winter clothing is on the horizon as yet.

The forecasts come from William W. Niven Jr., manager of the chemical engineering division, and Mrs. Ethel J. Russell, head of the home economics section of the institute, a nonprofit, independent research center.

They and their associates are thinking about unmet needs of homemakers that could be solved by new ideas and research. Some will be suggested to firms which might want to develop the new products and ideas.

You can expect more dehydrated foods, including tasty steaks and seafoods. All you'll do is add the water removed in the processing. Dehydrated foods will be easy to keep without refrigeration or bulky packaging. Army researchers have developed dehydrated steaks which rival natural steaks in flavor.

Atomic Sterilization
Some foods can be sterilized by atomic rays for easy long-life storage. Midwest Research Institute scientists are seeking methods of preventing unnatural changes in flavor produced in certain foods by such radiation sterilization.

Negro Transit System Ruled Illegal

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 20 (AP)—City Judge John Rudd today found 21 members of the Negro Inter Civic Council and the Council itself guilty of operating an illegal transportation system. He fined each $500 and sentenced them to 60 days in jail but suspended the jail sentence and placed them on probation for a year. The fines were stayed pending a defense motion for a new trial which is expected by Oct. 24. The judge's decision was not accompanied by an opinion.

"Based on the law and the facts the court finds the defendants guilty as charged," he said.

Air Pocket Refuge For Miners Proposed

CALCUTTA, Oct. 20 (AP)—A doctor suggests air pockets be created under pressure in coal mines, and food stocked to provide refuges for trapped miners. Dr. M. Damodaran, superintendent of Asansol Hospital, noted that 11 Indian miners recuperating here survived 19 days trapped in a mine because a natural air pocket held back poisonous gases.
