South High Juniors Given Special Test

South Salem High School juniors spent two days of this week taking the Iowa Test.

The test covered various subjects ranging from ninth grade level to college sophomore level.

The results of the test will be sent to Iowa State University where it will be compared with over one million copies of the same test that students all over the United States have taken.

The Photography Club plans to have guest speakers throughout the year as they learn the basic fundamentals of photography.

A mock election, sponsored by the Forum Club, will be carried out Tuesday. Any South High student who wants to vote may do so.

Included on the ballot will be nominees for President, U.S. senator, member of Congress for the first district, governor and secretary of state.

Vet Finally Sets Foot in United States

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Jack Thompson, a veteran of 23 years' service in the U. S. Navy, never set foot on the continental United States until recently.

Thompson, a resident of Wahiawa on the island of Oahu, Hawaii, came to San Diego to compete in a navy tennis tournament. A native of American Samoa, he joined the Navy and went through recruit training there in 1953. He was assigned to the famed Pita Fita Guard, a special organization established by the Navy in Samoa in 1901.

After the guard was disbanded in 1951, Thompson and his family moved to Hawaii. He has been stationed there since that time as a member of the regular navy.

Israel Official Says U.N. Failed Protection Role

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—Israeli Delegate Abba Eban said today the U.N. has failed to protect Israeli citizens from the Arab. He said Israel will defend herself but will not start a war.

Speaking to the Security Council after consultations in Jerusalem, Eban read a long list of incidents along the Jordan-Israel border and said:

"The Security Council, the secretary general, the truce supervision organization and the Mixed Armistice Commission have, despite all their efforts, not been able to make the life of any single Israeli citizen safer than it would otherwise have been."

The ballots will be counted by a special activities committee of Jim Seltz, chairman, and Dale Bunn, Bev Fulton, Kathi Helzel, Ed Martin and Kathy Schmidt.

A rousing convention was held Wednesday.

J. J. McCarty did the honors as moderator of a panel. On the Republican side were Sally Joseph, Jo Anne Gray and Jean Bartschy. Members of the Democratic side were Maurine Cople, Clevea Rohr and Shirley Wahl.

Now that the students feel like doing something about politics, a mock election is scheduled for Oct. 31.

The senior girls did an extra amount of thinking Wednesday, when they took a two hour Merit Scholarship screening test.

After Honor Society induction this week, the honor cup was awarded to the Freshman B class.

Class cheers are floating through the halls. Junior, sophomore and freshman girls are trying out for class cheerleaders. They will be elected Friday.

The junior class will celebrate their least day, a day in honor of a selected patron saint. Monday. Girls in that class will attend Mass and receive Holy Communion at St. Joseph's church on that day. Breakfast and lunch, with entertainment, are also planned. Something special on that day, also, for the Juniors—no uniforms!

'Barn Book' Holds Sheep Breeding Data

By LILLIE L. MADSEN

Farm Editor, The Statesman

A "Barn Book" is a new wrinkle in Willamette Valley farm activities. The idea was conceived by the newly formed Marion County Sheep Improvement Association, and unlike many such conceived ideas, was not permitted to be before birth.

Members of the association are now receiving the book along with the first "circular letter" also in the mail, from the association's board of directors.

The book was sized to carry in the pocket of the sheep owner when at work around the sheep barns. It fits into a shirt pocket. It is made of durable, heavy-covered material and reinforced with plastic. It's 88 pages contains information needed daily by sheep breeders, and in addition there is room for recording breeding, lambing, fleece and flock summary data for 150 ewes, the average size of the larger flocks in Marion County.

West Oregon Tops

The Marion County association, headed by Douglas Chambers of Salem, was formed to "keep Willamette Valley Sheep up and coming and head of the sheep industry of other areas," according to directors. Western Oregon recently passed Eastern Oregon as a sheep breeding county, and the Willamette Valley sheep have created considerable interest in California, whose shepherds are continuously buying Oregon rams for their range flocks, officers of the new association report.

The first membership letter, now in the mail, includes information on buying and using ear tags, reminders on proper winter sheep feeding, precautions and suggestions to use in connections with sheep disease. Further letters will follow, according to George Cadmus, Turner, secretary for the group. Cadmus says that the membership letters will contain timely tips on flock management and recent research developments, plus notices of various association activities, including meetings, demonstrations, field trips and give assistance in record keeping.

No. 29 Meeting

A meeting of the association has been scheduled for Nov. 29 in the county agents' office in the Marion County Courthouse. This has been set for 7:30 p.m. and will feature a panel of experts on the subject of antibiotics in sheep feeding.

The Improvement Association will also join with the Marion County Livestock Association in sponsoring one meeting on livestock record keeping as part of a four-session short course in January.

In addition to Chambers and Cadmus, directors include Walter Smith, St. Paul; Louis Schacht, Seio, and Ted Rostvold, Mt. Angel.

Sample Ballot Stamp as Campaign Material Raises Protest, Law Point

Objection to the use of sample ballots as campaign material spread from Southern Oregon to the Willamette Valley Friday and a resultant survey appeared to show an uncertainty in the law itself on some points.

The initial objection came from Circuit Judge David Vandenberg of Klamath Falls regarding the distribution in the Curry County courthouse of ballots rubber-stamped with the name of Supreme Court Justice William McAllister.

The furor came to the valley when it was learned that sample ballots also had been stamped with Judge McAllister's name at the Polk County Courthouse and were available to the public there. It spread into new fields with this week's distribution in the Salem area of several thousand sample ballots paid for by the McAllister for Supreme Court Committee.

In neither instance has willful wrong-doing been implied, since various use of sample ballots has become frequent in recent years. But they raised again the question of legal interpretation of election statutes.

The Improvement Association will also join with the Marion County Livestock Association in sponsoring one meeting on livestock record keeping as part of a four-session short course in January.

In addition to Chambers and Cadmus, directors include Walter Smith, St. Paul; Louis Schacht, Seio, and Ted Rostvold, Mt. Angel.

Another "249-500" says "No person shall knowingly print, cause or permit to be printed any ballot in any form than the one prescribed in ORS 249-570, or with any other names thereon x x x." Still another (260-440) says: "No person shall endeavor to induce any voter to mark his ballot in any particular way, or before or after voting to show or explain how he marks or has marked his ballot."

Whether this means sample ballots can carry no impressions other than those on the official ballots, no matter whether printed at taxpayers' or private expense, remains to be decided.

The overall question as to the use of sample ballots was sparked by the recent purchase in Marion County of 10,000 sample ballots, paid for by the McAllister-for-Supreme-Court committee, on which was printed plainly that "This is not an official ballot and is not paid for by public funds but is printed and distributed for campaign purposes." The name "Wm. McAllister" was printed on the write-in line.
