Speaker Lauds 'Spiritual Foundation of Education'

MT. ANGEL, Nov. 20—Americans are, above everything, a basically spiritual people, Dean Seward Reese of Willamette University's law school told St. Mary's Public School Parents Club last night. Reese declared that, despite periodic trends toward the contrary, the "good common sense of the American public" has triumphed and education once more recognizes the need for a spiritual foundation.

Reese cited, as trends away from this feeling, the "cynicism of the 1920's when the enthusiasm for the scientific approach tried to prove that the answer was in the test tube," and the later "progressive education" which "advocated the complete absence of inhibitions in a child.

The speaker stated that education in the United States was started by those with religious belief, that the first and still great universities of the U.S. were started by religious organizations and the early cultural education was followed naturally by liberal arts and technical teaching.

When the state universities were founded, Reese said, it was feared the spiritual would be lost. But the trend towards materialism has always been of a temporary nature, he declared, and Thanksgiving this week "finds the country as on the first Thanksgiving, grateful and proud of its spiritual heritage and belief."

ENROLLMENT REACHES 200
AURORA, Nov. 20—With the addition of the name of Miss Inez Sasse of Newberg, the enrollment of North Marion Union High School has reached the 200 mark.

Dear Ann Landers:

Don't Go Fishing For Man in Tub

Dear Ann Landers: Are there any men left who will settle for a ride in the country and good wholesome conversation? I'm an intelligent young divorcee who behaves like a lady, dresses conservatively, reads good books and enjoys good company. I'm tired of TV and girl friends. I'm also tired of men who want to wrestle. I think I've heard every kind of line imaginable. The last one really threw me. What's your opinion of a man who wants to "take the sadness out of my eyes"? Isn't that a beauty?—MRS. C.E.D.

These characters who want to "take the sadness out of your eyes" are usually more interested in putting a little "gladness" into their own.

Don't lower your standards, redouble your efforts. There are plenty of fellows around who are looking for decent women. Join clubs, the Ground Observer Corps, night school classes. Get interested in politics, art, adult education. Visit hospitals through the Red Cross Grey Ladies. Get moving. If you want to catch something, don't fish in a bath-tub.

Dear Ann: I've been married 16 years and have three kids. My husband makes $69 a week after deductions, and would you believe it, most of his money goes for taxi fare.

He stops at a tavern every night after work and drinks himself silly. Then he forgets where he parked the car and has to take a taxi home. The next morning, if his brother can't drive him around town to find the car, he has to hire another taxi.

The kids have holes in their shoes and their father is riding around in taxi cabs. What shall I do?—MRS. V.G.

The next time "The Professor" forgets where he parked the car, invest in one more taxi ride and take him to a meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous. A man who has to get swizzled every night after work is an alcoholic and needs help to get well. Your husband drinks not because he WANTS to, but because he NEEDS to in order to face life. This is an illness that can be cured if he'll make the effort. Good luck.

Dear Ann: My wife and I have moved for the fourth time in five years. The last time almost broke my heart. I put so much work into the lawn and garden I hated to leave it. But we've had rotten luck with neighbors.

When we first move in the neighbors are always friendly and warm. After awhile my wife gets real chummy with the one across the street or next door and then the trouble begins.

They wind up on the outs, not speaking to one another and my wife cries and tells me we have to move to a different neighborhood. This is expensive and time consuming and I'm sick of it. We've been in this house three months and I see signs of trouble again. What shall I do?—WORN-OUT HUSBAND

What's the sense in moving when you're taking your problem right along with you . . . your wife. No one can have this much "bad luck" with neighbors.

If your wife is between 40 and 50 she may need the help of a doctor. Many women get sensitive, nervous and unlike themselves during this difficult time. Suggest she get a check-up. The new drugs have been very successful in many cases. (Copyright 1956, Field Enterprises, Inc.)

Clair Cobb of Jefferson Leaves $62,000 Estate

JEFFERSON, Nov. 20—Clair Cobb, partner in the Cobb Manufacturing Co. of Jefferson who died Nov. 12, left an estate valued at $62,000 a petition filed in Marion County Probate Court indicated today.

Cobb was half owner in the firm which was engaged in metals manufacturing here. His half interest was valued at $30,000. Remainder of the estate included real property valued at $11,500. The other partner was his mother, only legal heir to his estate.

Circuit Judge Val D. Sloper issued an order Tuesday naming Cobb's two brothers, Glen and Rex, both of Jefferson, as administrators of the estate. Cobb, 56, at the time of his death, left no will. He was unmarried.

Party Fetes Newcomers

MT. ANGEL, Nov. 20—Mr. and Mrs. Ray Keagbine were hosts for an informal party at the Legion hall Sunday honoring Mr. and Mrs. Philip Keagbine, recently arrived in Mt. Angel.

A large gathering of friends and relatives attended. A buffet luncheon and dancing were enjoyed.

Philip is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Keagbine and his bride of a year is the former Eileen Glahis of Shenandoah, Pa., where the couple was married. They are with the elder Keagbines at present but will leave to attend college after Christmas.

OSC May Send Float To Pasadena

CORVALLIS, Nov. 20—Plans to have a float represent this city in the Tournament of Roses parade at Pasadena on New Year's Day are underway here. Rex Smith, a former councilman, has learned from parade headquarters that a spot in the parade is always reserved for the school representing the Pacific Coast Conference.

Smith said it would cost from $3,000 to $5,000 to have a float built professionally. He said he had tentative plans to raise the money here via a public drive. Whether the city or Oregon State College would sponsor the float was not decided immediately.

LOVE IT

When your name is a household word, be prepared to see it pop up in very strange contexts. A sophomore Latin student, for example, opined that the triumvirate which ruled Rome when Caesar got knocked off was "Hart, Schaffner, and Marcus." Actually all Hart Schaffner & Marx ever did was make fine clothes (they still do), but there you are: get a name, and everybody wants to prove he knows it.
