Bill Aims to Delay End of Indian Pact

A bill designed to delay for 18 months the proposed termination of the Klamath Indian Reservation has been introduced in Congress, it was reported Saturday.

The proposed legislation was sponsored by Representative Al Ullman, (D-Ore.), according to information received from the congressman's office in Washington. A companion measure was also sponsored in the Senate by Senator Richard L. Neuberger.

Ullman said failure to delay termination could only result in a great waste of extensive natural resources as well as harm to the best interests of the Klamath tribe.

In addition, he stated, the bill would provide for reimbursement by the Federal Government to the tribe for expenses incident to the termination program.

The proposed legislation has been referred to the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee of which Ullman is a member.

WU Slates Campaign For Clothing

Willamette University students will canvass the Salem area this Wednesday evening on their annual Unesco-sponsored clothing drive.

Residents are asked to turn on their porch lights if they wish to contribute clothing to the drive, which will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Clothing collected will be forwarded to the American Friends Service Committee for immediate shipment overseas. All types of clothing can be used, with the exception of light weight materials or articles needing considerable repair.

Foresters to Eye Genetics

Research in forest genetics will be a top subject Monday night at banquet meeting of the Society of American Foresters at the Hotel Marion. More than 130 foresters and guests are expected to attend.

A discussion panel will be headed by Richard Berry, research director of the State Forestry Department. Panel members will include Dr. John W. Duffield, Industrial Forestry Association, Nisqually, Wash.; Rox Silen, U. S. Service Research Center, Corvallis; and Helge Irgens-Moller, Oregon State College.

The group will be concerned with improvement of timber crops through research in genetics. Objective of a current program is producing better timber in a shorter period of time.

A 6:30 p.m. social hour will open the Monday evening affair.

2 Burglaries Noted in City
Two burglaries were reported to city police Saturday. At West Salem Boy Scout Hall, $2 in cash was stolen and property destroyed. At a construction site at 1100 North 13th St., $125 in tools were taken from a shed.

Stolen at the Scout hall, Second Street, West Salem, were $2 from a desk, a first aid kit in a metal case, and a gold eagle for the top of a flag, police said. Considerable damage also was done in the interior of the building, police added. Method of entry was not determined.

The thief at the 13th Street construction site pried open the shed door, police said.

In two other thefts reported Saturday to police, a $45 watch belonging to Sandra Kelley, 1605 Jefferson St., was stolen from a locker room at the YMCA while she was swimming in the pool Friday evening; and a bicycle was stolen from Michael Brennan, 725 Speer Ave., at Leslie Junior High School.

The course will include 14 sessions on the fundamentals of square dancing and will be held each Wednesday under the instruction of Rosemary Wiles. Single or married adults can attend the first session as a guest before registering for the course.

Scholarship Test Draws City Pupils

Six students from Salem were among 88 in the state who Saturday took college board examinations in Portland in a further bid for National merit scholarships.

The students were finalists from among an original field of aspirants which numbered 185,000 nationally. The national field was cut to 7,200 for the Saturday exams in which 700 scholarships were on the line.

Announcements of results reportedly will be made sometime in April.

Salem students who made a bid for the scholarships Saturday included three girls from North Salem High and three boys from South Salem. The girls were Beth Horn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Horn, 225 N. Liberty St.; Marjorie Simila, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Simila, 1334 Marion St.; and Carol Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Mason, Salem Route 2, Box 267.

The boys were William Richter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Richter, 1110 Barnes Ave.; John Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harvey Jr., 2855 Peck Ave.; and Charles Lofgren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Lofgren, 245 Alice St.

Also taking the college board exam Saturday were some 15 Salem students who were not contenders in the National Merit program.

Nine Valley Men to Join Army Ranks
Eight men from Salem and one from Amity will report for induction in the United States Army Thursday.

The group will report to Local Board No. 10, 396 Ferry St. Wednesday, for induction which will be in Portland.

Salem inductees are Edward Clark Watkins, James Lawrence Nordal, Donald Francis Pea, I. Forrest Lee Logan, Kenneth Norman Doughton, Michael Steven Engsin, William Elmer Balch and Stephen Duane Wood.

The Amity inductee is Walter Ace Crippan.

BLM Timber Sales Jump In '56 Tally
Timber sales in 1956 on lands administered by the Salem District of the Bureau of Land Management increased $1,195,000 as compared to 1955, District Forester Otto Krueger said Saturday.

Total '56 sales amounted to 185 million board feet valued at $6,030,000, compared to 136 million board feet sold in '55 for $4,835,000. The '56 figure included 64 million board feet of salvage timber valued at over $2 million.

Average price bid per thousand board feet for Douglas fir in the last half of 1956 was $35.69, Krueger said. Number of tracts purchased totaled 97, involving volumes ranging from a thousand to 8 1/2 million board feet.

In order to handle the load of new timber purchasers were required to build 25 miles of mainline logging roads in addition to many miles of spur roads.

Artificial reforestation following logging was provided on these tracts on a record scale. The program included the planting of 1,703,000 seedlings on 3,000 acres and the distribution by hand and air of seed on an additional 1,100 acres.

In addition purchasers of timber on O & C and public domain lands managed by the Bureau were required to leave the cutover areas free from the fire hazard of standing snags. This involved felling 80,000 dead or potentially hazardous trees on 10,200 acres, Krueger said.

Movie Club Dinner Due
The Salem Movie Club will begin its new year Tuesday with a 6:30 p.m. covered dish dinner in the chapel building at the rear of Salem Memorial Hospital, 665 S. Winter St. Miss Melba Conrad, president, will conduct the business meeting beginning at 7:45.

Two motion pictures in color and sound will be shown. One, "Life Along the Waterways," by Roy C. Wilcox, shows the animal and plant life in and along a stream. The other, "Thru the Window Pane," by Emma Seely, is of a robin rearing her young in a nest built on a window sill. Both are from the film library of the Photographic Society of America. Movie-making hobbyists are invited to attend.

Mrs. Morstad's Rites Tuesday
Funeral for Mrs. Mollie Morstad, 80, Salem, will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Virgil T. Golden Mortuary.

Mrs. Morstad died after a heart attack just before midnight Friday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. T. F. Bridgman, 2286 Hazel Ave., with whom she had been living since July.

Mrs. Morstad was born in Norway, coming to the United States at the age of 2 and settling in Boston, N.D. She married Olaf Morstad and moved to Leeds, N.D.

She is survived by four children and three great-grandchildren.

Officiating at funeral services will be the Rev. John Cauble, pastor of St. Mark Lutheran Church. Burial arrangements are pending.

Printing From Clay Tablets to Modern Color to Go on Display in Salem Soon

By JERRY STONE
Staff Writer, The Statesman

phics of William Randolph Hearst's mother and father, for which the publisher paid $100,000 to famed printer John Henry

Nash, a former graphic arts teacher at University of Oregon. Nash was known as one of the classic printers of the Pacific Coast in earlier days.

A particularly interesting part of the exhibit is the array of New York Times page one reproductions dating from the first publication in 1861 and progressing through all major stories since the transition in makeup and head style is of interest to printer and journalist alike—and should be to the general public.

John K. Standish, Salem printer, poses with a portion of his exhibit which will feature International Printing Week here. He holds ancient Persian tablets and in background are a Tibetan prayer scroll and show handbills from Gold Rush days.

The evolution of printing from clay tablets of 600 B.C. to type faces and color processes of the present is displayed in an exhibit opening Monday at Meier & Frank store. From the vast collection of John K. Standish, Salem printer, the exhibit is a feature of International Printing Week.

Standish, who began the avocation some 30 years ago "because I was interested in history" values his store of books and manuscripts and other items at above $10,000.

Oldest part of the display is the clay tablets found in a decaying fortress near the Persian city of Ur. Translations of the ancient inscriptions indicate they are tantamount to notes of indebtedness—showing that, people in those days also were up to the neck in creditors.

Standish said his collection formerly included some Egyptian papyrus "but it crumbled into dust one day when exposed to the sun."

Tibetan Prayer Scroll
The display includes a Tibetan prayer scroll printed from a device called a "prayer wheel" about 1200 A.D. There are two hands rendered in the pages from John Fox's books of 1284 A.D.—books which now hold a place of honor in the British Museum.

The display includes magnificent examples of ancient hand-lettering such as an introductory page from the Lindisfarne Gospels of 17th Century England. The masterpiece was rendered by Eadfrith, bishop of Lindisfarne and contains an amazing interwoven scheme of colors.

Standish's collection also contains old show handbills in characteristic flourish-type from the days of the California Gold Rush. Also included are two biographies of William Randolph Hearst's mother and father, for which the publisher paid $100,000 to famed printer John Henry Nash, a former graphic arts teacher at University of Oregon. Nash was known as one of the classic printers of the Pacific Coast in earlier days.

A particularly interesting part of the exhibit is the array of New York Times page one reproductions dating from the first publication in 1861 and progressing through all major stories since the transition in makeup and head style is of interest to printer and journalist alike—and should be to the general public.

That first Times issue had as its top head (1 col.) "The War Commences," describing outbreak of the Civil War. Other immortal stories are represented in the parade of Times front pages—such stories as Lincoln's assassination "An Awful Event," said the heading; Completion of the transcontinental railroad, 1869; The Chicago fire in 1871; Assassination of President McKinley, 1901; The San Francisco earthquake, 1906; "Peary Reaches North Pole," 1909.

Historic Flight Told
There is told the story of Glenn Curtiss' historic flight from Albany, N. Y., to New York City "At 54 Miles an Hour." Then come the sinkings of the Titanic (1912) and the Lusitania (1915). President Wilson's call for war, 1917; and the Armistice, 1918.

There is, of course, the issue telling the world of Lindbergh's flight from New York to Paris May 22, 1927. And then follow issues relating to the rise of Hitler and World War II.

Standish, a printer with the Statesman-Journal Corp., has spent most of his life in the Northwest. He has been editorial worker as well as printer during his career of better than 30 years.

His collection—a labor of love with him—surely ranks as one of the most complete of its type on the West Coast. It will be on display throughout this week in the auditorium at Meier & Frank.

Train Leaves Rails In Macleay Area

MACLEAY, Jan. 12 — Southern Pacific's Springfield Logger local freight train was delayed about four hours this morning by a derailment of several cars 3/4 mile north of Macleay about 10 a.m.

One car buckled, three carloads of logs spilled and ten more derailed. Cause of the 10 a.m. mishap was undetermined, according to the yardmaster's office.

No other trains were delayed but Macleay Road was blocked about three hours, necessitating a detour to roads 1 1/2 miles to the north or south.

Junior First Citizen Choice Due Jan. 24

Seven sealed envelopes containing names of nominees for Salem's Junior First Citizen award, sponsored by the Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce, will be turned over Wednesday to a board of judges by Roy Horine, Jaycee program nomination chairman.

Identity of the winner will be revealed Jan. 24 at a dinner in the Hotel Marion. Guest speaker at the banquet will be Dr. John Richards, chancellor of the State System of Higher Education.

Names of five judges who have been selected to pick a winner have been kept secret. They include a clergyman, social worker, insurance agent, hotel manager and service club president.

The award will go to a Salem man between the ages of 21-35, and will be based on his contributions to community welfare during the year, evidence of leadership ability and evidence of personal or business progress during the year.

Death Claims H. P. Given

Harry P. Given, retired electrical engineer of 1565 N. Commercial St. died in a local hospital Saturday after an illness of eight months. He was 73.

Born in Auburn, Me., on Feb. 15, 1883, he became a Salem resident in 1890, attending local schools. He spent his life in Salem, working as an electrical engineer until 1926, when he retired. He was unmarried. He became ill in May and entered the hospital in September of last year.

Funeral services will be 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at Clough-Barrick Funeral Home, the Rev. Ernest F. Goulder of Jason Lee Methodist Church officiating. Burial will be in City View Cemetery.

Five cousins survive: Given: Mrs. Clifton Ross, Mrs. Blanche Clarke and Kenneth Prince, all of Salem; Mrs. George Winslow, Tillamook; and Mrs. Clifton Smith, Inspiration, Ariz.
