Mrs. Graham Kilham of Portland driving down from Portland for the party and wearing a good-looking Wedgewood blue ensemble ... Mrs. Harry Boliva of Klamath Falls just back from a quick trip to San Francisco to visit her daughter ... A black and white straw the choice of Mrs. Jess W. Savage up from Albany ... Mrs. Roy Fitzwater driving over from Lebanon ... and Mrs. Alfred Corbett down from Portland for a few days ...

Of the justices ... noted Mrs. James Bryant and Mrs. William Perry, Mrs. Hall Lusk and Mrs. William McAllister ... the latter chatting with a former Medford friend, Mrs. Robert Duncan, whose husband is a state representative ... the Duncans have leased the Gordon Black home during the session ... they have five children and Mrs. Duncan finds time to be her husband's secretary ... Mrs. Robert Holmes stopping by for a few minutes before going on to another coffee ... Mrs. Sigrid Unander, Mrs. Elmo Smith and Mrs. Charles Helzel talking over the coffee cups ...

A foursome ... discussing the columns they write for their hometown newspapers giving legislative insights were Mrs. Fayette Bristol of Grants Pass, Mrs. Charles Allen Tom of Rufus, Mrs. E. A. Little of Medford and Mrs. R. E. Sebedeen of Gresham ...

Light and Airy Souffles With Touch Of Exotic, Practical

By MAXINE BUREN
Statesman Woman's Editor

Souffles, those ethereal dishes with the fluffy texture and nicely blended flavor, are not half as frail pieces of culinary art they appear to be. There's no mystery to successfully cooking them, either, just follow the recipe (especially as to baking) and you've a souffle for you.

First of all, conquer the basic souffle and you can make yourselves a long line of dishes that range from the appetizer course, through the main meal to the desserts. We don't suggest every course in a single meal should be a souffle, but it's easily possible. And nice for the egg people.

Basic Souffle

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
3 beaten yolks
4 beaten whites

1 cup pureed vegetables.
grated cheese, flaked fish or fowl
Salt, pepper

Melt butter, stir in flour and blend. Then add the milk, seasonings and stir over medium heat until sauce is smooth and thick. Add vegetables or meat, stir in the yolks one at a time and cool. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites and turn batter into a buttered baking dish. Bake at 375 for 30 minutes or so, until well puffed and nicely browned.

Souffles in the French manner are a little moist in the center, even runny, so if you want your souffle set clear through add 15 minutes to the above cooking time.

You can make a salmon souffle, one with cheese, chicken and almonds, shrimp with green peppers, curried shrimp by adding the seasoning to the butter and flour. Tuna and celery make a good souffle combination as do onions and celery, and spinach and ham.

Go into the dessert souffle with confidence, for there are many very good ones, varying from the standard type to the borderline ones that are pretty close to cake.

Here is one we are particularly fond of:

Chocolat Souffle

3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 squares baking chocolate

1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
4 egg yolks
5 egg whites

Melt butter in saucepan with flour and add chocolate. Cook until chocolate melts, then gradually add milk, stirring constantly. Season and cook until thick and smooth. Add vanilla and cool. Fold in beaten egg yolks and beat again. Fold in egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Butter souffle dish, sprinkle with sugar and add batter. Set in pan of hot, not boiling water. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes, reduce heat to 375 degrees and cook another 20 to 25 minutes. Serve with or without a sauce.

Dear Ann Landers: Approaches Varied In Delicate Dilemma

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: Your letter to the young girl faced with the problem of approaching motherhood without a husband, was of great interest to me. I was also an unwed mother.

I came from a large family and had a wide circle of friends. The town I lived in was small and there was no Aunt I could "visit." I debated hard and long trying to decide if it would be best to keep my baby or put it out for adoption. As the time grew near I realized I could never part with my child so I decided to face the music and make the best of the situation.

My daughter is now four years old and she is a treasure. Five months ago I married a wonderful, old-fashioned man with very high standards. He knew the whole story before he started to take me out but never once did he mention it.

Courage and truth paid off for me, Ann. I thought this girl might like to know how someone else handled the toughest situation a woman can face—THE HAPPY ONE.

Dear Ann Landers: I was an unwed mother, so, naturally, your letter to the young girl in the same spot, caught my eye. I hope this poor kid will be smart enough to put her own desires second and the baby's welfare first. I didn't—and to my dying day I'll regret it.

Several childless couples who could have given my baby a wonderful home offered to take her, but I thought she'd be better off with me (I kept telling myself). I realize now it was only selfishness that made me hang on. I wanted her to ease my loneliness and misery.

My daughter is now 13 years old. She's an unhappy and moody child. I've had to work hard to support us and there's never been an extra dime for the little things a young girl ought to have.

She knows she was born out of wedlock because her cousins have told her so. She's resentful toward me and self-conscious among children her own age. I have the feeling someone might have the feeling someone might have married me if I hadn't flaunted this illegitimate child in the face of society.

So you see, I ruined my own life and didn't give my daughter a decent break, either. Print this letter, Mrs. Landers, if you think my experience may be of some value to someone else—FOOL.

Dear Ann: My husband and I have an embarrassing situation, but not in the concrete. If they don't offer to fill in the "damage" do it yourself and keep your eye on it until it hardens.
