British Urge NATO Settle Cyprus Row; Plan Attacked

By STERLING SLAPPEY

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—Britain proposed today that NATO try to mediate the British-Greek-Turkish dispute over Cyprus but the plan was turned down quickly by the Greek government and Greek Cypriot leaders.

There was no immediate official reaction from Turkey.

All three nations involved are members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In Athens, Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis rejected the proposal because, he said, negotiations must be between Britain and the Cypriot islanders themselves under a U.N. resolution.

The British plan would not settle the political future of Britain's eastern Mediterranean island bastion but is aimed to end deadly violence and strife.

The Greek-speaking island majority people want independence from Britain and union with Greece; the Turk-speaking minority people want the British to continue ruling the crown colony.

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd told the House of Commons Britain has agreed to let Cyprus Archbishop Makarios leave his exile in the Indian Ocean Seychelles Islands if he will call for a stop to anti-British violence on Cyprus.

Lennox-Boyd disclosed that an offer by Lord Ismay, the retiring British secretary general of NATO, to conciliate the differences had been accepted.

Greek Cypriot nationalists in Cyprus immediately attacked the British plan. They said the issues must be settled directly between Makarios and the British government.

Themistocles N. Dervis, Greek Cypriot mayor of Nicosia, said the Cyprus problem is not a question of NATO member differences.

"NATO is mostly made up of colonial powers who would not even agree to raising the Cyprus question before the U.N.," Dervis said.

Neuberger Says Attack By Morgan Unjustified

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore) said today Oregon Public Utilities Commissioner Howard Morgan has made him the target of an "unjustified" attack for testifying in the Senate rackets investigation.

"Any fair minded analysis of my testimony will indicate that attack was not justified," Neuberger said in a statement.

He added he hopes Morgan will withdraw his remarks after studying a transcript of the testimony, "as last year he withdrew an attack on two other loyal Democrats, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn)."

Neuberger testified last week as a volunteer witness at hearings into an alleged alliance between Teamsters Union officials, public officeholders and underworld figures in Portland. Neuberger said he testified for these three reasons:

"1. To defend the good name of the city of Portland, where I was born and raised.

"2. To urge that any responsible evidence which might furnish additional information on the reputations of the late Gov. Paul Patterson and Mayor Terry D. Schrunk (of Portland) be received by the committee, in fairness to these men and their families.

"3. To pay tribute to the integrity of former (Portland) Mayor Dorothy McCullough Lee, whose untimely defeat in 1952 set in motion the whole regretable chain of events culminating in these hearings."

"At no point was I critical of Howard Morgan or his testimony" he added.

Neuberger said Morgan "was criticized by Sen. Mundt (R-SD). He added that "in answer to Sen. Mundt, I repeatedly defended Mr. Morgan as a person of 'reliability, integrity and honesty.'"

The senator did not give details of the attack on him which he attributed to Morgan.

Spellers Get Too Good for Word Lists

AMITY, March 20—The semi-finals of The Oregon Statesman-KSLM Spelling Contest here tonight added two new competitors for the Grand Finals and confirmed a growing suspicion.

The suspicion was that those who chose the basic word list published in The Statesman underestimated the ability of the youthful spellers of the Mid-valley.

For the second successive night, four semi-finalists were still in the running when the semi-final word was exhausted. So again, as at Keizer, the word caller had to use less familiar words to determine the winner.

WIDE WORD KNOWLEDGE

Representatives of the two sponsoring organizations said after the contest it appeared more than ever this year that Grand Finals winners would be students who had a wide knowledge of words and who could think words through, without relying entirely on memorizing a published list.

To some extent, that has been true in the past, too. Top spellers in most Grand Finals have faced unfamiliar words. But there probably will be morg need for them than ever come the final event April 3 because the 1957 published list apparently has not taxed some contestants' abilities. "But there still are some difficult words in the published list; it is no 'breeze,' by any means," one sponsor declared. "Our spellers are just getting better."

Host principal tonight was Albert Yoder and it cost him, too. As in former years, he had promised the Amity contestant $1 for every speller who dropped by the wayside before Amity's. Since Betty Mae Ingram of Amity out-lasted her five opponents to take first place, she won $5. Second-place winner was Ronnie Wells of Sheridan. Both go to the Grand Finals.

TWO CONTEST JUDGES

Judges tonight were Mervin Jenkins, valley editor of The Statesman, and Dave Hoss, manager of KSLM, who was also master of ceremonies. Wendell Webb, managing editor of The Statesman, called the words.

More than 100 spectators and participants were served refreshments in the Amity school basement after the contest.

KSLM will broadcast an interview with the three top spellers, all of whom won special certificates of merit, at 5:45 p.m. Thursday.

The semi-finals Thursday night are at Washington School in Woodburn at 7:45 p.m.

City Official Charged With Halting Recall

YAKIMA, March 20 (AP) — Finance Commissioner Kenneth Schutt today was charged in Superior Court with stealing three recall petitions seeking his ouster from office.

The charge — of grand larceny and violation of the corrupt practices act — was filed by Yakima County Pros. Don J. Clark, who alleged Schutt stole the petitions March 6. Two of the petitions still are missing but one was found in a storage room in the city clerk's office.

Schutt, released on $2,500 bail after arraignment in Judge Dolph Barnett's court, refused to comment on the action, referring all questions to his legal advisers.

The recall was started by the Citizens Committee for Better Government after Schutt, as acting mayor, had fired the police chief and appointed a Tacoma man in his stead. The action was nullified by the city's Civil Service Commission, which ruled the firing was illegal.

The corrupt practices charge alleged Schutt interfered with the rights of the voters to vote for or against his recall by stealing and concealing the three petitions.

Schutt will remain in office pending his trial.

Meanwhile, all Yakima County judges disqualified themselves today from hearing Schutt's plea for a restraining order designed to stop the recall action.

Schutt asked for the order on grounds too much time had elapsed between filing of the petitions and their checking by the city clerk and because they were not stamped on receipt.

An outside judge will be called in to hear the case.

Police Fund Aids Youths

Salem police department's juvenile fund came to the aid of three youngsters from Washington Wednesday night when it was found they had no money.

The lads, ages 15 to 18, were stopped about 10 p.m. when they were seen carrying suitcases. Officers telephoned the mother of one of the youngsters in Washington who said they had permission to go to Denmark, Ore.

After they said they had no money police sent them to the YMCA where rooms were obtained with police funds.

Doctrine Study Due

KARACHI, Pakistan, March 20 (AP)—President Eisenhower's Middle East doctrine will be the main question before a Baghdad Pact Council of Ministers meeting here in May.

Opposition to Bruce Eddy Project Seen

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Stiff opposition was predicted today for the proposed Bruces Eddy Dam, which has cleared its first hurdle in Congress.

Sen. Dworshak (R—Idaho) said an effort will be made to eliminate the Idaho project from the public works bill approved yesterday by a Senate committee.

Dworshak is advocating a federal Bruces Eddy Dam in the north fork of the Clearwater River. The dam, along with other flood control and water projects, would be authorized for federal construction under the bill.

Sen. Neuberger (D—Ore) has announced he will seek to delete Bruces Eddy from the omnibus bill on grounds it would adversely affect fish and wildlife. But Dworshak expressed confidence the Senate will keep the dam in the measure.

Serious opposition is expected to turn up in the House, which will take up the bill after the Senate has disposed of it, Dworshak said.

"An ill-advised campaign of propaganda has been inspired by the national wildlife organizations to arouse opposition to Bruces Eddy Dam in many states," he declared.

Dworshak said although the public works bill carries a 25-million-dollar appropriation authorization, no construction money will be requested for Bruces Eddy until current studies into how the project would affect fish and wildlife are written into the bill by Dworshak.

The federal Bruces Eddy dam would cost an estimated 123 million dollars.

Schrunk Probe Said Commenced In May of 1956

PORTLAND, March 20 (AP) — State Police Capt. Vayne M. Gurdane said today that he began investigations of accusations against Terry Schrunk "some time in May," 1956.

The tip on the matter came from Portland police officers—not from Portland gambler Big Jim Elkins, he said.

Yesterday the Oregon Journal said in a copyrighted story that Clifford O. Bennett had signed an affidavit stating that a bribe accusation against Schrunk was a "frameup" by Elkins and his employe, Raymond Clark, aimed at defeating Schrunk in his mayoralty campaign.

March 19 Biggest Day for Family

MIAMI, Fla., March 20 (AP) — March 19 is the biggest day on the family calendar for the Andrew J. Novaks.

Their older son, Michael, was born that day three years ago. Two years ago, it was the birthday of Keith Novak. Yesterday Donna Lynn Novak was born.

And Puddles, the family cocker spaniel, proved herself a real Novak, too. She had four puppies yesterday.

Portland to Raise City Bus Fares on Sunday

PORTLAND, March 20 (AP) —City bus fares will go up Sunday.

The City Council granted the increases today, averting a threatened stoppage of Portland's mass transportation system.

The Rose City Transit Co. had said it would halt bus service unless the council authorized the boosts.

Under the new schedule, tokens, which now sell 3 for 50 cents, will be eliminated, and single fares will be 20 cents. The weekly pass will cost $3 instead of the present $2.75. Fares for school children will remain 10 cents a ride.

R. L. Clark, company president, said the company now wants to negotiate a 20-year operating franchise, and City Commissioner Ormond Bean said he hoped talks could start soon.

Commissioner Stanley Earl asked Clark if the company would be willing to write the new fare schedule into a future franchise. Clark replied that any fare provision would have to be "flexible."

He said the company hopes to improve the bus service, but that city officials will "have to take our word for it."

Clark rejected Earl's proposal that the company continue operation under present fares until a rates accountant hired by the city completes a check of Rose City's financial condition.

"I do not intend to lose one more dollar," Clark said.

The company has said declining patronage and rising costs make the increases necessary.

Metropolitan Insurance Firm Reveals New Salem Office Plans

Beck Told To Furnish Records

(Story also on page one.)

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—President Dave Beck of the Teamsters Union was ordered today to appear next Tuesday before Senate rackets investigators—and to bring his financial records for 1949 through 1955.

This key development, heralding events that could be spectacular, interrupted testimony of Frank W. Brewster, a vice president of the Teamsters and chairman of the union's Western Conference.

Brewster's financial affairs, intertwined with those of the Teamster's Western Conference, have been under searching scrutiny. Today's installment of the story involved Brewster's personal and financial ties with the broker, George Newell, a racing stable partnership with a Seattle pinball machine operator and Teamsters member, and a political donation which Brewster said the Teamsters made to Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight of California.

NO RECORD CITED

Knight said in Sacramento "we have no record" of any Teamsters contribution for any of the governor's campaigns.

There was testimony also that Beck's son Dave Jr., and Beck's financial adviser drew $750 apiece for expenses at a Teamsters' conference in Los Angeles in 1952—although they were not on the official delegate lists.

Brewster said he thought Beck Jr. might have attended as a delegate from some local other than his own and that the financial adviser, Simon Wampole, might have been doing legal work for the union at the time. He said he wasn't so sure the two weren't delegates.

Brewster testified that Newell paid him a salary of some $5,000 a year in stocks for three years for managing their stable—he said he got up every morning at 4:30 when he was in Seattle to walk the horses.

Brewster said it "is not true," as the counsel for the inquiry contended, that these payments were "commissions" Newell paid to him.

RACING PARTNERSHIP

Subsequently, Brewster said, he went into a racing partnership with John Sweeney, the late secretary-treasurer of the Teamster's Western Conference, and Fred Galeno, juke box and pinball machine operator, who is from "one of the first families of Seattle."

Galeno is a member both of the Teamsters Union Local 174 and of the Seattle Assn. of Pinball Operators with which another local, 353, has a contract. Brewster said he saw nothing wrong there, either.

He spoke of a Teamsters political contribution to Knight but didn't specify the amount or give any date for such a gift.

Brewster said Knight appointed Harold Lopez, business manager of Teamsters Local 35, to the California State Board of Harbor Commissioners.

And he said he might have written or talked with Knight about the qualifications of Charles Tait of Seattle, who was appointed director of the San Francisco Port Authority at $18,000 a year.

Knight issued a statement saying, "We have no record of any financial contributions by the Teamsters union to any of my campaigns.

"All labor activity in my behalf was handled by groups within labor itself.

"The appointment of the port director of San Francisco was made by the Board of Harbor Commissioners and I had nothing whatever to do with it."

In March 1955, Knight's office issued a press release reporting he signed emergency legislation allowing the San Francisco Harbor Commissioners to "employ a person not a resident of California."

In San Francisco, an aide to Tait said the port director was issuing no statement, was taking no calls, and had arranged to see an attorney.

The Taft-Hartley labor law forbids direct union contributions to candidates for federal office but not to those for state positions.

McClellan told Brewster people might "get the impression from the way you handle your personal matters that you might handle union affairs in the same slipshod way."

Brewster replied that, "I'm not able to tell what people think."

Possibly, McClellan said, there was something "improper in the large profits Newell obtains" from his business with the Teamsters. Brewster said that "I see nothing wrong."

Police Probe Mistreatment Of Youngster

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 20 (AP) —A 15-month-old girl who police said had been brutally beaten and mistreated was taken to a hospital today in critical condition. Her parents were jailed on assault to murder charges.

Homicide Capt. W. W. Wilkinson said the child, Charlene Brown, suffered fractures of both legs in a beating several months ago and that the legs had healed improperly for lack of medical attention.

Wilkinson said the mother accused the child's father, Edgar Brown, 30, of administering the beating. They are Negroes.

The baby, Wilkinson said, also was found to have suffered these additional injuries:

Front teeth broken off almost at the gums.

Sores and scars on the body, chest and head.

Body scalds from being placed in excessively hot water.

Hospital attaches said the child also was suffering from malnutrition and dehydration.

Wilkinson said Brown accused the mother of knocking the baby's front teeth out by throwing her on the floor and "stomping" her.

Police said they investiaged the case after a relative of the mother complained that the child was being mistreated.

Swimming Pool Vote Due at Pendleton

PENDLETON, March 20 (AP) — A special election will be held here some time in May on a proposed $350,000 bond issue to finance construction of a covered swimming pool.

About 170 swimmers could be handled by the pool, which would be open the year-around.

Portland Firm Low Bidder for New Building; Work to Start in 10 Days

E.C. Owen Construction Co. of Portland, with a bid of $28,882.31 was apparent low bidder Wednesday for construction of a proposed Salem district office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., at Center and North Cottage streets.

Other bids were: Morrow Construction Co., $29,109; E. E. Batterman, $29,955; H. G. Carl, $30,974; Mills Construction Co., $31,924; C. W. and Willis A. Hill, $32,738; and George Johnston Construction Co., $36,122. All bidders except Owen were Salem firms.

The bids were being studied but a contract award will be made soon so construction can begin when razing of two houses on the site is completed, architect Ernest L. Weber said. Construction is expected to start within 10 days, and occupancy is set for July 1, he added.

Total cost of the one-story building at the northwest corner of the intersection is expected to be about $45,000, Weber said. The construction bids do not include pumbing, heating or electrical facilities.

L-SHAPED BUILDING

The Building will be L-shaped with a 70-foot frontage on Center Street and 66 feet on Cottage Street. It will have 4,000 square feet of floor space.

The flat-topped structure will have Arizona sandstone facing. Some walls will be of reinforced concrete while others will be of frame construction with cement asbestos board and rough cedar backs. It will have blue laminated beams with a suspended ceiling and recessed lighting. The whole building will be air conditioned. Washrooms will have tile floors and lobby floors will be of vinyl asbestos tile and slate.

PARKING SPACE

An adjacent parking lot will have space for 10 cars.

The new office will reportedly be financed by Joseph E. and Mabel DeWitt, who have a 25-year lease on the property owned by Charles W. and Esther M. Brock. The DeWitts will lease the building to the insurance firm.

William H. Velton, manager of the Salem office, said there will be accommodation for 20 salesmen and a 12-person office staff.

R. J. Schmidt, manager of the real estate department of State Finance Co., and Nelson and Nelson Realtors, represented the DeWitt interests and will manage the property. Ohmart and Calaba realty firm represented the Brocks.

Metropolitan's Salem office has been situated on the third floor of the Masonic Building for the past 30 years.

Senate Hearing Set on Wildlife Appointment

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee today scheduled a hearing for March 27 on President Eisenhower's nomination of Arnie J. Suomela to be commissioner of fish and wildlife in the Interior Department. Suomela, a native of Ilwaco, Wash., formerly was Oregon director of fisheries.

Chairman Magnuson (D—Wash) also announced a hearing April 9 on his bill to give President Eisenhower authority to put merchant shipping on priority basis in a defense emergency.

That proposal will be considered by a subcommittee. At the same time it will take testimony on another Magnuson bill to impose stringent restrictions on the Federal Maritime Board's authority to transfer merchant vessels to foreign registry.

Lumbermen Plan Annual Meeting

PORTLAND, March 20 (AP) — The West Coast Lumbermen's Assn. announced today that Herman N. Mangels, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, will be one of the main speakers at its annual meeting here March 27-28.

He is expected to discuss the money market as related to the lumber industry.

Annual reports will be given March 28 by N. B. Giustina, Eugene, president, and H. V. Simpson, executive vice president. Other speakers will include R. M. Ingram, Aberdeen, vice president for Washington, and Eliot Jenkins, Springfield, treasurer.

Plans are being made for 250 lumbermen from western Washington, Oregon and northern California.

Hungry Seagulls Causing Leaks

VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — It was a mean winter for seagulls hereabouts, so bad they took to eating building material.

Apartment dwellers in a plush West End block (The Georgian Towers) complained that water was leaking in through the aluminum-framed windows.

Contractors checked the frames and inserted caulking compound, but still complaints came in.

A sharp-eyed resident discovered why the leak persisted.

Seagulls had pecked away the caulking.

Russ Author Launches 2nd Red Attack

MOSCOW, March 20 (AP)—A controversial Soviet author has outspokenly attacked the restraints of a Communist society.

The Soviet newspaper Literary Gazette published his attack today but ran along with it the criticism provoked by his remarks at a recent conference of Soviet writers. The author is Vladimir Dudintsev, whose novel, "not by Bread Alone," caused a sensation by implying criticism of Communist bureaucracy.

The newspaper said Dudintsev questioned whether creative discussion is possible at all in the Soviet Union.

"Why should we not be allowed to swim, like young swimmers do?" Dudintsev was quoted as telling the writers. "On our own, most probably, we would not drown. Alas, I feel all the time as if I'm wearing the kind of straps children sometimes use when they are learning to walk, they interfere with my swimming."

Boating Club Picks Officers

G. Dudley Henderson, who was unopposed for the post, was elected commodore of Salem Boat & Yachting Club Wednesday night.

Henderson, a parole officer, succeeds Robert Hullette, Statesman-Journal advertising artist.

Other officers elected at the club meeting in Salem Memorial Hospital chapel are Lee Dugger, vice commodore; Melvin Elkins, rear commodore; Leora Johnson, yeoman; James Armstrong, finance officer.

Hullette, Robert Ellstrom Jr., Al Harder and William Ferguson were elected to the board of directors.

Tornadoes, Heavy Rain Hit Texas

DALLAS, March 20 (AP)—Tornadoes, snow, soaking rains, dust and a flash downpour made up the weather picture in Texas today.

The tornadoes skipped about in west Texas. Snow and soaking rains cheered Panhandle folk, who have had a prolonged drought.

Blowing dust reduced visibility in the Wink, Midland and El Paso areas of west Texas.

The twisters that hit near Big Spring, Crane, Seminole and Stanton did no known property damage and no injuries were reported.

The Weather Bureau forecast possible tornadoes tonight for a 120-mile band from San Angelo to Bryan.

Small craft warnings for southeasterly winds reaching 35 m.p.h. and shifting to westerly Thursday were hoisted along the Gulf from Brownsville to Morgan City, La.

Moving Images Transmitted by Phone Wires

PHILADELPHIA, March 20 (AP)—The transmission of moving images over ordinary telephone lines was demonstrated publicly here tonight. Sponsors said it was the first such demonstration.

The demonstration was of a new television system developed by the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania during a year of research. It was said to have applications in industry and government and to cost less than conventional systems.

C. Raymond Krause, general staff transmission engineer for the company, made the demonstration at Franklin Institute.

The system is known as narrow band industrial television. It requires a frequency band width of 250,000 cycles, or one-sixteenth of the four million cycles currently used for television transmission.

The system is said to be capable of transmitting a clear-moving image over ordinary telephone lines up to 15 miles, but the company described its main function as industrial.
