Dear Ann Landers:

Man Objects to High Cost of Leaving Wife

By ANN LANDERS
Annie Dear: Can you help? Wanted: A decent break for the poor, crucified American ex-husband who is chewed up by alimony. Take two guys, Frank and Hank. Frank gets drunk, buys a gun, steals a car, holds up a bank, shoots the cashier in the hip, crashes three red lights, runs over a blind preacher, leaves the scene of the accident, and perishes himself at the trial. Penalty? Maybe 30, or 20 years. He could get off with 10 if he plays it cool in the cooler. Now, take Hank. Fine, clean-cut fellow who goes to church four times a week, abhors strong drink, never gambles, contributes to 12 worthy charities and participates in civic affairs. Hank gets married. Ooops—wrong woman! What now? Divorce. Load the dice, boys, here comes a live one. Hank is stripped of his home, his furniture, his car, his bank account, and his children. He's handed a life-time alimony rap. He can either pay and pay and pay or go to jail and play gin-rummy with Frank. This is justice? —SIR SPENCERLOT

Mr. Spencerlot, You plum forgot! When man selects a wife—Or when a wife selects HIM. The way it is in life, They take an oath, 'fore God and man That they will face together Whatever fate the future holds, Including stormy weather. I shed no tears for brother Hank—For him I'd be no grieving. For alimony is dear friend, The high, high cost of leaving.

Dear Ann: Recently a good friend of mine married a spoiled brat of 18. He's 31. We try for his sake to be civil and friendly to her but it's becoming more difficult all the time. She says "Shut-up" during a conversation so she can talk. Every discussion is turned into a debate. No matter what the topic, if you're for it she's against it. This girl refers to her furniture as "junk" although it's only four months older than hers. She constantly corrects our children and belittles me in catty ways. My husband and I are at a loss as to how to handle this embarrassing situation. We hate to end our friendship with the fellow because he's a fine guy, but his bride is getting too much for both of us. —P.T.D.

When a "Bar fellow" of 11 marries a 18-year-old spoiled brat with no respect for basic courtesy, he can expect to be persons not grade (pleasely welcome) in most circles. Most everyone knows at least ONE couple of whom it's said "Love him—but can't stand her"—or vice versa. In such instances, the couple is usually excluded as a unit. Maybe when this "fine guy" tired of being left out of things because of his bride, he'll take steps to teach her a few every-day manners.

Ann Landers will be happy to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper and enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Modern Etiquette

By ROBERTA LEE

Q When one is a guest in someone's home, and it is necessary to make a long-distance telephone call, who should pay the charges?
A The guest should immediately call the operator upon completion of the call and ask for the charges. This amount should then be given to the hostess.

Q When passing a salt or pepper shaker at the table, should one place it on the table or hand it directly to the person?
A It is probably less awkward to put it down on the table and let the person pick it up.
