Dear Ann Landers: Woman Considers Repeating Mistake

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I was engaged for two years. The invitations were ordered when my fiancé gave me the shocking news. He'd gotten a young girl in trouble and had to marry her. I was heartbroken. My folks sent me away for two months and I almost had a nervous breakdown.

This was 14 months ago. I've made a good adjustment and am dating again. Last week my former fiancé came to my place of employment and begged me to talk to him. He poured out a tearful story of how wretched he'd been.

He wants to divorce his wife because she's lazy and ignorant. He said the child looks just like her and he doesn't care a thing about the child. Now he wants me more than anything in the world and threatens to kill himself on my porch if I don't take him back. My dad says if he sees him hanging around he'll save him the trouble.

I loved him very much once. Now I'm all fixed up. I'd hate to be responsible for a suicide. Help me, please. This is serious. —JENNIE

What this character does with his life is HIS problem—not yours. The great majority of those who threaten suicide do so to intimidate the person on whom they are dependent. This fellow is operating on the same level as a 7-year-old boy who tells his mother if she won't give him a dime he'll run away from home, get pneumonia and die, and she'll be sorry.

Tell him you are not interested in him or his plans. He has made a mess of his own life—and his unfortunate young wife is no doubt pretty miserable, too. Don't let him saddle you with what could be a plenty sick relationship.

Dear Ann: My husband and I are both under 21. He expects to go into the service any day. Our first child is due in August.

We live with my husband's parents because we're trying to save money. My 13-year-old sister-in-law makes life miserable for us both. She's sassy and has her mother wrapped around her little finger. I know that she sneaks out at night and goes with men twice her age, she drinks, smokes and has a terrible temper. When my husband tries to correct her, she flies into a rage and tells him it's HER house not HIS.

Last night they had a terrible fight. When his mother came home she sided with the girl and wouldn't even listen to our version of the story. We can't afford a place of our own just yet. What can we do? —MRS. J. M. JR.

You can move out even if it means renting a brown closet over a bowling alley. Whatever you save financially, it's costing you double, emotionally.

It's not your husband's place to discipline this wild one. You are both considered intruders or the girl would have been put in her place long ago. Pack your bags and vamoose.

(Ann Landers will be happy to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper and enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.)

Britons Allowed To Use Money To Visit America

Tanker Put on Suez Blacklist

LONDON, June 5 (P) — British Egyptian customs official said Tuesday the Norwegian 11,916-ton tanker Vestvold has been blacklisted because she called at the Israeli port of Tel Aviv.

The Vestvold arrived yesterday. She will traverse the waterway tomorrow. Blacklisted ships are not prevented from transiting the canal but they cannot load or unload cargo in Egyptian ports or take on supplies.

Peter Thornycroft, chancellor of the exchequer told the House of Commons that this allowance will be available in the future for travel to the dollar area.

Wyoming, in 1869, was the first state to grant women the right to vote.
